M'CONNAUGHEY DENIES ON STAND HE EVER SOUGHT BRIBE IN TV CASE

But Ex-FCC Chief Testifies One Applicant Said He Might 'Throw My Son Some Law Business.'

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—George C. McConnaughey, former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, denied under oath today that he ever solicited money for his vote in the controversial Channel 4 television case in Pittsburgh.

McConnaughey testified, however, that Earl F. Reed, president of Television City, Inc., of Pittsburgh, one of the applicants for Channel 4, once told him "he might be in a position to throw my son some law business."

The amount mentioned, McConnaughey asserted, was "$5000 to $10,000 a year. The former chairman told the House Legislative Oversight subcommittee he was shocked by Reed's statement and that he (McConnaughey) immediately changed the subject.

After McConnaughey completed his testimony, two members of the subcommittee said the Department of Justice should look into the Channel 4 case to determine whether "criminal libel" had been committed.

McConnaughey, a Republican who now practices law in Columbus, O., was questioned by the subcommittee which has been investigating reports that he sought a $50,000 bribe to switch his vote to Television City, in the hotly contested Channel 4 case.

Asked if He Sought Bribe.

Robert W. Lishman, subcommittee chief counsel, asked McConnaughey bluntly whether he ever solicited such a payment, either directly or through an intermediary.

"It certainly is not true—I did not," the former chairman replied.

He said the first time he ever heard anything about an alleged bribe solicitation was in September 1957, when Federal Bureau of Investigation agents came to his office and questioned him about it.

McConnaughey denied also that the Hearst Corp. ever negotiated with him to pay him $200,000 in legal fees after he left the FCC. He said he also heard this report for the first time from the FBI agents.

"I told them both allegations were untrue and completely without foundation," McConnaughey testified.

Under questioning, he told of a luncheon conversation he had with Reed on May 8, 1957, a month before the FCC held oral arguments in the Channel 4 proceeding.

Requested Appointment.

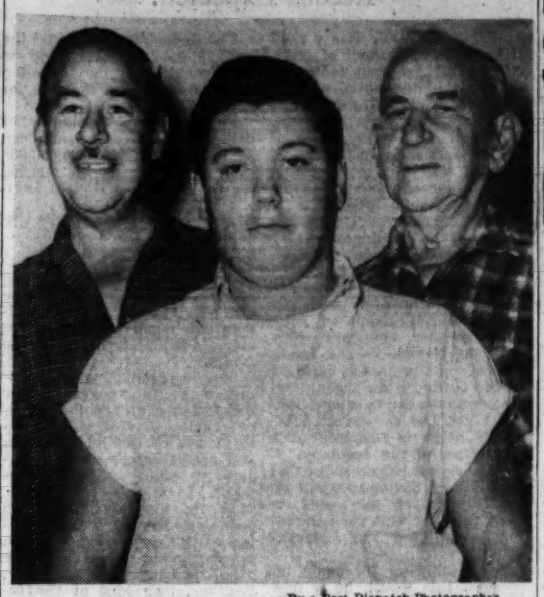

McConnaughey said Reed requested the appointment in an effort to speed up FCC action on the long-delayed Pittsburgh case. He added in response to questions that he saw nothing improper in discussing procedural matters such as scheduling with an applicant for a TV channel.

"He (Reed) wanted to get the case set down for a hearing," McConnaughey explained. He added that Senate and House committees were pressing the FCC to dispose of old cases such as the Channel 4 proceeding.

During the luncheon talk, McConnaughey went on, Reed

5-DAY WEATHER OUTLOOK CALLS FOR NEAR NORMAL TEMPERATURES IN AREA

TEMPERATURES will average near normal in the St. Louis area tomorrow through Saturday, the Weather Bureau predicted today in its extended forecast.

PRESIDENT PLANS 10-DAY VISIT TO AUGUSTA CLUB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower hopes to get away to Augusta, Ga., Thursday or Friday for about 10 days of golf mixed with work.

The White House, in announcing this today, noted that the prospective trip means the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will spend Thanksgiving day at one of their favorite retreats, the Augusta National Golf Club. Mr. Eisenhower has vacationed at the club each year in November except in 1955, when he suffered a heart attack.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said the President probably would remain in Augusta through the weekend following Thanksgiving day. However, he had no definite date for the President's return to Washington.

ZOO HOPES TO LIFT PHIL'S APPETITE WITH SUGAR CANE

The St. Louis Zoo today arranged for shipment of sugar cane from New Orleans to entice Phil the gorilla to eat, Director George P. Vierheller said. Phil has eaten little or nothing for a month because of an intestinal parasite.

Vierheller arranged for the sugar cane after Phil refused to nibble on a breakfast of avocados, strawberries and pears. The cane is being sent by George Douglas, director of the New Orleans Zoo. It is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Phil was given more than a gram of vitamin B-12 yesterday in a can of water, but immediately afterward became suspicious of water, Vierheller said. Phil also received a shot of chloromycetin, an antibiotic.

"Unless Phil starts eating, there is no hope for his recovery," Vierheller said. "Everyone is pulling for Phil and we are doing all we can. It's all very discouraging because we really are almost helpless. Phil watches every move we make and he's extremely suspicous."

THREE IN FAMILY CAUGHT IN WHIRL OF POLICE CHASE

Their Auto Seized by Illinois Fugitives—They Join in Manhunt—3 Captured.

Three members of the Baumgarth family of Carsonville were recovering today from the effects of aiding police in a wild chase of three suspects and a subsequent manhunt in the countryside near Carlyle, Ill., yesterday. Carlyle is 45 miles east of St. Louis.

The day started calmly enough for Norman Baumgarth, a poultry dealer living at 8834 Natural Bridge road, his 17-year-old son, Philip John, and his 73-year-old father, Philip Jacob Baumgarth. They were driving to a summer home at Shattuc, Ill., for a load of chickens and eggs.

Before the day was over, they had offered their help to a state trooper, been robbed of their new car, and taken part in the search with about 150 other persons. Beagle hounds and airplanes were called in before the suspects were found.

Baumgarth said he had $1000 in cash with him, but the robbers, in their haste, did not ask for his money.

Captives in Jail.

The three captives were taken taken to the Clinton county jail at Carlyle, to be charged with armed robbery for taking the Baumgarth car at gunpoint after disarming Trooper Herbert Faitz. They are all 21 years old, and gave their names as John T. Harper and Donald L. Arndt of Seattle and Calvin Soleman Jr. of New York.

Baumgarth's father was to go to a hospital today, believing he had some broken ribs from a fall in a muddy creek.

The Baumgarths were 10 miles east of Carlyle when they saw a state police car pursuing another machine past them at high speed.

Norman Baumgarth decided to go after them. A short distance down the road, the fugitive machine turned over several times but the three occupants emerged unhurt. Trooper Faitz was there, and accepted the Baumgarths' offer of help.

Trooper's Pistol Grabbed.

One of the three grabbed the trooper's pistol. They climbed into the Baumgarth car and were away again, east on U.S. Highway 50. They went only a few miles and turned off south into a side road. About two miles down that road they plunged the machine through a fence and into a ditch and took to the bramble.

It was about 11 a.m., and many homes were unoccupied, the residents being at church. The trooper had called for help, and instead of going home from church many farmers joined in the manhunt.

The final run-down was made by two farmers driving their tractors over the brush, each accompanied by a deputy sheriff. They are Collins (Jack) Kannel and Wilbert Palm.

Sheriff Henry R. Klutho ordered a riot gun fired once, and the young men threw away their pistols and came forth.

Thai King Solid as Side Man In Jam Session With Americans

BANGKOK, Nov. 17 (AP)—Jack Teagarden and his American musicians held an impromptu jam session at Thailand's royal palace last night — along with some distinguished company.

King Phumiphon Adulet alternated on clarinet, alto sax, piano and trumpet and one-time Premier Pramoj on bass.

The monarch was particularly hep on "Saint James Infirmary," Teagarden reported.

"He didn't say much. He just wanted to play and the man did—five hours."

During a break, the Americans were treated to dinner and the King presented them silver cigarette cases embossed with the royal seal.

Mrs. Teagarden, who will manage the troupe on its four-month tour sponsored by the State Department, was given a silver compact.

RUSSIA OFFERS SEPARATE PACTS ON CONTROLS AND ENDING A-TESTS

Simultaneous Signing Suggested — Idea Violates Requirement That Two Subjects Be Linked.

GENEVA, Nov. 17 (AP) — Russia offered today to negotiate two separate treaties for barring nuclear tests and for controlling the bar. It suggested the agreements be signed simultaneously.

Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin made the proposal at three-power talks on nuclear test suspension.

Tis proposal failed to meet a basic requirement in these talks—the linking of test suspension to a control system in one treaty.

The two-treaty approach advanced by the Russians raises the danger that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union would commit themselves to a document promising to end tests but never be able to get a control system functioning, western sources said.

An eastern source said Tsarapkin told the delegates the Soviet Union was prepared to accept an international control system. The western side maintains that if the Russians are sincere on this point they will ultimately agree to the all-inclusive single treaty.

Delegations for the three powers met for 90 minutes. United States Ambassador James J. Wadsworth, head of the American delegation, presided.

Bar on Atom Flights.

In another field of negotiation, Russian proposed an international treaty to prevent planes from carrying nuclear weapons over the territory of other countries and the high seas.

The proposal was submitted by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily V. Kuznetsov to the 10-nation conference on prevention of surprise attack.

Western officials said the proposal was completely outside the scope of the present talks. The meeting was interrupted for 20 minutes to permit the Western delegations to consult among themselves.

At the same meeting, the West submitted a new proposal for a plan of work for the conference. This was understood to insist that the talks be confined to technical, nonpolitical matters. In the Western view, the conference has been called only to discuss methods of surprise attack and the procedures required for an international alert system against such attack.

Deadlocked a Week.

The Russians have sought since the opening of the talks on Nov. 10 to bring in a whole range of political and disarmament questions which the Western experts have refused to discuss. The conference was deadlocked all last week on this disagreement over its very purpose.

The Russian draft was not made public. It was entitled "Draft recommendation for the acceptance by governments of the obligation not to authorize flights of their aircraft armed with atomic and hydrogen weapons over the territory of other states and the high seas."

Kuznetsov's proposal was related to Russian charges made earlier this year that American planes loaded with nuclear weapons were flying across the Arctic close to Soviet borders and were a threat to peace. These charges were denied by the United States.

The communique issued at the end of today's two-hour meeting said the conference continued discussion of its "plan of work"—a phrase used since the start to describe the deadlock over the agenda.

Disagreement on Status.

The communique showed the delegates were even in disagreement on their own status. It referred to the Western delegates as "experts"—which stressed their non-competence for political negotiation—while the Eastern delegates were described as government "representatives"— implying full political status.

Countries taking part are the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Italy, Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Albania.

HEAVY TRADING PUSHES MARKET TO NEW PEAK

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—The stock market rode to a record high today in heavy trading.

Key issues rose fractions to around $1 or more a share and some favorites fared better. Motors and metals were especially strong.

Goodyear was up more than $6 a share much of the session on rumors of a stock split. Johnson & Johnson and Sharon Steel were ahead $3 or more. Up between $1 and $2 were Southern Pacific, Magma Copper and Merck.

POPE NAMES 23 NEW CARDINALS; TWO AMERICANS AND 13 ITALIANS

Archbishops O'Hara of Philadelphia, Cushing of Boston Chosen —Total Now 75— Consistories Dec. 15.

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 17 (UPI)—Pope John XXIII named 23 new cardinals today, including two Americans and the apostolic delegate to the United States. The nominations brought membership in the Sacred College of Cardinals to an unprecedented high of 75.

Archbishop John O'Hara of Philadelphia and Archbishop Richard James Cushing of Boston were the two Americans named. Their elevation gave the United States four cardinals. The two present ones are Cardinal Francis Spellman of New York and Cardinal James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles.

In addition to the two new American cardinals, the Pope named Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States with headquarters in Washington, D.C., to the Sacred College. He is a brother of Cardinal Gaetano Cicognani of the Roman Curia.

Series of Ceremonies.

The Pontiff called Vatican consistories starting Dec. 15 at which the new cardinals will be formally invested with the symbols of their rank.

They will be in Rome by Dec. 15. Then, after the present members of the Sacred College give their formal approval of the Pope's nominations, each of the new cardinals will be fully invested at a series of secret and public consistories in the Vatican palace and St. Peter's basilica. They will receive their red hats of office and cardinal's rings, swear fidelity to the church and the Pope, and received titular churches.

The Pontiff named Msgr. Domenico Tardini as Vatican Secretary of State. He had been acting in that position for some time. Msgr. Tardini also was named a cardinal.

Archbishop Giovanni Montini of Milan was among Italians elevated to the rank of cardinal. Archbishop Montini had won fame for his work against the Communists in that industrial area of Italy.

Division Among Nations.

Thirteen of the new cardinals are Italians. Of the others, two are Americans, two French and one each from Mexico, Uruguay, Britain, Spain, Austria and Germany.

The Pontiff did not name new cardinals in Detroit and Chicago. Cardinal Edward Mooney of Detroit and Cardinal Samuel Stritch of Chicago died in Rome this year.

Archbishop O'Hara was born in Ann Arbor, Mich., on May 1, 1888, and educated at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind., Catholic University, Washington, D.C. and the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

He was ordained Sept. 9, 1916 and appointed titular bishop of Milasa and military delegate on Jan. 15, 1940. He was named bishop of Buffalo, N.Y., March 16, 1945 and named archbishop of Philadelphia on Nov. 28, 1951.

Archbishop Cushing was born Aug. 24, 1895 in South Boston, Mass. He was graduated from Boston College and St. John's Seminary in Brighton, Mass., and was ordained on May 25, 1921. He was appointed auxiliary bishop of Boston on June 29, 1939 and became archbishop of the Boston diocese on Sept. 25, 1944.

First Mexican Cardinal.

In naming the new members of the sacred college, the Pope gave Mexico and Uruguay cardinals for the first time in their history.

Vatican sources said the appointment of a Mexican cardinal underlined steadily improving church-state relations in that country since the time more than 30 years ago when many churches in Mexico were closed.

ATOMS-FOR-PEACE CHIEF IN CAPITAL, BUT NO ONE CARES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — Sterling Cole and his International Atomic Energy Agency, once the shining hope of President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program, appear to merit no more attention than last year's election in Washington these days.

Cole, director general of the Agency, was in town last week to address a meeting of the Atomic Industrial Forum. Not a single member of the Atomic Energy Commission nor one ranking officer of the State Department found time to drop in.

SEVERE STORMS EXPECTED HERE EARLY TONIGHT

Line Is Likely to Be Eastward—1.06-Inch Rain Sunday — Tornado Loss in Illinois.

Severe thunderstorms are expected in the St. Louis area this evening, the Weather Bureaeu said in a special weather report.

The bureau said a line of thunderstorms across Missouri should reach the St. Louis area by 6 o'clock and sweep eastward across the city.

Scattered severe thunderstorms also were predicted in north central and central Missouri along and about 120 miles east of a line which extends from a point 40 miles northeast of St. Joseph to Springfield.

There is a chance of a tornado in north central Missouri north of a line from a point 60 miles west of Columbia to 30 miles northeast of Columbia, the bureau said.

Phone Service Affected.

Rainfall in the St. Louis area yesterday totaled 1.06 inches, with winds up to 25 miles an hour, the Weather Bureau reported. High temperature here was 68.

About 1100 telephones in parts of St. Louis, St. Louis county and the East Side were out of order yesterday because of heavy rains which soaked cables, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said.

Service has been restored to about 650 telephones, and the remaining 450 will be cleared today, a company spokesman said.

One Man Injured.

Scattered small tornadoes caused damage in various parts of southern Illinois and Missouri yesterday. One man was injured by a tornado at Sandoval, Ill., 60 miles east of St. Louis.

Tornadic winds were reported at Nevada, Mo., shortly before noon today, causing extensive damage and injuring one man near Moundville, 10 miles southwest of Nevada.

RUSSIA ACCUSED OF IMPERILING U.S. AIRCRAFT

Charges List 'Dangerous and Provocative' Attacks Over Baltic, Sea of Japan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — The United States charged today that Russian fighter planes made "dangerous and provocative" attacks against American planes 10 days ago over the Baltic Sea and the Sea of Japan.

A formal note demanded that the Soviet government take immediate steps to halt such interference with American aircraft.

The note warned that in the future "commanders of American aircraft will be under instructions to take any defensive action which they consider necessary and appropriate."

A State Department spokesman declined to say whether American planes would fire at such attackers.

The attacks came within five hours of each other Nov. 7 in the widely separated areas. The United States planes were flying what the State Department called "normal Air Force training flights over international waters."

In the Baltic attack, Soviet fighters fired twice at an American plane at an altitude of 33,000 feet. The note said the attack occurred 66 miles from the nearest Soviet territory.

The American plane withheld fire, the note said, even though "there can be no doubt that the objective fo the Soviet fighter aircraft was to destroy the American plane without warning at a position far outside the Soviet frontires."

In the case of the other United States plane, the State department said Soviet fighters three times launched "simulated attacks." This involved fighter planes veering toward the American plane crossing in front of it sometimes only 100 feet away.

This attack came, said the note, over the Sea of Japan 64 miles from the nearest Soviet territory.

It called this a dangerous and unwarranted maneuver involving grave risk of collision and possibly calculated to provoke fire from the American aircraft.

The note protested against what it called "the dangerous, offensive and provocative actions" of the Soviet planes.

It said the American aircraft, which were not identified as to type, "withheld fire and did not in any way menace the Soviet aircraft." The note then added:

"However, if such dangerous tactics are in the future repeated by Soviet aircraft in close proximity to American aircraft in international air space, the Soviet government should be aware that commanders of American aircraft will be under instructions to take any defensive action which they consider necessary and appropriate."

CONSTITUTION CANCELED AS PARLIAMENT IS DISSOLVED

Gen. Abboud Charges Corruption in Government — Hopes to Improve Relations With Nasser's U.A.R.

CAIRO, Nov. 17 (AP) — Another Middle Eastern parliamentary democracy went into eclipse today when army commander Gen. Ibrahim Abboud seized power from Premier Abdullah Khalil in a military coup in Sudan.

At noon, the official Sudan radio broadcast that army units from all parts of the African nation reported all quiet.

The Khartoum radio said Abboud dissolved Parliament, canceled the Sudan's provisional constitution and declared a state of emergency throughout the country.

Broadcasts claimed a wide measure of support for the Abboud coup. The general was supported by his deputy commander, Maj. Gen. Ahmed Pasha Abdel Wahab, and so far as can be determined here had the backing of the entire army.

The two officers immediately called on Sudan's two top religious leaders, who are powerful political figures as well —Abdel Rahman el Mahdi, leader of the Ansari sect, and Aly Mirghani, leader of the Khatmia sect. The radio said both blessed the coup. If this is true the military junta already is guaranteed solid popular backing.

The coup unseated the pro-Western government of Premier Khalil.

Political Parties Dissolved.

The army made its move at 2 a.m. Troops spread out through Khartoum and other main towns of the republic, an area of almost 1,000,000 square miles with 10,000,000 population.

Political parties were ordered dissolved. All newspapers were suspended. Telephone communications were interrupted. Demonstrations and political meetings were prohibited.

At 7 a.m., Gen. Abboud announced in a radio broadcast that the army will preserve peace and security.

He promised to do his best to achieve good relations with President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

He said present problems between Sudan and Egypt—which have been feuding much of the time since Sudan won independence in 1956—are artificial and that the army will solve them on the basis of mutual understanding. He described Egypt as a sister country.

No Drastic Change Foreseen.

However, indications are that, if Mahdi blessed the coup, Abboud does not intend to change Sudan's policy drastically. The Ansari sect leader has been a backer of Khalil. And his son, Siddiq Mahdi, was leader of Khalil's Umma party, which has a strong pro-Western reputation.

On the other hand, Aly Mirghani of the Khatmia sect has had strong pro-Egyptian sympathies in the past, although he has backed away from unity with Egypt.

(British government sources in London viewed the coup as an army bid to stall a political reconciliation with Nasser's government. The coup came as no surprise to the British, who had been expecting the fall of the Khalil government for days.

(In Washington, United States authorities also said initial reports indicate the coup is not a move to link the Sudan more closely with Nasser's policies.

(Abboud was viewed as "a pretty solid soldier" unlikely to lead his government toward any specific bloc. His talk about closer Arab ties was dismissed as the usual remarks by an Arab leader under the circumstances. Officials said the remarks did not automatically mean the new regime was pro-Nasser.)

The overthrow of the Khalil regime came as Nasser and the Sudanese Government were trying to patch up long-standing differences over division of the Nile waters, their frontiers, and trade matters.

The Cairo press today carried predictions that Khalil would arrive in Cairo at the head of a delegation for official talks to settle these differences. Both Egyptian and Sudanese sources in Cairo were predicting success for the talks.

Whether Abboud's coup would help or hinder an agree-

Election Pointer: Some Lucky Dog Will Move Into White House

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—The ad man for an outfit which uses a hound as its trade-mark reports that it is practically certain the next President will be a dog lover.

Gov.-elect Nelson Rockefeller of New York, he notes, qualifies with ownership of a golden retriever named Sonny. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, of course, has Checkers.

His reporting on the 173 Democratic candidates now in the picture is necessarily sketchy, but "all men of both parties in the running for the biggest office in the United States," he insists, "are either dog lovers or dog owners."

What's more, he goes on, dog-owning is definitely presidential. Washington owned gun dogs, Cleveland had a beagle, Theodore Roosevelt a bull terrier, Wilson and Harding airdales, Coolidge a collie, Hoover a Norwegian elkhound, Franklin D. Roosevelt a scottie and Eisenhower a Weimaraner.

EAST GERMANY BACKS DOWN IN BERLIN DISPUTE, FREES AMERICAN

Ulbricht Offers to Deal 'Reasonably' With West If Russia Carries Out Threat to Bolt 4-Power Setup.

BERLIN, Nov. 17 (AP)—East Germany's Communist regime seemed today to be pushing the soft sell in an effort to coax recognition from the West.

After belligerently echoing Soviet Premier Khrushchev's demand that the United States, Britain and France give up their protective occupation of West Berlin, the East Germans made two conciliatory gestures:

1. They unexpectedly freed tourist George S. Milroy of Ann Arbor, Mich., after holding him for four weeks as an apparent pawn to force the United States to negotiate for his release.

2. East German party boss Walter Ulbricht announced in a speech that he was prepared to deal "reasonably" with the Western powers in Berlin if Russia makes good on its threat to withdraw from the present four-power occupation setup.

Traffic Control.

A Soviet withdrawal presumably would be followed by East German control over road, rail and barge traffic between West Germany and the Western Allied garrisons in West Berlin. The Western powers assume the Russians will retain control of the air corridors to Berlin and have said they would supply their sectors of the city by air rather than deal with East Germany.

Traffic between the city and West Germany flowed normally. The only interruption has been the detention of a three-truck United States military convoy Friday. The Americans brought the trucks back to Berlin rather than agree to inspection of their loads.

A jeep-led two-truck convoy, the first sent out of Berlin by the Americans since the Friday incident, went through the Russian checkpoint at Babelsberg today without incident.

In releasing Milroy at the West German border Saturday night, the East Germans dropped their demand that the United States open direct diplomatic bargaining for his freedom.

He was arrested by Russians on Oct. 17 near Neustrelitz, 70 miles north of Berlin, on charges of taking an unauthorized picture of military installations. He was turned over to the East Germans, who hinted he would be tried for spying.

The Russians answered American protests by saying the case should be taken up with "sovereign" East Germany.

Milroy, a 30-year-old salesman traveling on an East German visa, denied taking military pictures. He said he had asked a Soviet sentry for permission to photograph a decorated archway near a Soviet camp and decided not to take the picture when the soldier didn't answer him.

Milroy said in Bonn that he was not manhandled by his captors but was put "under terrific psychological pressure" in an unsuccessful attempt to force him to confess.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, Pravda charged that the Western powers, especially the United States, were turning West Berlin "into a powder keg" and were trying to use it as a center to "undermine the socialist countries."

The Soviet Communist party paper said the West would fail in efforts to find a basis for "preserving the occupation regime" in Berlin.

W. Berlin Reaction.

Willy Brandt, mayor of West Berlin, in a calming speech to his people last night, said he did not believe the Communists were ready to attempt a new blockade.

He said the Communists started their new tactic for two reasons—to choke off the stream of East German refugees into West Berlin and to injure West Berlin's economy.

The Communists want refugees to fear West Berlin is not a safe haven and want to alarm investors, he said, but "the effort to create unrest and insecurity among us can be regarded as shattered."

Khrushchev's get-out-of-Berlin declaration a week ago gave the East German Communists a late campaign talking point in yesterday's election of a new rubber-stamp Parliament. With only the Communist-approved slate presented, the only question was how many of the 11,000,000 voters the Reds could get to the polls to vote yes.

The Communists announced today that 97.1 per cent of eligible East Germans and 95 per cent of East Berliners voted.

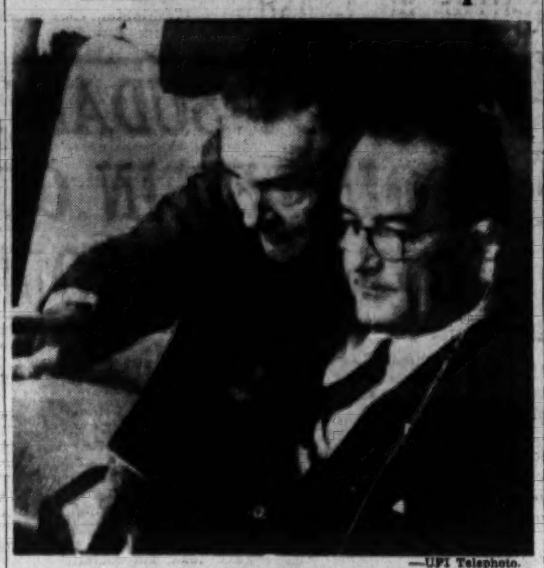

Residents of the Soviet zone voted to elect a Parliament. Residents of East Berlin voted only for a city assembly since four-power agreements place Berlin under a special status.

In the 1950 and 1954 elections, the Communists claimed more than 99 per cent indorsed their ticket.

In Washington President Eisenhower discussed Soviet threats against West Berlin with Ambassador David K. E. Bruce today prior to the American envoy's return to Bonn.

Bruce, the United States ambassador to West Germany, avoided reporters before and after his conference at the White House. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that this was not a meeting at which any decisions on American policy regarding Berlin were made.

Johnson Urges U.N. to Press For World Accord on Space

—UPI Telephoto.

AMBASSADOR HENRY CABOT LODGE fills role of guide for SENATOR LYNDON JOHNSON at meeting of United Nations Political Committee today.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 17 — Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, called on the United Nations today to assume the responsibility of leadership in promoting international co-operation in outer space. The Senate Majority Leader warned that failure "may only mean adding a new dimension to warfare."

In a statement as a recently-designated special adviser to the United States U.N. mission, made to the General Assembly Political Committee, Johnson stressed the bipartisan position of both the executive and legislative arms of the American government. The political committee is debating rival East-West resolutions on world control of space.

No U.S. Differences.

"On the goal of dedicating outer space to peaceful purposes for the benefit of all mankind, there are no differences within the government, between our parties, or among our people," Johnson said.

He declared it was the "opportunity now of the U.N. General Assembly to erase the accumulated differences of our earth's long and troubled history," and to inscribe "a proud new chapter of unity and peace" in dealing with the outer space.

Johnson urged the 81-nation committee to adopt the 20-nation resolution submitted last week by chief United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge. The Russian counter-resolution asks not only for international space supervision but also for agreements to prohibit nuclear weapons and abandonment of American military bases aboard.

Johnson described the 20-power resolution as an outline of "essential first steps," adding that "they are decisive steps and we cannot be unmindful of the precedents which, if established now, may influence or even control the longer steps ahead." The United States recognizes that all humanity is affected by what is accomplished in outer space, Johnson said.

Backing by Congress.

The Senator pointed out that "the full dimensions of the promise of space are now beyond our scope," and that at this stage the nations are explorers not "colonizers." To facilitate that exploration for the common benefit, he said, the "full membership of the Congress of the United States" joins in indorsing the 20-nation resolution.

"If nations proceed unilaterally, Johnson warned, "then their penetrations into space become only extensions of their national policies on earth. What their policies on earth inspire—whether trust or fear—so their accomplishments in outer space will inspire also.

"For nations given to aggression and war and tyranny on earth, unilateral success in space technology would only multiply many times over their threat to peace. Thus it is to the interest of nations dedicated to peace and freedom that the opportunity of space not be perverted to the end of aggression and control over earth by the aggressors."

Johnson stressed that outer space thus far is open to all and "unscarred by conflict," he urged U.N. members never to acknowledge "there are landlords" of outer space and thereby "corrupt this great opportunity for a joint venture into this new realm." He declared that "men who have worked together to reach the stars" are unlikely to resort to war.

Legacies of Distrust.

"Until now, our strivings toward peace have been heavily burdened by legacies of distrust and fear and ignorance and injury," Johnson said. "Those legacies do not exist in space. They will not appear there unless we sent them on ahead.

"To keep space as man has found it and to harvest the field of peace which it promises, we of the United States see once more one course which the nations of the earth may intelligently pursue," he concluded. "That is the course of full and complete and immediate co-operation to make the exploration of outer space a joint adventure."

Johnson is chairman of the Senate Committee on Outer Space and Astronautics and has devoted considerable time to the study of the subject. His appearance before the U.N. forcibly demonstrated the bipartisan foreign policy followed by the Administration, a spokesman for the United States mission asserted.

HUNGARIAN, 58, SENTENCED FOR EVASION OF WORK

VIENNA, Nov. 17 (AP)—A Hungarian court has sentenced a 58-year-old man to 20-month imprisonment for "evading regular work" since 1946.

The Budapest newspaper Esti Hirlap reported the verdict today.

The court said the man was "fit for work and in good health." It added: "It is not sufficient for a citizen to work only a few hours each day. Such an attitude is contrary to the constitutional duty of each citizen, who is held to do work according to his abilities. It is also contrary to Socialist morality."

BRITAIN QUITS 17-NATION TALKS ON FREE TRADE

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Britain today abandoned its two-year-old project for a 17-nation Free Trade Area in western Europe.

The decision of Prime Minister Macmillan's government came after France last Friday rejected Britain's concept as a basis of negotiation.

The virtual collapse of the 17-nation talks has come despite the personal intervention of Macmillan and Premier De Gaulle.

Macmillan met with some of his senior cabinet ministers this morning. Government informants said the British walkouts to an abandonment of the ambitious FTA scheme in its present form.

As a result, unless the leaders of non-Communist Europe act swiftly to introduce provisional measures, there is a threat the Continent may become the setting for a trade war next year.

Common Market Set.

On Jan. 1 six nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—go into business as a common market. They will lower internal tariffs. They will impose quotas on foreign good, and they will protect their own industries by building a common customs rate on imports.

Britain and other selling nations thus will stand to be squeezed out of old markets. They will have to consider reprisal measures which could touch off bitter economic, and eventually political, rivalries.

Britain's F.T.A. plan was designed to widen the workings and scope of the common market by bringing 11 other European nations into various hand-picked arrangements. It had been hoped that the F.T.A. also would begin Jan. 1.

French Objections.

France never liked the British idea. It has suggested that Britain should join the common market completely. France objected to some British reservations, such as barring the empire from the F.T.A. arrangements. The French say this would have left Britain in a privileged selling position throughout the globe-girdling commonwealth.

Some faint hopes were evident here that a live-and-let-live arrangement of sorts may yet be salvaged.

Such hopes evidently were based on French assurances, reportedly repeated by De Gaulle in a note to Macmillan Sunday, that France still is willing to discuss the general situation.

There is some talk, too, of an appeal for American intervention. United States Ambassador John Hay Whitney had a long talk today with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

FUGATE GIRL SAYS KILLER THREATENED HER

Could Not Have Escaped 'Without Anyone Getting Hurt,' She Claims.

LINCOLN, Nebr., Nov. 17 (AP)—Caril Fugate told a jury today her introduction to the Starkweather killing spree occurred when she arrived home from school to find Charles Starkweather standing behind a door, pointing a gun at her face.

She said she thought—and still thinks—she could not have escaped from him during the next six days "without anyone getting hurt." They fled from Lincoln six days after that, she testified.

Returning to the stand again in her own defense against a charge of murder, the girl, 14 years old then, described the sequence of events that occurred following an ordinary day of school last Jan. 21. She is accused of aiding him in one of the 11 killings attributed to him.

Slapped Me Across Face.

The girl said when she walked into her home and found Starkweather, 19, with whom she had broken up the preceding Sunday, confronting her with a gun "I thought he was crazy."

"He told me to sit down. I told him to put the gun down and quit acting so silly.

"He pushed me down . . . he slapped me across the face . . . three or four times.

"I asked where my family was. He told me to shut up and 'listen to me' and he would tell me.

"He said they were at this lady's place where he had his car. He said they knew too much.

'Scared Not to Believe Story.'

"He said if I did just what he said they'd be returned home safe."

The girl testified she did not believe his story at first but "after he insisted I believe him I was scared not to."

(United Press International said she testified that she never suspected her mother and stepfather, Betty and Marion Bartlett, and their 2½-year-old daughter, had been killed and their bodies left in the back yard.

(She said she was forced to accompany Starkweather as he went on to kill seven more persons.)

In the next six days, she said, Starkweather bound her with dish towel strips or ropes when he left the house for brief periods. Whenever persons came to the house he ordered her to get rid of them.

Several times she tried to make her plight known, once by whispering to Starkweather's sister that he was there, another time by saying "nasty things" about her brother-in-law, with whom she got along well, hoping he would realize something was wrong.

When Starkweather directed her to write a note to pin on the door saying the family was ill with the flu, the girl testified, she signed it "Miss Bartlett" thinking anyone would know that "Miss Bartlett" was her 2½-year-old half sister.

By United Press International.

The Fugate girl said authorities tricked her into returning to Nebraska by telling her she could testify against Starkweather. They did not tell her she would be tried herself, she testified.

"If I'd known that, I'd never have come back," she said.

Denies Sheriff's Testimony.

She denied the testimony of Deputy Sheriff William S. Romer into whose car she fled after the last shooting, that she told him she had witnessed the murder of her family.

Caril said Nebraska authorities told her "if I sign (the waiver of extradition to Nebraska) I'd be brought back to Lincoln and be a witness against" Starkweather. They never mentioned that she would be charged with murder, she said.

She admitted she hid out with Starkweather at the home of C. Lauer Ward Jan. 28, but denied any part in the killing of the wealthy couple. She said Starkweather told her when she awoke from a nap that he had stabbed Mrs. Ward to death and made her wash the blood from the knife.

He forced her to watch for Ward's return at the end of the day, she said, and she fled into a bathroom and shut the door until she heard the shot which killed the industrialist.

She found Ward moaning on the floor, heard Starkweather tell him to "Shut up," and then they fled, she testified.

Benson Economist Forecasts 5 to 10 Pct. Drop in Income—Construction Record Expected.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI)—A Department of Agriculture official said today all segments of the nation's economy except agriculture can expect significant growth in 1959.

Nathan M. Koffsky, chief of the department's farm income branch, said the total United States wage and salary income probably would increase substantially next year "although some part of the increase may be offset by some drop in farmers' income from farming."

Department economists have forecast a drop of 5 to 10 per cent in farm income in 1959.

In another economic sign post, the Commerce and Labor departments predicted building in the United States would increase next year to a new record high. The construction industry often is regarded as a bellwether of the economy.

The report forecast total spending of $52,300,000,000 on construction of all kinds in 1959, the first time such spending has passed the $50,000,000,000 mark.

Even allowing for price increases, this would be a new high in amount as well as in cost of construction. The predicted figure is 3 per cent above the previous peak of 1955 in construction volume.

Residential building and highways will account for four-fifths of the rise over 1958, the survey said. It predicted work would begin next year on 1,200,000 new homes and apartments compared with 1,170,000 estimated for this year.

The Department of Commerce reported today that personal income dipped slightly in October.

Temporary shut downs in several durable goods lines trimmed wage and salary payments.

The department said that the annual income rate stood at $387,500,000,000 for October, $300,000,000 below the rate for September.

For the first 10 months of the year personal income ran at a rate of $352,200,000,000 compared to $347,800,000,000 for the similar period in 1957.

Rise in Productivity Keeps Unemployment Up, Labor Says.

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 — Organized labor insists that a sharp rise in industrial productivity is keeping unemployment high and pushing corporate profits toward record levels.

The economic policy committee of the merged labor federation contends that higher wages, expanded Government aid to the idle and tax and credit reforms are necessary to restore full employment.

In its monthly report on economic trends, the committee calls the job lag a threat to continued recovery. The group is headed by Walter P. Reuther, president of the industrial union department of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The report coincided with publication of a plan by the federation's research chiefs for federal action to hold down prices. Among the specific suggestions was one for an agency to hold hearings before price rises went into effect in such industries as steel or automobiles.

The economic bulletin cited Government figures to support its assertion that factory output had gone up 9 per cent between April and September while the number of factory jobs rose only 2 per cent.

LABOR INDICATES 33 PCT. BOOST IN CAMPAIGN GIFTS

Projection from COPE Report of $570,000 Points to Total Aid of $3,500,000.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—The Committee on Political Education, united labor's political arm, will report direct campaign aid to favored candidates in this month's election of about $570,000.

This is about one third more than was spent in 1956. By projection the national total of labor's political spending in this year's elections would be about $3,500,000. COPE is not the only operating agency in the labor movement.

The $3,500,000 estimate takes no account of spending to defeat the so-called "right-to-work" law proposals. The reporting requirements of the federal corrupt practices act do not cover such activity.

It takes no account of the "education" part of COPE's program. That part—such as distribution of the voting records of members of Congress—may be financed by union dues. Direct partisan aid may be financed legally only with funds voluntarily donated by the union members or others.

The $3,500,000 figure was arrived at by finding the ratio between COPE's 1956 report for its national office and the aggregate reported by the Gore (Senate) Subcommittee on Campaign Expenditures for all labor political agencies.

This ratio was then applied to COPE's 1958 report to find the 1958 aggregate. The increase over 1956 is about 33 per cent.

The COPE report has not been filed yet. As of Oct. 30, it showed COPE contributions to candidates and political committees of about $570,000. The final report will be higher, but not much. Two years ago its final report showed spending of about $428,000.

COPE is supposed to get half the money raised in voluntary gifts by unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. The other half is spent by state and local political bodies.

It is apparent that COPE does not get a full 50 per cent of the affiliated unions' receipts, however, because some of these unions maintain their own political committees and make direct contributions to favored candidates.

These unions include the railroad groups, the United Auto Workers, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and many others.

Unions outside the federation, such as the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, give nothing to COPE, of course.

FLEMMING SAYS SACRIFICES ARE NEEDED TO GIVE AID TO SCHOOLS

Cabinet Official Cites Necessity in Speech at Founders' Day Observance at St. Louis University.

The American people must be willing to sacrifice in order to give maximum support to the nation's schools and institutions of higher learning, Arthur S. Flemming, United States Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said here yesterday.

Flemming spoke at St. Louis University during a Founders' Day observance in connection with the 140th anniversary of the university's establishment. He received an honorary degree.

"Are we so thankful for freedom that we are willing to make sacrifices in its behalf?", Flemming asked at a Civic Convocation in the university's gymnasium.

"As I ask this question, I am thinking not only of our willingness to make direct sacrifices in behalf of freedom," he said, "but I am also thinking of our willingness to put institutions with which we are associated in a position where they can make sacrifices in behalf of freedom."

'Merciless Spotlight.'

Flemming said faithless public officials should be exposed, but he added that a "merciless spotlight" also should be turned on well qualified citizens who refuse to serve in public office because of selfish reasons.

He said he was convinced the American people would make the necessary sacrifice to preserve freedom, and he looked to the future "with the conviction that the most glorious days in the history of mankind lie just ahead."

Academic goals of St. Louis University and its planned expansion east of Grand boulevard were discussed by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., university president. Twenty-five year service awards went to 17 faculty and staff members.

In addition to Flemming, honorary degrees were conferred on Msgr. John J. Butler, president of the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of St. Louis, and Luke E. Hart, St. Louis lawyer and Supreme Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus.

The two-day observance will be concluded this evening at a dinner at 7:30 o'clock in the Jesuit Community Dining Room, 221 North Grand boulevard. August A. Busch Jr., chairman of the Founders' Day Committee, will preside. Henry T. Heald, president of the Ford Foundation, will be the principal speaker.

Academic Goals.

Father Reinert said the academic goals of St. Louis University had not changed since the institution began in 1818 as an "Academy for Young Gentlemen" near the riverfront. These objectives he defined as the pursuit of excellence in education, a sound interpretation of the democratic principle of equality of opportunity and infusing students with the conviction they are not morally free to waste their mental abilities.

To meet the civic duty of providing educational opportunities for the rapidly increasing number of qualified undergraduate and graduate students seeking to enter the university, it is planned to expand the campus to the east of Grand boulevard, he said.

"Co-operating with the Slum Clearance and Urban Redevelopment Authority, we hope to purchase at its fair appraised value a substantial parcel of land east of Grand with the required commitment to make such a huge investment in land and new structures there as to establish the university forever as the western anchor of a new city within the old, destined to displace our mid-town slums, providing a healthy, bright, clean atmosphere not only for our own institution and for those of our faculty who may wish to live at a convenient distance from the center of their work, but also for all our fellow citizens," he said.

Science Center.

If the university is to meet another civic obligation — to provide and train a large number of men and women needed in the scientific and technological fields — it must expand, he said.

"This objective cannot be met unless we have the additional property east of Grand and the financial support to construct a science center comprised of a new engineering building for our Institute of Technology and a building for our department of chemistry and physics," he said.

Other civic obligations call for training persons in the non-scientific fields and inculcating all students with the important philosophical and spiritual values, without which "our modern community, no matter how glittering, will crumble and decay," he said.

The citation accompanying the degree of doctor of laws conferred on Msgr. Butler described him as "one of the pioneers in Catholic charities organizations in the United States" and pointed to his work with the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, the Frederick Ozanam Home for Men, St. Leo's Recreation Center, the Villa Maria Home and the Child Center of Our Lady of Grace. He also was cited for his role in establishing in Washington, D. C., the first program of Catholic education for the personnel of Catholic charities agencies.

Flemming was cited for his career as an educator, director of defense mobilization in World War II and as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. The citation stated he has "brought to his latest position of honor one of the longest and best records as a government administrator and personnel director."

Hart, called "a Christian gentleman who has benefited greatly his church, his country and his city," was commended for his role in securing the financial backing of the Knights of Columbus for micro-filming documents in the Vatican Manuscript Library for the new Pius XII Memorial Library on the campus.

Because of bad weather, Flemming was three hours late in arriving at Lambert-St. Louis Field and did not reach the speakers' platform until shortly before he was scheduled to make his address.

Awarding Medal at St. Louis U.

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Fleur-de-Lis Medal, St. Louis University's highest award, is placed around neck of MRS. HARRIET FROST FORDYCE of St. Louis by the VERY REV. PAUL C. REINERT S.J., university president, in ceremony yesterday.

Woman Donor, Eight Alumni Honored by St. Louis University

Mrs. Harriet Frost Fordyce of St. Louis, received the Fleur-de-Lis Medal and eight graduates of St. Louis University were given Alumni Merit Awards in Founders' Day ceremonies held at the university yesterday and today.

The Fleur-de-Lis Medal, highest award of the university, was presented to Mrs. Fordyce, 18 South Kingshighway, "for stewardship faithfully performed far beyond the call of obligation."

Mrs. Fordyce, daughter of Civil War Gen. Daniel Marsh Frost, was cited for her contributions to the department of psychiatry in the university's School of Medicine. In addition, Mrs. Fordyce in 1952, gave the university the Hazelwood property in St. Louis county, now used for retreat purposes.

Student Convocation.

At a student convocation this morning, eight graduates received the Alumni Merit Award and were praised for "exemplifying to an eminent degree in their daily lives the Credo of St. Louis University." The recipients were:

Bishop David F. Hickey S. J., 1908 graduate of the College of Arts and Sciences. Resigning his diocese in British Honduras for health reasons last year, he now directs the working men's retreat program at Shrine of St. Joseph, 1220 North Eleventh street.

Joseph V. Heffernan of New York, who received his B. A. degree in 1928. An attorney, he formerly was financial director of National Broadcasting Co. and Radio Corporation of America Communications. He resigned recently to return to private practice of law.

John M. Joyce Jr., class of 1930, and Leo J. Wieck, class of 1926, both graduates of the School of Commerce and Finance. Joyce is president of the New York Seven-Up Bottling Co. and Wieck is vice president, treasurer and a director of May Department Stores, St. Louis.

Dr. Otto F. Frietag, who received his dental degree at the university in 1915 and is now vice dean of the School of Dentistry; Albert C. Stewart of Cleveland, O., who received his Ph.D. in chemistry in 1951 and now is engaged in radiation chemistry research.

Attorney Civic Leader.

James S. McClellan, who received a legal degree in 1931, St. Louis attorney and civic leader; and Dr. Helmuth H. Kramolowsky of Webster Groves, 1911 medical graduate and now associate professor of clinical urology at the School of Medicine.

The Merit Awards were conferred by the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., university president, who discussed growth of the institution since its founding 140 years ago. He said scholarship required hard work, no matter how brilliant the student.

"St. Louis University," he said, "refuses to let her citizen-students indulge in which has been called the curse of American education — the cult of easiness.

"We know that what you young people want in the future is not merely security or comfort or luxury—though you will be glad enough to have these. What you want most is meaning in your lives."

WASHINGTON U. WILL BUILD DORMITORY

Work will begin within a month on a new 10-story student dormitory at Washington University School of Medicine, with cost of construction estimated at $2,252,785, Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley announced today.

The dormitory is expected to be completed in September of 1960. It will be on the south side of Scott avenue, east of the School of Medicine.

A general construction contract for $1,265,090 was awarded today to Woerman Construction Co. Jamieson, Spearl, Hammond and Grolock are architects for the building.

A federal loan of $1,400,000 was made to the university for the dormitory in August. The University is to provide $742,000.

More than $363,470 has been contributed to the dormitory fund by Medical School alumni, faculty and other donors. The present residence at 4949 Forest Park boulevard has accommodations for 50 students. The new dormitory will accommodate 295.

Architects said the building will be arranged much like a modern hotel. It will have a terrace in the front leading to the entry vestibule where a counter, switchboard, mail room, letter boxes and large lounge will be located.

A two-story gymnasium will be located on the first and ground floors. A terrace and garden court area will be at the rear of the building.

The ground floor will contain a snack bar and dining room, several music rooms, locker and shower facilities, a laundry, two fraternity rooms and a mechanical room. A sundeck, shuffleboard courts and a social room are planned for the penthouse floor.

A typical floor will include 15 single bedrooms, each with lavatory; two double bedrooms, with lavatory and two two-bedroom suites, each with private bath and adjacent sitting room.

Construction of the new David P. Wohl Jr. Memorial-Washington University Clinics will begin following groundbreaking ceremonies at 2 p.m. tomorrow, Dr. Edward W. Dempsey, dean of Washington University's School of Medicine, announced today.

The 12-story building, to cost $3,415,886, will be on the south side of Audubon avenue, east of the David P. Wohl Jr., Memorial Hospital. Ten of the 12 stories will be above ground. Alport Construction Co. was awarded the basic construction contracts, and the design is by the architectural firm of Murphy & Mackey.

Five floors will be used for relocation of the present Washington University Clinics, now in a building facing Euclid avenue in the Washington University-Barnes Hospital group. Most of the construction funds for the new building were in the form of a $2,000,000 donation from the Wohl Foundation.

DRIVER ROBBED OF $100 BY PAIR ON NORTH BOYLE

Fred Bailey, a roofer, 4050 Westminster place, was robbed of $100 last night by two men shortly after he parked his automobile in the 400 block of North Boyle avenue.

Bailey said one of the men displayed a revolver and said, "If you keep your mouth shut we won't have to use this." The other robber then took his wallet.

Mrs. Grace Smith, waitress at a restaurant at 1202 Russell boulevard, early yesterday gave $22 from the cash register to a man who held his hand in his pocket as though he had a pistol. He forced her to accompany him to Eighteenth street and Russell before fleeing, Mrs. Smith said.

BODY OF THIRD UTAH AIR CRASH VICTIM IS FOUND

Another Still Hunter—8 Had Bailed Out of Plane — 4 of Them Rescued.

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah, Nov. 17 (AP)—The body of one of two men missing after parachuting from a crippled airplane last Friday was found today. Air Force officials withheld identification pending notification of relatives.

The two men missing were Capt. Donald Liggett, Indianapolis, Ind., navigator, and Lt. Donald E. Born, Andover, N. Y., co-pilot.

The body was found by a helicopter crew in an area know as Magpie Flats in the mountains east of Huntsville, Utah.

Discovery of the body brought to three the number of known dead.

By United Press International.

Eight men had bailed out of the crippled plane Friday. Two died on a snow-covered trail which three companions broke to safety. The plane's pilot, the fourth known survivor, was found 10 hours after the bailout.

The bodies of M-Sgt. Joseph W. Reagan of Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., and S-Sgt. Ivan Probasco of Kearns, Utah, were found Saturday night after their three companions had stumbled to safety.

S-Sgt. Walter P. Bigelow of Ogden, Utah, flight engineer of the plane, said the five men met shortly after they parachuted to earth. Two had landed in trees and another in a creek, he said. Bigelow said the group huddled around a tree and voted to try to reach shelter because "if we're going to die, we'd just as soon die walking."

"None of us slept because we knew if we did we would'nt wake up," Bigelow said.

The other survivors were Sfc. C. R. Feltner, Hazard, Ky.; Cpl. Estes Copeland, Entiat, Wash., and Capt. Harry O. Blount, Great Falls, Mont., the pilot.

Blount, last to bail out of the crippled plane, joined the searchers for several hours after he was found, 10 hours after he hit the ground. Blount said the plane had lost an engine at 12,000 feet and was losing altitude when the crew and hitch-hiking passengers abandoned it. The plane crashed about 100 miles north of here in eastern Idaho.

Mountains Searched For Missing Cargo Plane.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Nov. 17 (UPI)—Searchers went into snow-covered mountains northwest of here at dawn today to resume a hunt for a missing cargo plane believed to have crashed with two California pilots and a cargo of high priority military freight.

Civil Aeronautics Administration officials at Denver said the captain of the plane was F. L. Courtell of Hayward, Calif., and that his co-pilot was Calvin Cloud of Napa, Calif.

The C-46 transport plane left Denver's Stapleton Airfield yesterday for Hill Air Force Base at Ogden, Utah.

27 Reported Missing in Arizona After Severe Storms.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 17 (AP) — Twenty-seven persons were reported missing in Arizona today as skies cleared after one of the most severe winter storms in years.

Sixteen persons, including three Boy Socuts, were missing in snow-covered southern Arizona mountain ranges near Tucson. More than 50 persons were snowbound at Mount Lemmon lodge in the Santa Catalina mountains near here.

In the north, 11 persons, most of them deer hunters, were reported missing. Most of them were expected to turn up as they make their way from automobiles stalled on back roads or rescue parties reach them.

Most of the concern is being expressed for the three thinly clad Tucson Boy Scouts lost in the south and two Phoenix hunters missing in the north.

INDIGENT COUNSEL HEARINGS SOUGHT BY HENNINGS

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. said today that he will ask the Senate Constitutional Rights Committee, of which he is chairman, to conduct public hearings on methods to guarantee adequate legal counsel to indigent defendants in federal courts.

"The right of counsel guaranteed in the Bill of Rights becomes meaningless if competent counsel is not really provided," the Missouri Democrat said.

Hennings said that he expected to have the co-operation of the bench and bar and all organizations interested in protecting the rights of individuals in the courts.

He said the problem is dealt with now through various methods. In some communities, he said, courts appoint counsel without fee; some permit payment of a nominal fee to lawyers assigned to cases and in others cases are referred to local bar associations and legal aid societies.

There are some cities which have a full or part-time public defender. Hennings said he was very much interested in a proposal by the District of Columbia Bar Association to establish here a full-time director and staff to provide legal representation for persons unable to afford private counsel.

TWO FOUND DEAD, EXHAUST FUMES APPARENT CAUSE

Victims Are Discovered in Auto Parked Behind One's Home in Collinsville.

Michael Krawczyk, of 109 Pleasant Ridge road, Collinsville, and Larry Starnes, of 317 Locust street, Edwardsville, were found dead in a car yesterday, apparently victims of carbon monoxide fumes.

The car was parked in the rear of Krawczyk's home. Madison county sheriff's deputies said the ignition key was in the on position, and the gasoline tank was empty.

Paul E. Froman, Madison county deputy coroner, said an inquest will be held, but no time has been set.

The victims were found by Krawczyk wife, Maureen. She told authorities she heard the car drive up about midnight Saturday. When her husband did not enter the house, Mrs. Krawczyk fell asleep. She said she awoke about 9 a.m. Sunday, looked outside and saw the two men seated in the car. She hurried out and found them dead.

Deputies found a hole in the muffler of the car. They said all the windows were closed.

Krawczyk, 41 years old, owned the Diamond Concrete Products Co., a concrete block plant in Collinsville. Before starting the company in June 1957, he was a partner in the K and K Concrete Products Co. of Collinsville. He had a 1-year-old son, Michael William.

Starnes, about 20, had been employed by Krawczyk for about a month. He had one child, and his wife is expecting another.

Cardinals

Catholic but various revolutions have turned against the church because of its former feudal landlords. Priests were mobbed and occasionally killed in what for a time were almost regular attacks.

The College of Cardinals had 70 members after the last consistory. The new appointments preserved its international character fostered by the late Pope Pius XII. Foreign cardinals are still in the majority, 46 members as compared to 29 Italians.

Vatican sources said it was significant that the pontiff had increased the strength of the Curia cardinals by six—five Italians and one Frenchman. The Curia is the main resident administrative body of the church but had lost some of its influence during the reign of Pius XII. Pope John apparently plans to delegate more authority to the Curia.

The youngest of the Cardinals appointed today was 45 years old—Bishop Julius Doepfner of Berlin, who was ordained in 1939. The oldest is Francesco Bracci, secretary of the Sacred Congregation of the Discipli of the Sacraments. He was 79 or Saturday.

Archbishop Montini of Milan topped the list of nominations and will have the honor in the consistories next month to thank the Pontiff on the behalf of all the new cardinals. He was reported to have turned down a red hat in 1953 as did Msgr. Tardini.

Both Archbishop Montini and Msgr. Tardini were then working in the Secretariat of State and said they wished to continue their duties there. In 1954 Pope Pius XII appointed Montini as archbishop of Milan while Tardini remained at the Secretariat of State.

Tardini, who is 70 and Roman born, has been attached to the Secretariat of State since 1929.

He was Pro-Secretary (acting) of State under Pope Pius XII following the death in 1944 of Cardinal Luigi Maglione, the last Secretary of State. After his election, Pope John re-confirmed Tardini as Pro-Secretary.

Number Is Not Fixed.

The full strength of the college of cardinals has been accepted as 70 for many years although there was no fixed number by church law. The number had dwindled before today to 52. The late Pope Pius XII created 56 cardinals in two consistories during his 19-year reign—32 in 1946 and 24 in 1953.

Normally a period of 40 days follows the announcement of the new appointments and the consistory to permit Cardinals living in the far reaches of the world to reach Rome. But modern air travel has changed that.

Some of the foreign cardinals who attended the conclave are still in Rome but most have returned to their sees.

List of Appointees.

Following is the complete list of new cardinals, by countries:

Italy—Giovanni Montini Archbishop of Milan; Domenico Tardini, also named Vatican Secretary of State; Giuseppe Fietta, papal nuncio to Italy; Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate in the United States; Carlo Chiarlo, apostolic nuncio; Carlo Confalonieri, secretary of the Congregation of Seminaries; Alfonso Castaldo, Archbishop of Naples; Alberto di Jorio, whose appointment previously had been published, and who acted as secretary of the conclave that elected Pope John; Francesco Bracci, secretary of the Sacred Congregation of Sacraments; and Francesco Roberti, secretary of the Congregation of the Council; Fernando Cento, nuncio in Portugal; Giovanni Urbani, Patriach of Venice; and Paolo Giebbe, papal nuncio in Holland.

Britain — William Godfrey, Archbishop of Westminster.

Germany—Julius Doepfner, Bishop of Berlin.

Austria — Francie Koenig, Archbishop of Vienna.

New Cardinals' Comment.

In Boston, Cardinal-designate Cushing said he was informed of his nomination last night. He said, "The people around here prayed me into it. I'm happy because they're happy."

In a formal statement, he expressed gratitude to the Pope for the honor and said that in voicing this feeling he included "the people of all religious faiths and their leaders" with whom he has always worked.

At Philadelphia, Cardinal-designate O'Hara, a former president of Notre Dame university, said, "I was numb when I first heard the news and I am still numb." He said he was notified of his selection last night.

In a formal statement, he said his elevation "is a grave responsibility. But, he said, "the courage demonstrated by His Holiness in accepting much greater responsibility helps me to overcome my personal reluctance."

Tiny Tot chatter
by Mary Holmes

POLITICS
We refuse to be drawn into political discussions, but you'd be surprised how many advertising men have suggested the slogan: "When it's time for a change, wise mothers vote for Tiny Tot Diapers."

BABY TALK
Ellen had just brought her daughter home from the hospital. The two grandmothers were there to supervise.
The two older ladies began to recall when their children were infants. One set was breast fed. The other children thrived on formula.
For one family there were silk and lace corded bassinets. The other set was housed in a dresser drawer. One grandmother was a devotee of the rocking chair. The other could recite nine reasons why rocking was bad for babies. They disagreed on just about every point but one: both mothers had relied on dependable Tiny Tot. And both beamed when Ellen reached for her Tiny Tot diapers when Evelyn needed changing.

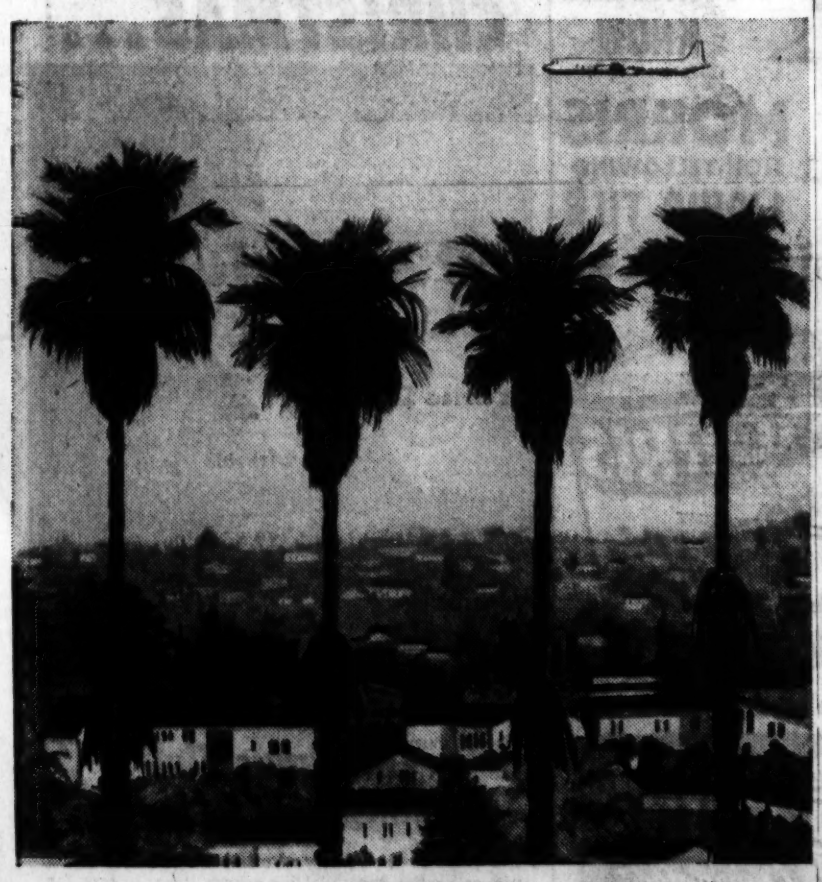

THANK YOU, DOCTOR
A customer told us she asked her doctor why he recommended Tiny Tot Diaper Service when she had her own washer and dryer. He said it was simple common sense.
"You can cook your own soap or bake your own bread. You can weave your own cloth, or, since you have a sewing machine, make your own clothes. But it takes up your time and it doesn't save you any money. The Tiny Tot people supply you with diapers for less than you can wash your own when you figure the cost of soap, water, electricity, and wear and tear on your equipment.
"Home washed diapers are likely to turn scratchy hard and raise havoc with your baby's tender skin. It's just not a sound investment, when you figure the cash outlay, to buy your own diapers. Lastly, it's a waste of your time and strength. The more time you have to lavish in loving care on your baby, the better off it will be.
"The Russian method of subordinating mother love for state duties may be fine for Communists but there just isn't any substitute for mother's loving care and attention."
What the doctor said, adds up to these facts: Dad saves money. Mother saves her strength and time and baby gets better care when Tiny Tot is on the job and for these kind words we say, "Thank you, doctor."
Our phone number is STerling 1-8282 and we deliver everywhere.

TRAINING DIAPERS
Tiny Tot Supplies—Training Pants and Night Diapers at very little cost. They help your baby acquire good training habits. Ask your Tiny Tot Salesman or phone ST. 1-8282 for details.

LETTERS:
Dear Miss Holmes: My husband insists on feeding my baby ginger ale and I think it's bad for her. What do you think?
Mrs. Waterman Blvd.
Dear Mrs. Blvd.: I've never heard of ginger ale being good for a baby but I wouldn't know. Here at Tiny Tot we specialize in taking care of baby's other end.

McConnaughey

mentioned that his law firm in Pittsburgh represented some clients in Ohio, "including the National Steel Corp. and two or three others."

McConnaughey's version of the conversation was that Reed said "he might be in a position to throw my son some law business. That was all."

He quoted Reed as saying that his Pittsburgh law firm sometimes did "business of $5000 or $10,000 with local counsel in the state of Ohio."

'A Shocking Thing.'

McConnaughey told the subcommittee: "I did not appreciate that kind of talk and I changed the subject." He added that this was "a shocking thing to me."

In response to Lishman's questions, McConnaughey testified Reed did not say anything specific about paying his son a retainer of $10,000 a year or any other amount. McConnaughey's son is associated with him in law practice in Columbus.

"The impression I got from the whole luncheon was that this man (Reed) was a puffer," the former chairman went on. He said Reed boasted about the importance of the men who were associated with him in Television City and said the firm was the best qualified of the five applicants for Channel 4.

"I did not consider what he (Reed) said to be in any respect an offer of a bribe," McConnaughey declared. If he had, he continued, he would have reported it immediately to the FBI and his fellow FCC members.

In addition to heading Television City, Reed is a partner in a Pittsburgh law firm which represents National Steel Corp. He is a director of the steel company. George M. Humphrey, former Secretary of the Treasury, is chairman of National Steel's executive committee.

McConnaughey confirmed today that while he was still on the FCC, the commission took an informal vote on the Channel 4 case. This was on June 3, 1957, the same day the oral arguments were heard.

The vote was a tie, with three commissioners voting for Television City, three for W C A E, Inc., another applicant, and one commissioner, T. A. M. Craven, abstaining, McConnaughey said. He added that he voted for WCAE.

WCAE, a Hearst corporation later merged with Television City, and the combined firm, which kept the name Television City, subsequently was awarded the license for Channel 4 by the FCC.

The three other applicants withdrew and were paid $50,000 each by Television City as "reimbursement for expenses."

Lee W. Eckels, secretary of Television City, has testified previously that he was told that McConnaughey, through an intermediary, offered to switch his vote to Television City in return for $50,000.

Five-Year 'Retainer.'

Eckels told the subcommittee he understood that the money was to be paid to the law association of McConnaughey, George O. Sutton and Robert D. L'Heureux, in the former of a $10,000 annual "retainer" for five years.

On July 1, 1957, the day after he left the FCC, McConnaughey entered into a Washington law association with Sutton. Also in the association was L'Heureux, who had been McConnaughey's assistant on the FCC.

Under terms of a secret agreement between the three men, Sutton promised to help McConnaughey and L'Heureux earn $160,000 in legal fees. Sutton had been a Washington lawyer for Television City, helping the Pittsburgh firm press its application for Channel 4.

Other witnesses have testified that they heard rumors that "the Hearst interests" were negotiating with McConnaughey before he left the FCC to pay him $20,000 a year for 10 years in return for his vote for WCAE.

Reed's Version.

In testimony last week, Reed gave a somewhat different account of the May 8 luncheon with McConnaughey. He said the chairman mentioned that he was going to resume private law practice when he left the FCC.

When he learned about McConnaughey's impending law association with Sutton, Reed went on, he "thought perhaps that he (McConnaughey) had been angling for some law business" during their luncheon talk.

McConnaughey acknowledged today that he may have spoken to Reed about his future plans, but he said nothing specific was mentioned.

"He might have asked if I was going back to law practice some day and I have have said what I always said, that's all I know how to do," McConnaughey asserted.

Noting that the House group had received "conflicting testimony," acting chairman John Bell Williams (Dem.), Mississippi, said he was "firmly of the opinion" that the Department of Justice should make an investigation.

Can't Pass Judgment.

Because of the conflicts in testimony, he added, the subcommittee "is not qualified to pass judgment" on the truth or falsity of the rumors that McConnaughey solicited money for his vote in the Pittsburgh case.

Williams and Representative Charles A. Wolverton of New Jersey, senior Republican member of the subcommittee, said the Justice Department should question Reed to find out where the rumors originated.

Williams has previously pointted out that most of the reports about the alleged bribe solicitation appeared to come from officers of Television City and their lawyers. He raised the question whether the rumors were deliberately spread in an effort to influence the FCC's decision in the Channel 4 proceeding.

Williams and Wolverton have urged the FCC to reopen the case and reconsider its award of the channel to Television City.

Earlier today, L'Heureux, told the subcommittee he had never heard of the Channel 4 case until FBI agents questioned him in September, 1957.

Denies Being Intermediary.

L'Heureux denied being the mysterious intermediary who supposedly telephoned Reed to relay McConnaughey's offer to switch his vote for $50,000.

Under terms of the agreement with Sutton, L'Heureux said, it would have been impossible for McConnaughey to share in any fees Sutton had received or would receive from Television City.

L'Heureux said McConnaughey told him last March that he had had lunch with Reed and that Reed "could swing some business" to McConnaughey's son, "perhaps $10,000 a year."

By United Press International.

L'Heureux said that if he were on a jury and all that the subcommittee has heard so far is all there is to hear he would "have some very strong suspicions" about Television City.

Before acting subcommittee Chairman John B. Williams (Dem.), Mississippi, gaveled for silence, L'Heureux said that a "five-year-old child" would have tried to find out the identity of someone soliciting a bribe for someone else.

The attorney said that if someone "calls you and says the chairman of the FCC" wants $50,000 for his vote and "you have 24 hours to reply," what do you do?

"You say 'Who are you?'" he shouted. "You don't just say 'thank you' and hang up."

Representative Charles A. Wolverton (Rep.), New Jersey, asked L'Heureux why someone would start the bribery rumor if it were not true.

"It could be just spite."

"It could be that somebody" said something about $50,000 regarding expense reimbursements and it was exaggerated.

"There is only one side that would benefit from the rumors," he said.

Urges FCC be Guarded Against 'Corruption of Pressure.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A plea that the Federal Communications Commission be insulated against "the corruption of pressure" — even by members of Congress — was voiced at a special FCC hearing today.

Edgar Holtz, FCC associate general counsel, expressed the hope in concluding arguments on the controversial Miami Channel 10 television case. The FCC wants award of the channel to Public Service Television, Inc., revoked on grounds that it was won through pressures and improprieties.

Holtz urged that Judge Horace Stern, holding a special hearing on the case, hand down a decision that gives "fair warning to anyone who attempts to meddle with the adjudicative process," whether it be an applicant, licensee, lawyer or even a member of Congress.

Paul Porter, attorney for Miami Beach radio station WKAT and Col. A. Frank Katzentine, said "the issue is that those who corrupted not be allowed to profit from the corruption."

But Porter said he thinks FCC members "do not need any iron curtain built around them." He said he believes they can discharge responsibilities without being subjected to pressure.

The question of pressures and improprieties is at the heart of the award of Channel 10 to Public Service Television, a subsidiary of National Airlines, Inc.

The case that already has led to a congressional investigation, the resignation of FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack under fire, and Mack's subsequent indictment and plea of inndecence on charges of conspiring to influence the award.

Stern, a retired justice of the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court, is now hearing final arguments on what the FCC should do about the award—revoke it, let it stand, or grant the channel to someone else. Stern will study all the arguments and briefs, then present a decision and recommendations to the FCC.

TOO EXPENSIVE TO CONVERT HIGHWAY 66, ABLEMAN SAYS

Use of United States Highway 66 as Interstate Highway 44 would be "prohibitively" expensive and also would deprive the St. Louis area of an additional expressway, Myer Ableman, urban area engineer for the Missouri Highway Department, said last night.

Ableman made his remarks in response to a question on the program, "Wake Up St. Louis," on Radio Station KXOK. He explained that interstate routes must have "fully controlled access," that is, there must be no access to them from adjacent property.

To convert Highway 66 into Interstate Highway 44 would require buying valuable commercial property along the highway, such as shopping centers. This would be very costly, he said.

BARRED ARTIST TRIES TO BLOCK PITTSBURGH SHOW

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—A lawyer said yesterday he would seek a court injunction to halt opening of the 1958 Pittsburgh International exhibition of contemporary painting and sculpture.

Louis Glasso said he would ask Allegheny county common pleas court to enjoin Carnegie Institute, sponsor of the exhibition, from awarding $13,750 in prizes. The exhibition is scheduled to open Dec. 5 and continue through Feb. 8 as part of the city's bicentennial celebration.

The Pittsburgh International is the oldest and largest event of its kind in the United States. It was founded in 1896.

Glasso said he would file the suit in behalf of Teofilo Magliocchi, a Pittsburgh artist, who tried to submit a painting but was told showings would be by private invitation only.

Gordon B. Washburn, director of Carnegie Institute's fine arts department, personally selected most of the some 500 oil paintings and sculptures in the show in a recent tour. No artist has more than one work in each medium.

MORE U.S.-FINANCED JETS DUE TO ARRIVE IN JORDAN

AMMAN, Nov. 17 (AP)—A United States Embassy spokesman said yesterday the next two of a dozen Hawker Hunter jet planes for the Jordan air force are expected to arrive Tuesday. The initial pair arrived last week.

The spokesman said the plan was to fly them into Amman in pairs over a period of about a month. The craft are part of the military aid program financed by the United States.

The spokesman said clearance had been obtained from the United Arab Republic for all 12 to fly over U.A.R. territory.

AMERICAN RELEASED IN SICILY, NO RANSOM

PALERMO, Sicily, Nov. 17 (AP)—The kidnapers of elderly bricklayer Alberto Castello of Long Island, N.Y., let their captive go apparently because they decided he was no ransom prize.

Castello, 72 years old, was pale and shaken by his week-long experience. He told reporters yesterday he just walked out of the kidnapers' cave when they failed to keep their daily schedule of visits to bring him food.

The naturalized American and his wife stuck close to police today waiting to return to the United States. They probably will leave tomorrow.

The couple came back to their native Sicily three months ago for a visit after 40 years in the United States. The red and cream Cadillac they brought with them apparently gave the idea that the Castellos had struck it rich.

Two masked men stopped them as they were driving in the car on a country road between Menfi and Campobello di Mazara a week ago Sunday and forced Castello to go with them. Four days later they sent Mrs. Castello a note demanding 5,000,000 lire ($8000).

Mrs. Castello told reporters she could not pay, that her husband was a $90 a month pensioner and that she had to work as a seamstress. The car, she said, was just "standard, the kind of car any American family might buy."

Castello said after his return he was blindfolded and made to walk a long time to a cave. His captors gave him blankets and stayed with him only the first day. Thereafter one of them visited him once a day to bring food.

When no one came Saturday, he walked out and kept walking until he came to a house. The people took him in and notified police.

31 UNIONS FOUND TO ELECT CHIEFS BY SECRET VOTE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI)—At least 31 of 111 labor unions elect their top national and international officers by secret ballot, a government survey showed today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which conducted the survey, said the 31 unions have a combined membership of 3,900,000—less than one-fourth the union members in the country.

But it said 26 other unions with more than 5,000,000 members reported they used ballots to select their top officials but did not specify if they were secret.

The 111 unions covered by the survey have a total membership of 17,641,000, about 96 per cent of the national total.

The bureau reported also that union officers' salaries, as specified in 75 union constitutions, ranged from $15,000 to $50,000. Most were in the $15,000-$20,000 category but three union chiefs get $50,000 annually.

OFFICER CATCHES SUSPECT AFTER PURSE SNATCHING

A man who said he was Leonard A. Evans, 4500 block of Washington boulevard, was captured by Patrolman Albert Simpson of the Lucas avenue district late Saturday night shortly after a purse snatching in the 3500 block of Lindell boulevard.

Simpson reported he saw Evans grab the purse of Miss Selma Hutchinson, 3853 Lindell, knocking her down. He pursued Evans to the basement entrance of a building in the 3500 block of Lawton boulevard. Evans denied stealing the purse, which was recovered in a parking lot through which he had run. It contained $10.

Mr. and Mrs. David Aronson, 316 North Newstead avenue, were treated at DePaul Hospital Saturday night for minor cuts suffered when they were grabbed by two men as they were walking in the 400 block of North Newstead. The robbers, Negroes, took Mrs. Aronson's purse, which contained $2. Aronson was struck on the head by one of the men.

U.S. AND RUSSIA WILL EXCHANGE ART OF THEATER

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 — A large-scale exchange of original theater art work between the Soviet Union and the United States will take place next year.

In the first such reciprocal art loan ever arranged between the two countries, the collections will make nation-wide tours for a year, probably starting in January or February. In the United States a list of distinguished patrons, headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Robert W. Dowling, will sponsor the exhibit.

The most noteworthy and historical paintings and drawings of settings and costumes for theater, opera and ballet in both countries are being selected. There will be 70 to 100 items in each exhibit. Most of the Russian designs already have been chosen. The American selections will be made soon by a committee headed by Harris K. Prior, director of the American Federation of Arts; Mrs. Norman Bel Geddes, publisher of Theatre Arts magazine, and Abris Silberman, president of the E. and A. Silberman galleries here.

RED CHINA PEACE FEELERS IGNORED, NATIONALISTS SAY

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 17 (UPI) — Vice President Chen Cheng said today Communist China has sent peace feelers to Nationalist officials but that the Nationalists have ignored them.

Chen, who is also premier, told the official Central News Agency, "Neither the Chinese government nor any individuals in it has paid any attention to this kind of Communist trick."

"From my 30 years experience combating the Chinese Communists I have learned that alternate use of force and negotiation has been their consistent strategy," Chen said.

Adm. Herbert G. Hopwood, commander of the United States Pacific fleet, meanwhile told newsmen here the Formosa straits crisis has relaxed but that the United States Seventh Fleet stands ready to defend Formosa. He left for Okinawa after an official visit here.

The Reds continued their alternate day bombardment today by opening fire on the offshore islands 30 minutes past By 6 p.m. 959 shells had fallen on Quemoy, Little Quemoy, the Tan islets and Kaoting Ting in the Matans.

JEWISH COUNCIL CALLS FOR EQUALITY IN EDUCATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Council of Jewish Federations called on Americans yesterday to remove "impediments to equality in educational opportunity, to the free exercise of the franchise and to equal access to the processes of justice" regardless of religion, color or national origin.

In a resolution ending the four-day twenty-seventh general assembly of the council, the delegates said:

"A succession of unhappy events has demonstrated that official disregard for law and the mandates of the courts creates an atmosphere that incites and sanctions irresponsible criminal acts such as bombing and dynamiting of synagogues, churches, schools and private residences. In a free society based on law, defiance of law is subversive of the very foundation of that society."

MUTILATED BODY IDENTIFIED AS THAT OF MISSING GIRL, 15

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—A nude, mutilated body, found by Boy Scouts in a Cook county forest preserve, was identified tentatively last night as that of a 15-year-old girl.

Dr. P. D. Grimes, an Elmhurst dentist, told authorities he was confident the body was that of Bonnie Lee Scott, of suburban Addison. She has been missing since Sept. 22.

PLANE FLIGHT TO FREEDOM

REGENSBURG, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—A Czechoslovak couple flew a sports plane over the Iron Curtain from Prague yesterday and asked for asylum in the West. West German investigators said the single-engine plane landed in a field near the village of Zeitlarn.

The refugees, both teachers, were taken into custody by police. Their names were not disclosed.

BUSINESS MAN BALKS BEFORE RACKETS GROUP

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—Benjamin Dranow, a Minneapolis (Minn.) business man and an associate of a convicted Teamsters union leader, invoked the Fifth Amendment today when questioned about a $1,200,000 loan his store obtained from Teamsters treasuries, including a welfare fund.

Dranow, appearing as a surprise witness before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, told the Senators he feared a truthful answer might tend to incriminate him.

"I rather think it would," Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, said. "You deliberately defied this committee, didn't you?"

Sought for Year.

Dranow, it was disclosed by obert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, had been sought for more than a year by committee agents:

"I have nothing but contempt for labor leaders who come in here and invoke the Fifth Amendment because they can't tell the truth about their union affairs," McClellan told the witness. "I feel the same way about those connected with business who can't give truthful answers about their affairs."

While unsuccessful in getting Dranow to discuss his personal and financial connections with Teamster leaders, Kennedy got into the record a rundown on Dranow's affairs, indicating that the union is Central States, Southeastern, Southwestern welfare fund still is owed $980,000 on the $1,200,000 loan and that Dranow's department store, the John W. Thomas Co., at Minneapolis, is in bankruptcy.

As Kennedy drew the picture, Dranow got his first loan of $200,000 in 1956 from the Teamsters at a time when his store was involved in a strike by the AFL Retail Clerks Union.

Intervention by Hoffa.

The strike was settled in 1957, Kennedy said, after intervention by James R. Hoffa, Teamsters operation, and Jack Bushkin, a business associate of Hoffa and a Detroit labor relations consultant. After the strike settlement, Kennedy said, th eTeamsters lent Dranow an additional $1,000,000.

Kennedy also called attention of the committee to statements suposedly reflecting Dranow's net worth. In 1953, Kennedy said, Dranow's net worth was $371,876 and in 1957 it had risen to $1,402,000.

"Did your business ever get any benefit out of that loan or was it a scheme to siphon funds out of the welfare funds into the pockets of certain individuals, including yourself?" Dranow was asked by McClellan.

He declined to answer.

He also balked at telling whether he gave Mrs. Alice Brennan, wife of Owen (Bert) Brennan, of Detroit, an international vice president of the Teamsters and close associate of Hoffa, a fur jacket purchased for $2000 and charged to the department

The store's bankruptcy petition, Kennedy said, shows that in one year Dranow took $116,000 out of store funds in the form of a loan.

Kennedy sought to show that the busines man, who said he now lives in Beverley Hills, Calif., was a companion on trips to Florida of Gerald Connelly, Minneapolis Teamsters leader, who has been convicted of extortion and placing dynamite in the homes and automobiles of fellow union officers.

Paid Attorney Fees.

The counsel said that in 1956 Dranow paid out $2500 for attorney fees for Connelly and later was reimbursed from Teamster funds. Connelly's son worked as an assistant manager at Dranow's store under an assumed name, Kennedy said.

"Do you want to leave the impression that you are in with these labor racketeers," McClellan asked the witness. "There is a suggestion that you are worse than they are. Do you want to answer that."

The witness again invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Kennedy said that since Dranow vanished in July 1957, committee investigators had trailed him to Seattle, Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Washington, and Beverly Hills and that during this period Dranow was in contact with Hoffa and Brennan, though the agents couldn't catch up with him.

Kennedy said that Dranow appeared voluntarily before the committee today.

SUPREME COURT WILL NOT REVIEW ST. LOUIS TV RULING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 — The United States Supreme Court today refused to review a case in which St. Louis Amusement Co. sought to appeal a decision by the Federal Communications Commission approving two television channel transfers in St. Louis. The appeal had been dismissed by the United States Court of Appeals here last July.

Effect of the Supreme Court action was to uphold the lower court's ruling that St. Louis Amusement Co. had no right to protest against the FCC's decision transferring the license for Channel 4 from KWK, Inc. to Columbia Broadcasting System, and CBS's construction permit for Channel 11 to 220 Television, Inc.

St. Louis Amusement Co. contended that the FCC should consider its protest against the actions taken on grounds that the concern had once been an applicant for Channel 11. The Court of Appeals here agreed with the FCC, that St. Louis Amusement Co. had no standing in the case, and the Supreme Court today declined to review the matter.

WILDCAT STRIKE BY 72 ENDS AT KREY PACKING CO.

The wildcat strike at Krey Packing Co., 2100 Bremen avenue, has ended and production will be resumed as soon as possible, management and union representatives said in a joint statement today.

Seventy-two members of Local 2, Operating Engineers, walked out of the plant Friday afternoon and established a picket line. Most of the plant's 1000 other employes refused to report to work. The walkout followed disciplinary action taken against a pipefitter who was said to have insulted a time study man.

A company spokesman and John Schobel, attorney for the union, joined in the settlement statement. It said that the maintenance men had voted to return to work and remove their picket line. There was no indication of how the dispute had been settled. Earlier, a union official said the work stoppage was unauthorized.

Russia plans to supply India with industrial equipment, power installations, oil drilling machinery, rolled ferrous and nonferrous metals, tractors and equipment for the coal industry, irrigation and agriculture. India will export tea, spices, hides, wool, tobacco, vegetable oils and some industrial goods.

FLEES UNDER MORTAR FIRE

DARTMOOR, England, Nov. 17 (AP) — Dartmoor prison's shortest inmate—5-foot Ronald Butt—was back behind bars yesterday after one of England's wildest prison escapes.

The 23-year-old convict, serving five years for housebreaking, slithered through a kitchen window Friday night, clambered over a 20-foot wall and dashed across a Royal Marine mortar range during firing practice. Police stood by while the marines completed the mortar barrage, giving Butt time to escape. He was recaptured Saturday night after smashing up a car in a chase.

WEIGHTED DOWN BODY RECOVERED FROM RIVER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 17 (AP)—Skin divers recovered from the Missouri river yesterday a body weighted down by several hundred pounds of old automobile parts. It was identified as that of John T. Anders, 37 years old.

Police said Charles L. Wilson told them he accidentally shot Anders in an argument last Thursday. Wilson was quoted as saying he and Mrs. Ruth Trumbo, Arnold J. Lucas and William Ed Shelton then weighted the body and threw it in the river because they were afraid police would not believe their story.

Shelton and Wilson operate a garage where the argument took place. A search was begun after Anders's brother, Roy, reported him missing and told police of rumors that he had been killed.

U.S. EMBASSY SAYS RUSSIAN TRIED TO BUY INFORMATION

VIENNA, Nov. 17 (AP) — A United States embassy spokesman said today a Russian agent offered to pay "huge sums" to diplomat Donald Ultan for information. He added that Ultan "acted with the complete confidence of the embassy" when he went to meet a Russian agent several weeks ago. Ultan is from the embassy's communications department.

Vienna police announced Friday night they had questioned two persons who "behaved suspiciously" when they met outside Vienna's Sportshall, but both had diplomatic passports and were not detained.

An embassy spokesman then announced Ultan had been approached by a Russian diplomat but did not say what the Russian wanted. The Austrian news agency APA has said the Russian was "Mihail S."

"We can't say what the Russian wanted, but Mr. Ultan informed the embassy authorities of his action and acted with our complete confidence," the embassy spokesman said.

He added that when Ultan first met the Russian last spring the Russian pretended to be a Belgian business man. They met several times socially, the embassy spokesman continued, but the agent did not reveal his true identity until they met at his request in front of the Vienna Sportshall.

YOUTH WHO TOOK RADIUM UNDER STUDY BY DOCTORS

TYLER, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—Johnny Pierce, 19 years old, remained in a hospital today as doctors tried to determine what effect handling a radium needle will have on him. Doctors feared he may suffer severe after-effects.

Pierce, an amateur scientist, told a doctor last week he had been exposed to radiation. At first he said he was exposed to cobalt 60, which would have meant he spread a trail of radioactivity around this east Texas town.

But Atomic Energy Commission investigators said Pierce's story did not fit the evidence. Pierce then admitted taking a radium needle from a hospital where he worked as a student X-ray technician. Although the radium may have injured Pierce, officials said he could not have spread that type of radioactivity.

HENNINGS IS RECUPERATING FROM ILLNESS IN JAMAICA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, is spending two weeks in Jamaica, in thhe Caribbean, recuperating from an attack of bronchial pneumonia suffered in Kansas City late last months, his office announced today.

An assistant said Hennings was told by his doctor that a visit to a hot climate would hasten his recovery.

Storms

The post office at Moundville was blown down and many other buildings damaged.

The winds then struck in Nevada, blowing down a garage. Workers in the garage escaped injury by diving under automobiles and trucks. From there, it struck Marmaduke Park, west of State Hospital No. 3, and uprooted many trees. The old Union School, converted into a residence, was demolished but the occupants escaped injury.

Two persons suffered injuries from flying glass shattered when winds with speeds up to 85 miles an hour hit a Joplin (Mo.) restaurant. Most of the 28 customers and three employes in the cafe escaped injury. The strong winds hit several other nearby Missouri towns.

Tornado at Smithville.

Part of Smithville, Mo., was under water today after a small tornado struck farm areas near the town, causing considerable property damage. The tornado which struck about 12:30 p.m. and lifted the top floor from a two-story farm home, demolished a barn at the same locatino, overturned two trailers at Barton acres, a trailer park, near Smithville.

In addition to the tornado at Sandoval yesterday funnel clouds were reported at Ava and Tamaraca, Ill., and west of Maryville, in northwest Missouri. Farm buildings were damaged and television aerials blown down.

Damage at Sandoval.

At Sandoval, Police Chief Harold Wilkerson reported Vernon Nicholson, 74 years old, suffered face lacerations and a neck injury when his two-room cabin was demolished by a twister.

Across the street at the home of D. H. Gumm a house trailer was turned over, a large tree fell on an automobile and the porch, roof and chimney of the Gumm house were badly damaged.

Witnesses said the funnel then lifted but dropped again and blew down a furnace at a zinc smelting plant on the edge of town.

Centralia Home Damaged.

At Centralia, seven miles south of Sandoval, high winds damaged a house under construction and blew down television aerials.

Chief damage in Missouri was on the farm of Carl Grahl Jr., 10 miles west of Maryville, where a barn roof, corn crib and hog sheds were damaged. A picture window in the Grahl residence was blown out.

Windstorms were accompanied by torrential rains in some areas. At Fremont, Mo., 140 miles southwest of St. Louis, 11 inches of rain fell in slightly more than one hour.

COUNTY SEEKING A WAY OUT OF HOUSING CRISIS

St. Louis County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews said today it appeared to him that the Jefferson Barracks housing project will have to be abandoned because of inadequate school facilities.

He announced that a delegation would confer with federal officials in Washington Friday, seeking a way out of the financial dilemma facing the county in event the project is abandoned.

"Th. county does not have the money to repay the federal government (for funds advanced on the project), or enough money to assume the construction contracts," Matthews said.

"We're trying to find out what they can do to help us out of this dilemma, because it appears this housing project has to be abandoned."

Matthews previously had been neutral in the fight waged against the project by numerous opponents living near the site. The County Council last month voted a resolution asking the St. Louis County Housing Authority "to order all work stopped" and seeking a federal study of requirements for residence in the project and of school facilities available in the area.

Federal Law Cited.

Federal Government officials have said that to halt a housing project already started, provisions of Public Law 176, the so-called "Phillips Amendment," must be invoked.

The law provides for halting such a project by a vote of the people of the community, or by action of the community's governing body. It also provides negotiations must be undertaken toward repayment of "all costs" if the project is abondoned.

County officials have said previously that $154,698 in federal funds have been advanced on the $3,025,225 project. In addition, contractors have started grading the 85-acre site. A spokesman for the contractors said last month that materials ordered and work performed would have to be paid for. A total of $1,500,000 in subcontracts had been let to 14 contractors, it was learned.

Delegation Members.

Matthews said the delegation going to Washington would include County Supervisor-elect James H. J. McNary; Francis M. Barnes III, former chairman of the Housing Authority; John J. McAtee, the Authority's attorney; County Counselor Robert Finot, and three councilmen appointed by the County Council to investigate the controversy; Maurice M. Abramson (Dem.), Second district; Richard A. Hetlage and John F. Molloy, Republicans, of the Fourth and Seventh districts, respectively. Barnes was chairman of the Authority when the now-disputed housing project was planned.

"It looks like the Housing Authority, the Federal Government and the county made a mistake relative to the educational facilities available for the project, and the amount of money that would be needed for the schools," Matthews said.

Opponents of the project have charged that school facilities would not be adequate to accommodate the increased school population originating in the housing project. Barnes has branded the argument as "another phoney issue fabricated from half-truths and deception."

Matthews said the county delegation would confer in Washington with Albert M. Cole, administrator of the federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, and Charles J. Slusser, commissioner of the Public Housing Administration.

Cole earlier this month, in reply to a letter from United States Representative Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), Webster Groves, said the federal agencies have no power "either to delay or terminate" construction of the project.

Curtis expressed sharp disagreement with Cole's statement and said he would ask the federal General Accounting Office to investigate the project. Curtis declared there is evidence indicating the County Housing Authority has made "fraudulent misrepresentations" to the Federal Government.

NO INDICATIONS THIS YEAR OF ASIAN FLU EPIDEMIC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI)—Public Health Service officials said today there is "no indication yet" of a recurrence of the Asian flu epidemic that afflicted an estimated 50,000,000 Americans last fall and winter.

"We have been watching closely," said Dr. Carl C. Dauer, an authority on influenza epidemics, "and so far there have been none of the intense localized outbreaks which usually signal the start of an epidemic."

Even without an epidemic, there doubtless will be plenty of flu cases between now and spring. There are every winter.

So Dr. Leroy G. Burney, surgeon general, thinks it would be prudent for some people to get flu shots as soon as possible. He said the best thing to do is to consult your personal physician on the advisability of shots.

Nkrumah Takes on New Post.

ACCRA, Nov. 17 (AP) — Prime Minister Nkrumah of Ghana announced yesterday he is taking over the job of Minister of the Interior. He already is the Defense Minister. Krobo Edusei, former Minister of the Interior, is to be Minister of Communications.

DOCTRINE HINDERS RED ASTRONOMY, BRITON SAYS

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP)—A leading British astronomer said last night the Soviet Union is building the world's most elaborate system for astronomical research, but Communist thinking could prejudice the whole project.

Russian astronomical research "is likely to exceed anything else in the world during the next 10 years," said Prof. A. C. B. Lovell, director of the Jodrell bank radio telescope.

"At the same time this is accompanied by a subtle intellectual hindrance," he added. Lovell, who returned recently from a Soviet tour, gave one of the British Broadcasting Corp's. annual Leith lectures.

He said that for 2000 years there has been a relationship between religious doctrine and astronomical theory. He said there was a Soviet bar on the translation of many books dealings with the expansion and origin of the universe because of the religious connection. He said this bar strengthened his belief that political philosophy is preventing Russian astronomers from studying the fundamental problems of the universe.

Taxpayer Who Neglected to Give Address Receives $36 Refund

Sherman Brooks Jr., 1409 North Euclid avenue, was the first person to qualify for a refund today on the Internal Revenue Service's list of "lost" federal income taxpayers.

Brooks, who will receive a $36 refund on his 1957 taxes, explained he had neglected to give his address when he filed his return.

He is one of about 1600 taxpayers entitled to refunds. Their names are being published by the Post-Dispatch.

Persons claiming refunds should file applications at the basement office of the revenue service in the Federal Building, Twelfth and Market streets. They should have some form of identification, preferably a copy of the tax return and social security card.

Office hours are 8:15 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Telephone inquiries will not be accepted, but persons who cannot appear in person should send a letter addressed to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Refund Section, at the Federal Building. The letter should be signed by the taxpayer and, in case of joint returns, by both taxpayers to permit handwriting comparison.

2 COUNTY MEN ARE KILLED IN AUTO CRASHES

Two men were killed yesterday in separate accidents in the St. Louis area when they were thrown from automobiles in which they were riding.

They were:

John Lohman, 62, 412 U.S. Highway 66, St. Louis county.

Mrs. Ordell Johnson, 2720 Benton street, died today at City Hospital of injuries suffered Friday night when a car in which she was a passenger crashed into a light standard in the 2200 block of Franklin avenue. She was 33 years old.

The driver was James Newberry, 1388 Burd avenue. Police said Newberry was attempting to pass another car when his vehicle skidded on streetcar tracks and went out of control.

The Highway Patrol reported that Rathert was in the front seat of an automobile being driven west in Lindbergh boulevard by Donald Lehman, 6921A South Broadway, when the accident occurred.

Lehman's car collided with an eastbound automobile being driven by Miss Lorraine Fowler, 5745 Enright avenue, Patrolman Russell Been reported that Lehman's car skidded on a curve and into the path of the other machine. It was raining at the time of the accident, which occurred half a mile east of Highway 21.

Chest Injured.

Rathert was thrown from the car by the impact. He suffered chest injuries and was pronounced dead at St. Louis County Hospital. Miss Fowler suffered lacerations of the face.

A passenger in her car, Miss Stella Harrison, 5745 Enright avenue, suffered deep facial lacerations which required 67 stitches. They were treated at St. Louis County Hospital. Miss Harrison was transferred to Incarnate Word Hospital.

Lehman and two passengers in his car also were injured. They were Mrs. Clara Schulte, 836 Karlsruhe place, Lemay, and Mrs. Ruby Weinacht, 9920 Lark avenue, Lemay. They were treated at St. Louis County Hospital and released.

They were reported on the way to memorial services at the Legion Hall in Creve Coeur. Lohman was booked for not having a driver's license.

Lohman was driving west on Highway 66 preparing to make a left turn into his driveway when his car was struck by an eastbound automobile driven by Sigmund M. Bass, 70, an attorney, 4200 Flora avenue.

No Chance to Stop.

Bass said he was in the curb lane with two Boy Scouts, who had been on a scouting trip, as passengers. He said the other car suddenly appeared in front of him on the crest of a hill. He said he did not have a chance to stop.

Lohman was thrown to the pavement. His car went over an embankment and plunged into a ditch. His wife, Mrs. Edna Lohman, escaped injury. Occupants of the other car were not injured.

Harold Harper, of Carlinville, Ill., was injured and was trapped for two and a half hours in the cab of his tractor-trailer yesterday as the result of a collision with an automobile on U.S. Highway 67 about half a mile north of U.S. Highway 66 in north St. Louis county.

Driver of the automobile was Thomas Adams, 917 Belt avenue, the Highway Patrol reported. Harper suffered a fracture and dislocation of the left wrist and cuts, it was reported at St. Louis County Hospital. Adams suffered lacerations on the forehead and left elbow.

The northbound tractor-trailer plunged down a 12-foot embankment and hit a culvert. The cab was crushed against the culvert by the weight of the trailer.

Harper was pinned under the wheel and dashboard. Highway patrolmen, St. Louis county police and officers of nearby communities finally were able to remove him after cutting through the roof and floor of the cab.

Charles Edwards, 61 of 705 North Seventy-first street, East St. Louis, was seriously injured yesterday when the automobile he was driving south on Kingshighway in Washington Park was struck at Bunkum road, police reported. Edwards suffered head injuries and was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

Washington Park police said the driver of the other car was Dennis C. Korando, 514 North Forty-eighth street, East St. Louis, who was eastbound and failed to stop for a stop sign. Korando said it was raining at the time and visibility was poor.

TWO ESCAPE WHEN CAR IS SWEPT INTO CREEK IN STORM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PIEDMONT, MO., Nov. 17—Two St. Louisans on a deer hunting trip escaped injury yesterday when their automobile was swept into a flood-swollen creek near here in a heavy rainstorm. They lost the car and all of their equipment.

Chester Hall, 3618 Junista street, and Woodrow T. Hunt, 3947A Folsom avenue, drove into McKenzie creek on a road between Clearwater dam and Piedmont.

Hunt, 45 years old, swam out of the creek and summoned help. More than two hours later, Hall, 27, was found by a rescue party one mile downstream clinging to a tree limb.

WHITE COLLAR STRIKE SETTLED AT CHRYSLER

DETROIT, Nov. 17 (AP)—Picket lines were disbanded and Chrysler Corp. resumed production of 1959 model cars today after agreement with the United Auto Workers on new contracts for white-collar workers.

Although only 8000 of Chrysler's 75,000 UAW members were on strike, production and maintenance workers stayed away from their jobs, practically closing down operations for almost a week.

The strike idled 61,000 workers and closed 32 plants. Employes began returning to work on the first shift today.

Most of Chrysler's car-making facilities are in Detroit where 50,000 of the workers are employed.

Chrysler said negotiations on the white-collar contracts dragged past the others because the union's demands were higher. The UAW claimed that greater inequities existed among these workers and further negotiations were necessary.

UAW President Walter Reuther came out at the end of a 34-hour bargaining session and said the new agreement "represents very substantial progress, particularly in the area of job security of this group of Chrysler workers."

Improvements in job security provisions cover seniority, job transfer, and protection against displacement of workers by machines, Reuther said. He said the agreement provides for adjustment of wage inequities.

Chrysler Vice President John D. Leary said the new agreement would provide an increase of $2.53 a week, 3 per cent or whichever is larger, in salaries, would incorporate part of cost of living benefits into base salaries, and would institute a new severance pay plan.

Under the old contract, salaries of white-collar workers ranges from $319 a month for messenger boys to $903 a month for project design leaders.

POLICE INSPECTORS FIND PATROL VEHICLES UNCLEAN

Field inspectors for the St. Louis Police Department have found fault with the housekeeping in patrol vehicles.

That was the most serious weakness turned up by the crews in the first month after their creation, Police Inspector James Thompson said in an article in the current issue of the St. Louis Police Journal. Thompson said the inspectors found such things as cigar boxes, old newspapers, magazines and rags in the vehicles.

For the most part, the inspectors had only good reports to make. Four teams were set up to conduct inspections and a training program and to listen to complaints and suggestions of individual officers.

Parliament Postponed.

Khalil had postponed the scheduled opening of Parliament's from today until Dec. 8.

The leaders of two of the three main political parties in Parliament had spent the last week in Cairo holding what the Egyptians described as "successful" preliminary negotiations on "all outstanding questions."

One of the two was Mahdi, leader of the Peoples Democratic party and commerce minister in the coalition cabinet The other was Ismail Azhari, leader of the opposition National Unionist party who had publicly stated that he expected to be able to bring down the government shortly.

Like other military chiefs who have seized power in the Middle East and Asia recently, Abboud accused his country's political leaders of corruption and dissension which had hamstrung government operations. His radio statement said:

"You should all know to what extent our country has reached in corruption. It has reached into government machinery and all authorities without exceptions. All this is due to a political crisis which stands between all political parties."

"As to the U.A.R.," he said, "we shall do our best to improve relations between the two countries, to solve all pending problems and remove fabricated dissension."

Had Biggest Bloc of Seats.

Khalil became prime minister in July, 1956 when his Umma party formed a coalition with the People's Democratic party to bring down the old cabinet of pro-Egyptian Azhari.

In elections last spring the Umma won the biggest bloc of seats in Parliament and Khalil again formed a government.

There has been no individual head of state or president in the Sudan, but a sovereignty council made up a elder statesmen has functioned pending the drafting of a constitution.

Abboud is the second man to hold the office of commander-in-chief since Sudan became independent Jan. 1, 1956. He commands a fighting force estimated at 10,000 to 12,000 men, British trained and British armed, which has high morale and whose fighting capacities are held in high regard.

Career Officer.

Abboud, 58-year-old career officer, never before dabbled in politics, Sudanese embassy officails said. His military service dates back 40 years.

The coup leader was born Oct. 26, 1900. He was graduated from the old military college in Khartoum July 1, 1918. He has made several trips abroad, but never received military training outside the Sudan. He was promoted to general Jan. 1, 1957.

In World War II, when the territory was still under joint rule of Britain and Egypt, Abboud served with the Sudan Defense Force in the Eritrean, Ethopian and Libyan campaigns. In these the Sudanese fought brilliantly against Axis forces that usually outnumbered them.

A comrade in arms in those campaigns was Brig. Abdullah Khalil, the ousted premier.

Visitors to Cairo from Sudan last July, soon after the military coup in Baghdad that overthrew Iraq's pro-Western royal government, said a pro-Nasser revolt had been attempted in Sudan, too, but had been nipped by the authorities. No details were ever obtained.

Besides the coups in Sudan and Iraq, military governments in recent weeks have taken over in two Asian countries, Pakistan and Burma. Thailand's military government also recently abolished the Parliament in that Asian kingdom.

Nasser's Plans for Nile.

Improved relations between Sudan and the U.A.R. have become urgently necessary for Nasser because of his plans to push work on the Aswan high dam on the Nile, for which Russia has agreed to lend him $100,000,000.

The dam would flood parts of Sudan territory, and Khalil's government had balked at agreement with the Egyptians on compensation for the flooded lands and on division of the Nile waters which would be impounded.

The Sudanese Government had plans of its own to build irrigation works farther up on the Blue Nile. Khalil has been accused by the Nasser government of violating the 1929 agreement granting Egypt 48 per cent of the Nile's water and Sudan 5 per cent. In answer the Sudanese Government abrogated the agreement.

Khalil had several times stood up to Nasser—last year particularly in a border dispute which brought troops of the two neighbor countries within rifle shot of each other.

Lately Khalil has been under stiff pressure from political groups within his own coalition government to move closer to Cairo.

RADIO, TV PERFORMERS EXTEND STRIKE DEADLINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (UPI)—Performers on major radio and television networks were at work today under a truce agreement postponing a threatened strike to at least midnight tomorrow.

The networks involved are the National Broadcasting Co., the Columbia Broadcasting System, the American Broadcasting Co. and the Mutual Broadcasting System. Substantial progress was reported at the close of the negotiation session yesterday.

Tussy Beauty Diet

10.00 plus fed. tax — 12.00 value

Tussy's Beauty Diet is a marriage of two new products. One, the new Beauty Diet Cream to aid from without—second, the new Beauty Diet Vitamin and Mineral Capsule to aid from within.

Why the new Cream? The very air we breathe may rob the moisture from our skin. And age itself may strip away natural protective oils. Beauty Diet's new Cream is a combination of active beautifiers including moisturizers, polyunsaturates, rich oil blends, hormones and Royal Jelly. Your skin will never seem to dry out. Lines and crows feet become less conspicuous.

Why the Capsule? The Vitamin and Mineral Capsule in Beauty Diet is a dietary supplement, an exclusive formulation made according to pharmaceutical standards to help you overcome a deficiency you're not even aware of! This deficiency may be due to an imbalance in your diet, or to your system's reduced ability to utilize vitamins from food. Taken once a day, every day, the capsules can give you a new vitality, a new sense of well-being.

Why not now? Beauty Diet costs so little for a full thirty-day treatment.

Talks on Tax to Assist County Police Imperative, McNary Says

St. Louis County Supervisor-elect James H. J. McNary said today he believed it "imperative" that the possibility of a special tax to finance county police operations be discussed with state legislators.

"The county cannot get sufficient funds from present sources to pay for operations of the police department, which must expand as the county's population and police protection needs increase," McNary said.

"We'll have to try to get the money somewhere and I believe it is very imperative that we sit down with the legislators and talk over the problem."

Such a special property tax could not be imposed without enabling legislation by the State Assembly.

Must Prepare Budget.

McNary, a Democrat, will have the responsibility of preparing the final 1959 county budget to be submitted next year to the County Council. Retiring County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews, a Republican, submitted a preliminary budget Saturday calling for record expenditures totaling $11,868,812.

The proposal recommended a $826,937 appropriation for the county police department, but rejected a request for 25 additional policemen. The figure is $168,543 less than was requested by the department, but $77,134 more than was appropriated this year.

Matthews renewed recomendations he made previously that the county seek new sources of revenue, including a special tax for police purposes, and a gasoline and cigarette tax.

Noting that Matthews had been quoted as favoring earmarking proceeds of the proposed cigarette and gasoline taxes for financing police operations, McNary said that would be merely a stop-gap measure at best.

Orderly Pattern Needed.

"Perhaps that procedure would ease the situation for a year or two, but we've got to face the fact that the county is going to continue to grow in population," he said. "In a short time, the same problem would be facing us again.

"It appears the only thing to do is to establish an orderly pattern for maintaining the police department."

Any such special police tax would have to be predicated on the condition that equitable rebates would be made t municipalities satisfactorily operating their own police departments, McNary said. To qualify, such departments would have to comply with standards established by the county, he said.

McNary declined to comment on levy of a cigarette and gasoline tax to meet general costs.

Costs Going Up.

"All possible additional sources of revenue must be studied," he said. "Governmental operating costs are going up, just like everything else. On the other hand, people are not pleased with the idea of paying higher taxes.

"Therefore, we county officials must fight a delaying action against rising costs. We've got to whittle away at expenses wherever possible, and be sure we operate efficiently and as economically as we can. That is why I'm going to set up a budget office."

Matthews today suggested a study of whether the county could legally retain ownership of the Jefferson Barracks bridge after the bonds are retired next February, and use the tolls to supplement county revenues. He said the bridge profits might total $400,000 annually.

Present plans call for the state to take over the bridge for toll-free operations after the bonds are retired.

Coal Group to Build.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI) — The National Coal Association, which represents the nation's bituminous coal owners, announced today that it will build a nine-story, $1,000,000 headquarters office building in Washington, to be completed in 1960.

MACHINISTS REJECT TWA'S WAGE OFFER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 17 (AP)—Machinists union members have rejected a Trans World Airlines wage offer and a strike again in a possibility.

"This means there will be a strike unless there is some adjustment made in the company offer," Cliff Miller, chairman of District 142, International Association of Machinists, said yesterday.

Miller said today the union had asked for a meeting with TWA representatives "in an effort to settle the contract without strike action."

"In the event the conference as requested by the union does not materialize and does not prove to be productive, the time and date of strike action will be announced," he added.

A strike originally was set for Oct. 31 but was cancelled to permit the 6700 machinists to vote on TWA's offer.

Miller declined to give figures on the vote, but notices posted on the company bulletin boards by the union said 63.8 per cent of the members voted to reject.

Charles Thomas, TWA president, said last month a machinists' strike would cause laying off nearly all the firm's 19,000 employes around the world.

In New York yesterday Thomas said he would have no immediate comment on the union's vote.

TWA's offer included a 5 per cent pay increase retroactive to Oct. 1, 1957; an additional 2 per cent increase retroactive to last Oct. 1, and a 4 per cent increase effective Oct. 1, 1959.

Wages presently range from $1.45 an hour for kitchen helpers to $2.15 for skilled mechanics, the union said.

98 PCT. TURN OUT IN HUNGARY TO VOTE FOR REDS

BUDAPEST, Nov. 17 (UPI) —Communist sources said today the 98 per cent participation of Hungarian voters in yesterday's general elections must be regarded as a "clear vote of confidence" in the present regime. Only Communist candidates were running.

An official announcement said 6,500,000 voters took part in the elections of a new Hungarian Parliament and new municipal councils.

Official Hungarian sources said the elections took place in a "completely quiet atmosphere" and no incidents were reported from any part of the country. Moscow radio said, however, that anti-government leaflets were circulated in Budapest to tell voters to stay away from the polls. Moscow said, "The provocateurs did not succeed in shaking the unity of the people."

The elections were held in an atmosphere of political indifference and apathy two years after the unsuccessful revolt against a Russian-dominated puppet government.

28 Republican Senate Seats Lost From 1952 Through 1958; Total Probably Sets Record

Tally Made on Elections During Eisenhower Administration — It Is Virtually Impossible for G.O.P. to Win Control in 1960.

By IRVING DILLIARD
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

SINCE the Republican debacle at the polls on Nov. 4, it has been widely pointed out that President Eisenhower is the first Chief Executive in American history to face Congresses controlled by the opposition party six out of eight years of a two-term Administration.

Also, it has been noted in many places that the Democratic gains at the 1958 mid-term election were so sweeping for seats in Congress that it will be virtually impossible for the Republicans to win even the narrowest Senate majority in 1960, even if the Republican party were to make a tremendous comeback two years from now and win a landslide victory for the White House.

But the fact which underlies these two developments also deserves to be more widely noticed as the country begins to look ahead to the final two years of the Eisenhower Administration. This is the fact that beginning in 1952 and continuing through three succeeding national elections, with a Republican President in the White House, a phenomenally large number of Republican Senators and senatorial nominess of varying Republican persuasions have been defeated at the polls.

These defeated Republican Senators plus Republican nominees for seats held by Republican Senators over the last four elections total at least 28. This is perhaps the largest number of losses of held seats in the Senate by either party in so short a period.

Varying Persuasions.

These losses have hit Republicans of varying persuasions. Two years ago one of the original Eisenhower backers and an Eisenhower "modern Republican" in the Senate, James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, went down. This year John W. Bricker of Ohio was representative of the "class of '46" reactionary wing that the voters shot full of holes.

This pattern of Republican losses in the Senate began to take form in 1952, the year when Gen. Eisenhower first ran for office. Actually, the Republicans scored a net gain in Senate seats in 1952—enough to take control of the Senate by the narrow margin of 49 Republicans to 47 Democrats.

But even while 1952 nominee Eisenhower was campaigning for a Republican Congress to carry out his program, the voters of four states were making ready to eject Republican Senators and to replace them with Democrats. Here is how the Republican tobbogan slide began in 1952:

MASSACHUSETTS: Republican Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., an original Eisenhower backer, who had made an important pre-convention political trip to Paris to see the General at SHAPE, was defeated by youthful Democrat, John F. Kennedy.

MISSOURI: Republican conservative James P. Kem of Kansas City, a member of the "class of '46," was defeated by the first Secretary of the Air Force, Democrat Stuart Symington.

WASHINGTON: Republican conservative Harry P. Cain, also a member of the "class of '46," was swamped by Democratic Representative Henry M. Jackson.

Losses in 1954.

Two years later, President Eisenhower campaigned in about half the states of the Union and in the last week of the midterm contest, made a whirlwind air trip to Kentucky, Michigan and several other states with hot Senate fights. In the face of this strong Eisenhower identification with the Republican senatorial nominees five more sitting Republican Senators lost their seats. These were the 1954 losses:

MICHIGAN: Republican Senator Homer Ferguson, former Michigan judge and prominent member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, defeated by Democrat Pat V. McNamara.

KENTUCKY: Republican progressive John Sherman Cooper, who had won a short-term election in 1952, was defeated by Democrat Alben W. Barkley, then former Vice President.

OREGON: Veteran Republican reactionary Guy Cordon, although powerfully intrenched, was upset by the youthful Democrat, Richard L. Neuberger, a state senator, but more widely known as a writer.

WYOMING: After the death of Democrat Lester C. Hunt, Republican E. D. Crippa was appointed, but the Republican nominee in the election was Representative William H. Harrison. He was defeated in a comeback fight by Democrat Joseph C. O'Mahoney who had narrowly lost his seat in 1952.

NEVADA: With the death of Democrat Pat McCarran, Republican Ernest S. Brown was appointed to fill the vacancy. In the election, the seat was won by Democrat Alan Bible.

More G.O.P. Losses.

This attrition of Republican Senators continued in 1956, when President Eisenhower won re-election by tremendous popular and electoral majorities. Here are the Republican Senate losses suffered on the day of the President's second personal victory:

PENNSYLVANIA: Republican James H. Duff, former Governor and strong Eisenhower supporter, was defeated for re-election by Philadelphia Mayor Joseph S. Clark, Democrat.

COLORADO: Republican conservative Eugene Millikin, one of the party's bosses in the Senate, retired because of illness and the nomination went to Dan Thorton, prominent in the group of Republican "Governors for Eisenhower." Thornton was defeated by Democrat John A. Carroll, former Representative.

OREGON: Here the Republicans lost the Senate seat partly as a result of the change of veteran liberal Wayne Morse from the Republican ticket to the Democratic. In the election, Douglas McKay, then Secretary of the Interior, was the White House's handpicked choice to retire Morse. But Morse won handily as a Democrat for a third term after having had two terms as a Republican.

IDAHO: Republican reactionary Herman Welker, a devout practitioner of McCarthyism, was defeated by a young Democraft. Frank Church.

OHIO: Republican conservative George H. Bender, elected in 1954 to fill out the term of "Mr. Republican" Robert A. Taft (briefly the seat was held through appointment by Democrat Thomas A. Burke), was defeated by Democrat Frank J. Lausche, then Governor.

One Senate seat was lost by the Republicans in 1957. That came out of a special election.

WISCONSIN: After the death of Republican Joseph R. McCarthy, former Gov. Walter J. Kohler won the Republican nomination and was opposed by young Democrat William Proxmire, who scored a surprising upset victory.

Results This Year.

This brings the tally down to 1958, when the Republicans lost 13 more Senate seats to the Democrats. These were as follows:

CONNECTICUT: Republican William A. Purtell defeated for re-election by Democratic former Representative Thomas J. Dodd.

OHIO: Republican John W. Bricker defeated for re-election to a third term by former Democratic Representative Stephen M. Young.

MINNESOTA: Republican Edward J. Thye defeated for re-election to a third term by Democratic Representative Eugene J. McCarthy.

MICHIGAN: Republican Charles E. Potter defeated for re-election by Democratic Lieut. Gov. Philip A. Hart.

UTAH: Republican Arthur V. Watkins defeated for re-election to a third term when a split-off of Republican votes for independent Republican J. Bracken Lee, former Governor, elected Democrat Frank Moss.

WYOMING: Republican Frank A. Barrett defeated for re-election by young Democratic professor of history Gale McGee.

NEVADA: Republican George W. Malone, arch-conservative, defeated for re-election to a third term by Democratic newcomer Howard Cannon.

WEST VIRGINIA: Two Republican Senators, first appointed by a Republican Governor to fill the seats of the

They Still Like Us in Russia--That Is, Ordinary People Do, Stevenson Finds

Despite 40 Years of Red Propaganda, America Is Admired.

Mr. Stevenson continues his account of his lengthy trip through Russia during the past summer.

By ADLAI E. STEVENSON

(Copyright, 1958, by Adlai E. Stevenson.)

SIXTH OF A SERIES.

I have been writing mostly about my meetings with Nikita Khrushchev and other Russian rulers — and "rulers" is no exaggeration! Now I want to say something about lesser officials and ordinary people.

We landed in Leningrad at about the same time the Marines landed in Lebanon. This coincidence colored our whole Russian experience and underlined the fact that, while we Americans may not be very popular any more in some parts of the world, they still like us in Russia! By "they" I mean the ordinary people.

In Leningrad I even talked to the "man on the street" one evening, something that is not easy to do. It was a mixed group of students and workers. They had gathered in front of my hotel, not to see me, but to examine a strange and wonderful sight — a 1956 Buick.

Curious About America.

Their hair was long, their clothes poor, but they were friendly and good-humored, with a ready laugh when I said we hoped to go to Siberia —"and also to return." They were intensely curious about America, our education and living conditions.

"How many hours of work to buy this car?" stumped me, but my sons saved me. Some of the eager questions reflected, I thought, obvious mistrust of the information the people were getting from their own sources.

When I excused myself to go to bed and left my sons to carry on, I cheerily said something like: "Well, come to see us in America." And the wistful "How?" that greeted me from several eager young men will haunt me a long time.

In Moscow a few days later, the Soviet propaganda machine was running full blast on the Lebanon landing. In diplomatic circles the atmosphere was tense. My old colleague of early United Nations days, Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet Foreign Minister, was friendly and courteous, but unrestrained in his criticism of our action.

U. S. Denounced.

Meetings were being held in parks and factories to denounce the "American imperialists" and their "attack" on the Arabs. Our Ambassador, Llewellyn Thompson, foresaw a torrent of abuse and trouble in the street. The newspapers announced that Soviet army units would maneuver in the Caucasus and Central Asia just as we took off for Central Asia!

"Central Asia" is a vast area of many peoples larger than all Western Europe. It includes five "Republics" in Southern Russia where they try hard to preserve the fiction of national independence while rapidly Russianizing the languages and everything else.

The huge northern Republic of Kazakhstan is the center of Khrushchev's bold plan to plow up millions of acres of virgin land. This vast new frontier is growing rapidly and the recent immigration from Russia has already reduced the native Kazakhs to a minority.

The Kazakhs look Mongolian. But the peoples of the four southern Republics look more like Arabs. They are all Moslems and Russia proudly boasts that it is the fourth Moslem power of the world.

'Show Window.'

In 1923 Stalin said, "The task is to transform Turkestan into a model Republic, an advanced post for revolutionizing the East." I wanted to see what had happened in Stalin's "show window" to the East. And what I saw was modern industrial cities, huge farms and the last vestiges of timeless, colorful, oriental Turkestan melting into standard Soviet patterns of industrialization and architectural monotony.

ADLAI STEVENSON receiving bouquet and colorful robe from the GRAND MUFTI on Stevenson's visit to Tashkent.

Our first stop was Tashkent, capital of the Soviet Republic of Uzbekistan, 2000 miles southeast of Moscow. The official welcome, in a temperature of 110 degrees, couldn't have been more hospitable, and we were whisked away to the country guest house of the City Soviet by cheerful officials busily planning to kill us with kindness.

In the car we read the big headlines: "The working people of Uzbekistan are wrathfully protesting the imperialist aggression." But the working people of Tashkent at their airport smiled broadly and clapped their hands when I waved a greeting.

Warmth, Not Wrath.

A few days later at Alma-Ata, the lovely capital of Kazakhstan near the border of China, we read that "all the working people are wrathfully condemning the American aggression against the freedom-loving people of Lebanon." But the "working people" of Alma-Ata, and everyone else, showed not wrath but warmth. And so it went as we traveled northward into Siberia.

The Middle Eastern crisis certainly aroused fears, even in remote Central Asia, that events might be drifting toward the war that people in Russia dread as much as we do. I recall especially the worried face of the elderly chairman of a great collective farm, who asked in a low voice, as he was showing me through a children's nursery, if I couldn't "do something." He must have thought I had won the election!

Nor will I forget other incidents of that journey through remote Turkestan. In ancient Samarkand, the city of Alexander the Great, Genghis Khan and Tamerlane, the news of the little American "invasion" spread quickly. Crowds formed everywhere we went, and I will remember the bursts of applause and the friendly Arab faces of the living people of Samarkand longer even than its noble ruins.

Wise Moslem Words.

Then, while the press and radio screamed imprecations and a mob stormed the American Embassy in far away Moscow, another mob of beaming Uzbeks in their embroidered black skull caps waited outside the mosque in Tashkent to bid us a smiling, cheering goodby after luncheon with the Mufti. (Nor will I forget that dignitary's toast when he reminded me of some wise Moslem words: Believe what you see, not what you hear.)

Near Alma-Ata we had a picnic in a grove on a collective farm, with mountains of strange foods in front of us and snowcapped mountains behind us. There were toasts by the score to peace and friendship, as always, and a

Political Tides Made No Mark On President

Public Felt It Was Being Duped by Double Talk, Lack of Action.

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S nephew, Mike Gill, popped into the White House election night and found the President watching a Western movie.

"Uncle Ike," blurted Mike. "Aren't you watching the election returns?"

"I've lived with a Democratic Congress for four years," said the President. "I can live with them for two more."

Except for flashes of interest, Mr. Eisenhower displayed the same apathy the following night when Vice President Nixon dropped over to hold a political post-mortem. His attitude was that of an elder statesman who is relieved to be out of politics.

Has Turned Over Reins.

Nixon said the election results proved that the Republicans need fresh faces — young, attractive, aggressive candidates. He cited his own potential presidential rival, Nelson Rockefeller, as an example.

He also discussed the discouraging defeats in the farm states. Without saying so outright, he made it clear that he considers Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson a political liability.

The President's attitude made it equally clear that he has turned the political reins over to Nixon.

In six weeks of the recent election campaign, it became readily apparent how the political tide was running. Here are the main factors, which Mr. Eisenhower apparently does not know about, that are making it run that way:

The recession—Would have been forgiven if there had not been so much talk, first, that there was no recession; second, that it would be over in March. The President knew that it would not be over in March because his experts reported it would not be over until October. The public knew what the experts said because the public reads the papers. The public just does not like to be fooled.

Danger of war — The crisis

Russia on World Offensive, Believes Election Left U.S. Split

Soviets Expecting Shift in American Foreign Policy, Try to Take Advantage of Political Confusion.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, Nov. 17.

WESTERN DIPLOMATS HERE believe that the Soviet Union is engaged in a world-wide probing operation designed at least in part to take advantage of the present political confusion in Washington.

One American remedy for this situation was to bring Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, the Senate majority leader, to speak at the United Nations today on the peaceful uses of outer space. United States diplomats hoped thereby to demonstrate that even in the present political shift the nation was united in support of a bipartisan foreign policy.

A similar exercise was held here last Friday when the Republican and Democratic Senators attached to the American delegation spoke from the same platform at a luncheon given by the U.N. Correspondents' Association. With one or two exceptions, Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Rep.), Iowa, manfully repeated each other's cliches in support of State Department policies, including the current policy on China.

Whether all of this will convince the Russians that the elections of Nov. 4 really did not constitute a repudiation of the Eisenhower Administration, including its foreign policy, is doubtful, in the view of some Western diplomats here.

In any event, they can see no let-up to the Russian probing operation. To a certain extent, of course, it goes on all the time. Yet Western diplomats here, who are in constant contact with their Russian colleagues, believe they could see a changed and more eagerly aggressive attitude on the part of the Soviet diplomats after Nov. 4.

The Russians, it is believed, shared a general diplomatic view that the American elections would, in time, result in a shift of United States foreign policies, quite possibly making future Soviet gains more difficult. The Russian diplomats are believed to be convinced that before such a shift takes place—indeed, while a readjustment to the domestic political facts of life is going on Washington—they should take advantage of their opportunity.

Tough Soviet Position.

This is one explanation of the stepped-up offensive over Berlin, for the tough Soviet line on various disarmament issues being discussed here and in Geneva, and for the rigid Red position taken in the U.N. discussions on Korea. If this explanation has any validity the Russians cannot be expected to go on the defensive soon.

More serious trouble in the Formosa strait area is not to be excluded, as Western diplomats view the situation, though whether the tune there is being called by Russia or by Red China remains in doubt. New trouble also could break out in Vietnam, it is feared.

Russian influence could be a force for even greater difficulties for the West in such places as Algeria, Cyprus and in the sheikdom of Oman. A representative of the anti-British guerrillas in Oman, Mohamed el-Harthi, has been stalking the U.N. corridors in his colorful robes for the last few days.

Tensions in the Jordan area of the Middle East are an obvious source of possible trouble. Somewhat less obvious has been the situation building up in Sudan, south of Egypt. Here the Russians and the United Arab Republic hav been working hand in hand, according to some reports reaching diplomats in the United Nations. An economic squeeze, combined with a violent propaganda campaign, preceded the overturn of the moderate Sudanese government.

Members of the Sudanese delegation here, after receiving advices from Khartoum, declared today the military coup seems to have been a "preventive action" to forestall a Soviet-Nasser revolution. The balance of political forces has not been upset, they added, though no one pretended the

Letters from the People

A Rebuttal on Schools

Reader Peterson's letter against the year-round school seems to stem more from emotion than reason and evades some of the more poignant arguments in favor of expanding the school year.

Not all who advocate this expansion are of the extremist variety who would brow-beat the kids into a tight 18-hour day, 6-day week, as his letter describes.

Basically the long summer vacation evolved out of an agricultural society, where the youngsters' services were needed at home. Evidently, that situation does not exist today; or, at best, only in isolated cases. Even summer heat is not so good an argument as formerly. Installation of air conditioning in many existing structures is far less costly, it seems to me, than building new facilities.

And more new facilities are necessary in the present set-up than would be under an accelerated program of education; since, overall, fewer students would be in attendance at any one time, if the educational cycle were shortened.

Perhaps a three-semester year, with approximately two-week breaks at Christmas, mid-spring and around Labor day might have some merit. Such a program might go a long way in solving such problems as inadequate teachers' salaries, delinquency due to inactivity, and the taking of summer time employment which does little in the way of furthering a trade or profession.

I believe, and I think scientific experiments confirm, that today's students have the capacity for quicker learning. I don't think we should continue to take valuable years out of a person's life.

Mine is a case in point. I graduated from college at age 22. Two years in service meant that I was 24 before I could start on my life's work.

Less specifically, the economy would no doubt benefit from the lengthening of everyone's working span, adding to the wealth of the nation. The educational race with Russia should not hysterically guide us; but, certainly, should not be ignored. Harvey Stark

They'll Find A Way

Iraq's ex-premier and former U.N. delegate under King Faisal's late regime, Fadhil Jamali, has been sentenced to be hanged by authority of the new government in charge since the revolution.

In addition he was ordered to pay back $280,000 to the state treasury.

Nothing is said about any penalty for failure to comply with the order and I can't help wondering. Louis Newberger

Roof for the Riverfront

As I was parking on the levee the other day I saw the grading machines piling up the earth on the Jefferson Memorial some 15 to 20 feet high. It occurred to me that if a concrete roof were put over the park, 8 to 10 feet high, with enough pillars to hold it up, the same earth could be put on top of the concrete roof at no extra expense for grading and landscaping.

This would give us an underground garage of one story, which would store almost as many cars as the park does at present. And the only additional cost to obtain it would be the cost of the concrete roof and pillars. The asphalt surface or surfacing now in use for parking could be used as it is for a long time, and could be replaced when necessary.

Even two stories on some of the slopes would be practicable at not too much additional expense with greatly increased parking space, without disfiguring the memorial.

I believe there is still time to adopt such a plan to the very great advantage of downtown St. Louis, and auto driving citizens.

Salute To Paul Butler

This lifelong Democrat is proud of Paul Butler — as his party's national chairman, as an American citizen, and as a man.

As national chairman his vigorous support for a forthright and strong civil rights stand by the Democratic party is intelligent and commendable.

As a man who loves his job and wants to retain it Paul Butler has shown great courage in taking a position opposed by powerful Southerners who will seek to separate him from the chairmanship. They will not succeed.

Team Play

Our kind of democracy can thrive only in proportion to our dynamic concern for it. Hence, particularly in days such as these, political affiliations and personal aims must give way to the unity of purpose needed to preserve and advance the nation.

A sound national cohesiveness is imperative, and an important element of this is selflessness. Indeed, we are in a period when the very survival of our individualism hinges upon our willingness to surrender some of it for the general welfare.
Boston Herbert L. Neitlich

The Machine's Pace

The population of the United States keeps on growing faster than the demographers said it would. So they have boosted the predictions they made only two years ago. By 1975, according to the latest estimates, the nation will have between 206,900,000 and 228,500,000 members. At that, our growth is slow compared to what is going on in many other parts of the world. The United Nations predicts an increase of no less than 60 per cent in the world's population in the next 25 years.

This gives the neo-Malthusians another occasion to ring their alarm bells, and it certainly means problems even for those who are not convinced that before long the world will be unable to feed itself. Dr. John Rock, professor emeritus of gynecology at Harvard, says that population growth must be drastically cut in 50 years—or sooner—if the world is not to be haunted by famine and all the ills and plagues it spreads. He might be as wrong as Malthus was. The recent experience of France, for example, tends to show that an increase in population generally brings an increase in productivity and prosperity. Yet this is not guaranteed—even if men develop a taste for the sea's plankton.

It is the machine—which man continues to improve—which makes new problems even as it helps to solve old ones. Fewer and fewer men are needed to produce more and more. This holds for the farm as well as the factory. Increasing productivity may be just what is needed to sustain increasing population; but when it eats up jobs, it creates a social responsibility to ease the transfer of labor from production to distribution and service employment.

Over a 10-year period, American industrial production has gone up 35 per cent while industrial employment has declined 6 per cent. Modern farm machinery has made many a farmer "surplus."

Happily, this trend is offset somewhat by the increase in white-collar jobs. Thus the International Chemical Workers report that in 1947 their industry employed three production workers for every white-collar worker; in 1957, the ratio was 2 to 1, and by 1968 it is estimated that there will be one white-collar job for each production job.

In addition, many employment opportunities will open up in such fields as banking, insurance and research. So industries and regions which foresee a decline in production jobs should be giving thought to the reassignment, retraining and relocation of workers. As William F. Patterson, special assistant to the Secretary of Labor, said in St. Louis recently: "We need a reckoning, an assessment of the advantages and disadvantages, so that the impact of new advances won't be so bad." He suggested conferences of inventors, manufacturers and labor to consider "job-creating innovations."

Some help may be found in the pattern of our population growth. While an over-all increase of from 40,000,000 to 68,000,000 is expected by 1975, the increase of those in the 24 to 64-year age group, the group in which most workers are found, is expected to be less than 20,000,000. About 50,000,000 persons will be either younger or older. Although without jobs, they will use up a good bit of the nation's production.

As the machine produces more and more goods with less and less labor, society grows more and more dependent on it. We need a constantly rising level of efficiency in order to support a rising standard of living. Yet a standard of living is not to be measured solely by the things produced by machines. Our nation and all others must find ways of devoting more energy and wealth to education, health, city redevelopment and the arts. How can men keep in step with their machines, not only in consumption of goods, but in the creation of social values?

Pioneer on the New Frontier

When adventurer Paul U. Kellogg finished high school in Kalamazoo back in the '90s the old frontier was a thing of the past and so he headed for the new one—the rising city with its ever crowding population. Thereafter until his life closed the other day in the Henry Street Settlement in lower New York City, he was a pioneer in the human, social problems of the industrial order. His investigation of the steel industry in 1907-09 in Pittsburgh was the first inquiry of its kind anywhere. Public health, playgrounds, racial discrimination, social security, unemployment compensation, minimum wages and maximum hours, housing, juvenile delinquency, these aspects of the new society and many more came under his eye as he edited The Survey and Survey Graphic with a devoted group of co-workers and contributors. Did anyone work harder, steadier or more intelligently than Paul Kellogg through the first half of the century to improve our urban civilization and to make it what it could and ought to be? If so we do not know who it was.

Retreat From Compulsion

Under the British Government's labor system, evolved from wartime experience, either party to a dispute may put the issue before an industrial disputes tribunal whose decision has the force of law. However, the Conservative Government has now decided to drop this compulsory system.

According to A. H. Raskin's report in Sunday's Post-Dispatch, employers felt that the compulsory system gave labor more than it could get through normal collective bargaining. Employers charged that the tribunal tended to favor unions because it could not easily enforce its decisions if the unions were dissatisfied. On the other side, British unions which had vociferously opposed compulsion are now protesting against the Government's decision to drop it.

In the United States, both unions and management groups generally have opposed compulsory arbitration, and the country has had only limited experience with it, principally during wartime. State arbitration laws have not fared well in the courts. One of the earliest examples of this was in Kansas.

Just after World War I, Kansas established a three-man Court of Industrial Relations with extensive powers over nearly all industrial disputes. Labor fought the idea. But it shortly became clear that the court, which was composed of two lawyers and a newspaperman, was not above stepping on employers' toes. The court was finally rendered impotent by the United States Supreme Court, and the case was brought, not by union leaders, but by an employer. Experience on both sides of the ocean shows that compulsory arbitration is not a panacea for labor disputes, and in any case a democracy has to be careful when it attempts to substitute state compulsion for free collective bargaining.

School Fallacy at the Barracks

The recent exchanges of letters between Congressman Curtis and Federal Housing Administrator Cole on the Jefferson Barracks housing controversy boil down to one thing: Mr. Curtis has failed to persuade Mr. Cole to kill this worthwhile low-rent project. Mr. Cole wrote that he has no power to "delay or terminate" construction at the Barracks, and in our judgment that is all to the good.

Mr. Cole did say that he felt an "error of judgment" had been made by federal authorities, in accepting as adequate school facilities for the 83,025,825 public housing program. We disagree. Mr. Cole seems to have swallowed the school fallacy that Mr. Curtis has been peddling for all it is worth, which is really not very much at all.

Mr. Cole does not seem to understand that there are now more than 400 children of school age living in the dilapidated Army barracks that the housing project would replace. At least half of these children now attend public school in the Jefferson Barracks district. They are already in school; they are a reality, not a projection of what might be when the new buildings have been put up.

Actually, the number of school-age children in the barracks ought to be reduced if the new housing is pushed through to early completion. This is because more than 20 per cent of the 288 units will be one-bedroom affairs earmarked for elderly couples. Even if the land were turned over to private developers, as has been suggested by those with visions of windfall profits, it is reasonable to believe there would be no material reduction in the number of school-age children living in the area.

The situation is essentially the same with respect to high school students. While the J.B. district does not operate a high school, it provides tuition money for its secondary students to attend high school in other districts. Presently some 40 J.B. students are in the Hancock Place district's high school. Hancock Place's decision not to accept any more pupils from J.B. is no reason to kill the housing project. The J.B. district will have to place them elsewhere. Killing the federal project will not lessen this need in any respect.

There is no doubt that the J.B. school district is in an unenviable financial position. But so are a great many others in the county, none of which have public housing projects within their boundaries. Killing the Barracks project or even turning it over to private developers would not change the existing school situation one iota.

A Very Welcome Subpena

The decision of the United States Civil Rights Commission to use its subpena powers in an investigation of voting conditions in Macon county, Alabama is to be applauded. There are strong reasons to suspect that the voting rights of Negro citizens have been violated there flagrantly and persistently. Yet the registration board has refused to turn over to the Civil Rights Commission records which would either refute or confirm the charges.

Evidently this method of obstructing the commission's work may be expected to be used statewide in Alabama, since it is based on the advice of the state attorney general, John Patterson. If it were effective in Alabama, it would be copied everywhere voting rights are being violated, and the commission would be unable to do anything.

It chooses well, therefore, to put its subpena power to the test early in the game. If it can win its point in Macon county it will have served notice on polluters of the free ballot everywhere that it is determined to get at the facts, however ugly they may be, and equipped with the power to do so. That in itself will be a remarkable victory for American suffrage.

Pope John Breaks Precedent

Continuing the vigorous start of his reign as supreme ruler of the Roman Catholic church, Pope John XXIII has broken a precedent that has stood for four centuries. He has increased the membership of the College of Cardinals from 70 to 75. With this act he has filled the existing 18 vacancies among the historic 70 and appointed prelates to the five new cardinalates. The 23 Cardinals-designate will receive their red hats at a series of consistories at the Vatican, beginning Dec. 15.

The list which includes 13 Italians and 10 from other countries will continue a preponderance of non-Italians, 46 to 29, in the total membership from which Popes are chosen. Four are from the Western hemisphere—Archbishops Cushing of Boston, O'Hara of Philadelphia, Jose Garibi y Rivera of Guadalajara, Mexico, and Antonio Barbieri of Montevideo, Uruguay. With Cardinals Spellman of New York and McIntyre of Los Angeles there now will be four in the United States. Important European capitals such as London, Berlin and Vienna, will again have representation in the College of Cardinals—Berlin the youngest of all, 45-year-old Bishop Julius Doepfner. Mexican and Uraguayan Roman Catholics will have their first Cardinals in history.

Pius XII made his church's highest assembly a broadly international body. His successor, energetic John XXIII, has lost no time in affirming that policy.

Representation Is Needed

Mayor Tucker suggests the creation of a Department of Urban Affairs with cabinet representation in Washington. Whether or not it must be met on this level, the need for smoother city-federal dealings is a real one. In many such areas as slum clearance, relief and the building of expressways, the co-operation between the local and federal governments has become very close.

Yet dealings often must be conducted through intermediate state governments which really have little more than a legal interest in the negotiations. From the viewpoint of both the human interests and the money involved, city-federal relations have assumed an importance which calls for more study than it has been getting. No talks about states' rights or federal controls should obscure this fact. Instead, the relationship should be analyzed and rationalized.

THE BUG PARADE

Helicopters for Urban Commuters?

Attorney and Former CAA Chairman Tells of 'Break-Through' for New Air Transport

L. Welch Pogue in a speech to the Southeastern Airport Managers Association

The helicopter is only a "teenager" as yet. It was born in this country in 1939; it was first produced for the military establishment; it received its first commercial certification by the Civil Aeronautics Administration in 1946.

Nevertheless, though raised on skimmed milk, as it were, the helicopter has become famous for its versatility and its capacity for doing an uncounted number of things that either could not be done before, or that could not be done anything like as well. Its outstanding operating characteristics make this great adaptability possible.

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Now a dramatic change is upon it and us. It is achieving a major "break-through" in the reduction of operating costs by virtue of the development of the turbine engine which is well suited to power the helicopter.

This should require reappraisal of our estimate of what the helicopter can do commercially; and it definitely requires new planning for the future role it will play.

The advent of the turbine power plant promises a dramatic reduction in helicopter operating costs, a reduction in the noise problem, a reduction in vibration, and other advantages. I am advised by competent authority that (1) the weight of a turbine engine is roughly one fourth to one third that of a reciprocating engine of equal horse power; (2) the cost of the fuel used in a turbine is substantially less than the price of the high octane gasoline required in the reciprocating engine type, although the turbine will use a somewhat greater fuel volume per seat mile; (3) the life of the engine between overhauls, according to experience now available, will be greater in the case of the turbine engine; and (4) the overhaul costs for some time will probably run in direct ratio to the original engines costs for each type.

Thus, the weight of an 850 horse power turbine engine is about the same as that of a 250 horse power reciprocating engine; the same engine poundage will, therefore, do about three times as much work. On short hauls (which is the helicopter's special assignment), the use of the turbine power plant permits maximum gains in payload since the disadvantage of increased fuel consumption is minimized. On the whole, something in the order of a 40 per cent increase in payload within the 100 mile range is available to the turbine-powered helicopter as compared to a similar horse power reciprocating engine-powered helicopter.

Taking all these factors into consideration, it appears that the turbine-powered transport helicopter of the future carrying about 25 passengers will have a direct seat-mile operating cost of not more than 10 cents (some authorities say seven or eight cents) compared to the approximately 20 cent per seat-mile direct operating cost of reciprocating engine transport helicopters, now in use commercially, the largest of which are in the 12-15 passenger configuration

This is big news. To be able to cut direct operating costs by more than half is, indeed, a major "break-through." Moreover, the turbine engine is not just a dream; it is here, now, and actually in use by military and commercial operators.

Another important contribution made by the turbine engine is a reduction in noise, both outside and inside the helicopter. The noise level of a 250 horse power reciprocating engine and that of an 850 turbine power plant are about the same. In other words, about three times the power can be produced without significantly increasing the noise. Furthermore, the frequencies range of noise from turbine engine is higher and less objectionable to the ear than is that of the explosions and vibrations of the reciprocating engine. The turbine power plant, then, gives real promise of operations by helicopter in metropolitan areas at fares competitive (time savings and other advantages considered) with available ground transportation. This marked advance may well be the factor which will speed the expansion of the family of helicopter operations certified by the Civil Aeronautics Board. The chairman of the CAB, in quite emphatic terms, has expressed his feelings in the matter of such eventual expansion by stating, "I am convinced that the helicopter, and its progeny to come, will become the standard commuter form of transportation from our major airports to the surrounding and nearby communities."

Under these circumstances, the time is here for affirmative action and planning for helicopter operations in metropolitan areas. Such operations will require that heliports be provided and that appropriate changes in local laws, ordinances, regulations, and attitudes be made so that this remarkable machine may have a chance to operate.

There should be an ordinance clearly authorizing helicopter operations, provided there is full compliance with all Civil Air Regulation requirements. The zoning ordinances dealing with land use should be adapted so that the opportunities for helicopter operations in industrial, commercial, residential, and agricultural use areas are clear; the local building code may need revision; the responsibility of the local fire department and police department may need adaptation; and any other impediments to helicopter operations should be reviewed to assess their current validity and they should be modified, if necessary, so as not to restrict unnecessarily the services which this versatile helicopter can render to your citizens.

No Way to Hide Them From The Louisville Times

The United States and Great Britain announced that the Soviet Union had set off two new atomic blasts, one November 1 and one November 3. The Atomic Energy Commission was able to report that the explosions were of relatively low yield. Even so it was able to pinpoint the explosion site on the southern part of the U.S.S.R. rather than in the Arctic Circle site where many of the Soviet tests have been made recently. Whether the Russians intended it or not, these tests seem to make all the talk at Geneva somewhat academic. The East and West have been vainly parrying proposals about suspending tests.

The fact that the West was able to report the two detonations inside the Soviet Union seems to impoverish the validity of contending that an agreement on "enforcement," which can only mean detection, is a prelude to agreement to stop testing. The Geneva scientists had envisioned a worldwide detection station system, including stations inside the Soviet Union. The West undoubtedly has already a system of detection stations, and under the circumstances there seems no reason why we should cling to our insistence on a bilateral detection station agreement before we enter a formal test suspension agreement.

Between Book Ends No Luck in Neighbors

This book is enjoyable for one reason, if for no other, because in this day of emphasis on social adjustment and "getting along," so that everybody will like you, it is a refreshing antidote. In this book, the author describes his running battles through the years, from childhood to middle age, from St. Louis to California, with stops in between, with his neighbors.

The author describes himself as "compassionate and soft hearted." Unfortunately his luck in neighbors has run to "addlepated boors, loutish misanthropes, and born sourbellies." In St. Louis, when a boy, he was tormented by bullies. As a young man in the city, his first apartment was next door to a vociferous spinster who kept cats.

In Virginia and Maryland, there were back yard sheep-breeders and late party givers to plague him. On Cape Cod, an army gunnery range and noisy plumbing disturbed his digestion and sleep. In California, it was hi-fi and fox hounds.

Harris's revenge was always opportune and scathing, but unfortunately, never satisfactory. In the end, his only solution has been one of retreat. When unable to cope with his neighbors, he has chosen to run away, so that he could fight another day—on new grounds, with new neighbors.

This book is intended to be humorous and witty, and there is fun in a good many of the sequences. Perhaps one of the funniest incidents in the book, is when Harris attempts to cope with a telephone that registers more wrong numbers than right ones.

On the whole, however, his anecdotes are a little too forced and his humor too contrived. The reader gets the impression that things weren't really as funny as Harris would have you believe.

Edward Harris is a former Post-Dispatch Pulitzer Prize winner, now on leave of absence from the paper. There is little doubt that he is a keen reporter with a sharp eye for the value of a story. But this type of humorous autobiographical reporting as exemplified by "Love Thy Neighbor" is not his dish.

WILLIAM S. WHITE

Stassen, the G.O.P. Mystery Man

WASHINGTON.

HAROLD E. STASSEN HAS BEEN in national politics for two decades — and he is the man nobody really knows. He is a large, still-faced total mystery — a character who when repeatedly run over not only refuses to lie down but even denies that the truck ever passed his way at all.

It is far easier to assess the significance of Stassen's latest "dump Nixon" movement — which he proclaimed after visiting President Eisenhower — than to understand in a human way the author of this movement. The question as to what Stassen has accomplished poses no great riddle. He has dropped a very noisy brick on the steps of the White House —and on the large and sensitive toes of the Republican National Committee. At least a majority of that committee's members are neutral—neutral, that is, in favor of Vice President Richard M. Nixon's nomination for President in 1960.

Stassen.

On Rockefeller Bandwagon.

The harm done to Mr. Nixon, however, is certainly far less severe than that done to the nervous systems of the Republican "pros." These are now in a recurring state of astonished exasperation. They can't figure out Stassen any more than anybody else can, and this annoys them no end.

If Mr. Nixon's ambitions have been little damaged, it is possible that a tiny jar has been suffered by Gov.-elect Nelson Rockefeller of New York. For Stassen's famous list of the four "possibilities" who could win the presidency for the Republicans was resplendently headed by the name Rockefeller and thunderously silent about the name Nixon.

Mr. Stassen — to Mr. Rockefeller's pained embarrassment, this correspondent is informed —has climbed upon a Rockefeller bandwagon before there is either a wagon or a band.

Thus, while everybody understands what Mr. Stassen is trying to do, it is hard to find anybody who understands how he expects to do it.

The problem is this: so far as eye and ear can discern, Mr. Stassen's present active supporters could caucus in any telephone booth.

His most recent sortie before this had left him wounded on the fields of Pennsylvania — some would have thought mortally wounded considering that he lost by 2 to 1 in his try at the gubernatorial nomination.

Moreover, even before this disaster — or, rather, what would have been a disaster to anybody but Stassen — he had been allowed to end by resignation his service to the Eisenhower Administration. He had been, somewhat inappropriately, the President's chief adviser on disarmament.

Without Moving a Muscle.

All this, however, has not for a moment dashed the spirit of this indestructible, this unsinkable, man. For the most interesting thing about Stassen is more than politically interesting; it is humanly interesting.

He has repealed some of the natural laws governing the human personality. Defeated, he simply and totally denies the fact of defeat. Embarrassed, he simply and totally denies the fact of embarrassment.

His inner resources against the slings and arrows are incredible. When President Eisenhower pulled a very small rug from under his feet at San Francisco, Stassen, without moving a facial muscle, went out to the convention hall and almost prayerfully intoned a blessing upon Nixon's renomination.

Accepting an Invitation.

Those who saw him at the time close up tried in vain to discover how Stassen felt at what had happened to him. It was impossible; it was as though nothing whatever had happened.

In his broad, absolutely opaque face there is not a chemical trace of any emotion —no sadness, no anger, no resentment, no discomfort.

He is armed, surely, as few men are armed by an unshakable sense of inner rightness —overlaying the most profound absence of a sense of humor in American politics.

At a cocktail party the wife of one of the correspondents present remarked in a routinely social way: "Governor, you must come to dinner some time."

"I should be willing," Stassen replied solemnly, "so long as it is clearly understood, in advance, that it will all be off the record."

CHABAY IRRESISTIBLE IN SCHUBERT RECITAL

Tenor Sings With Warmth All 20 Songs of 'Die Schone Mullerin.'

By MANUS SASONKIN

There is something about Schubert, as sung by Leslie Chabay, that I find irresistible. Last night, Chabay, a tenor who is the artist-in-residence at Washington University, sang all 20 songs of "Die Schone Mullerin" at Graham chapel, and made me wish—for once—that Schubert had added 10 or 12 more songs to the cycle.

Actually, "Die Schone Mullerin" is not an altogether satisfactory song cycle. Of its 20 songs, at least nine are simple strophic settings, in which as many as five verses are set to the same music. And since these strophic songs are not scattered through the series, but tend to be bunched (there is a formidable block of four early in the cycle), a certain degree of monotony is unavoidable. The individual songs are all jewels, but they do not invariably offset each other to best advantage. It is a case of the sum of the parts being greater than the whole.

Chabay, and Leigh Gerdine, who oficiated at the piano, dealt with this problem by eliminating some of the verses from several songs, a procedure over which I shall pass without comment, since my conscience and my feelings are irreconcilably deadlocked on the issue.

Rather, I should like to mention that Chabay projected each song with insight, warmth and acute sensibility. He refrained from overdramatization, and he refrained from distorting the musical line in order to accommodate the human voice. His concepts were consistently flexible, but the flexibility existed within the musical framework set up by Schubert, and never descended into the turgid area of interpretation.

Technically, Chabay's singing is reasonably close to flawless. His pitch last night never varied from true north, and (although a few mistakes were detectable), his senses of rhythm and meter are unusually dependable. A note, here and there, would lack the mellifluousness of his over-all tone, but in general, the quality of his voice—particularly in the pianissimo—defied criticism.

Gerdine supported the tenor sympathetically and proficiently. Once the opening "Das Wandern" was got out of the way, he became just a bit more constrained; but that bit was entirely sufficient to produce a superb blend between piano and voice, both dynamically and tonally.

MRS. FREDA OLSCHWANGER, LEADER IN CHARITIES, DIES

SAMUEL H. ADAMS, NOTED AUTHOR, DIES

Published More Than 40 Books—17 Were Made Into Movies.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

BEAUFORT, S.C., Nov. 17—Samuel Hopkins Adams, author, historian and journalist, died yesterday at his winter home after a long illness. He was 87 years old.

Mr. Adams's health had failed in recent years and he suffered a coronary attack in 1955. Accompanied by two private nurses, he had gone from his home near Auburn, N.Y., to Beaufort, his winter residence for the last 23 years, on Oct. 1.

Following the custom of many years, he arose very early, wrote in longhand for several hours, and kept the afternoons free for visits from townspeople.

Mr. Adams became internationally famous in 1905 when he wrote a series of articles for Collier's Weekly that exposed worthless patent medicines and their fraudulent advertising in newspapers and magazines.

'Great American Fraud.'

These articles, published in book form as "The Great American Fraud," helped to further passage of the first pure food and drug act and greatly curtailed the baseless claims of patent medicine advertisers.

In the next 52 years, he published more than 40 books. Seventeen of his novels were made into movies; these included "It Happened One Night," "The Harvey Girls," "The Georgeous Hussy" and "Flaming Youth," the latter written under the pseudonym of Werner Fabian. He recently completed a novel, "The Tenderloin," which is to be published next spring.

Versatile and thorough-going professional, he was tartly contemptuous of self-pitying writers.

"Certainly writing is work," he once said. "Hard work. But so is any craft. I rewrite everything at least three times. But painful? for a writer to pity himself—to indicate that writing is painful—is hypocritical. It's a damned pose."

Biographies, Juvenile Books.

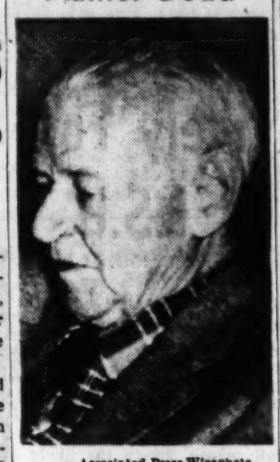

He wrote biographies of Daniel Webster, Warren G. Harding and Alexander Woollcott and juvenile books called "The Santa Fe Trail" and "The Erie Canal." "Revelry," a novel about President Harding's administration, was barred in several cities and states when it appeared in 1926, but it sold over 100,000 copies.

Mr. Adams was born at Dunkirk, N.Y., the son of a Presbyterian minister and a theology professor's daughter. He was educated in Rochester public schools and, following a family tradition, at Hamilton College. He won a poetry prize, played tackle on the football team and was an intercollegiate tennis champion there.

He married the late Elizabeth R. Noyes in 1898. After their divorce, he married Jane Peyton Van Norman, who died some years ago.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Cecil C. Adell and Mrs. Hester Hopkins Adams, and a step-daughter, Mrs. Atherton Harlan.

FANS PLOT MOVE TO MAKE LA SCALA TAKE CALLAS BACK

MILAN, Italy, Nov. 17 (UPI) —A Callas underground sprang up here today in an effort to return Maria Callas to La Scala opera house which has dropped her name from its official roster for the new season.

La Scala thus joined major opera houses in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Edinburgh, Vienna and Rome in firing the tempestuous Brooklyn-born soprano.

Miss Callas's fans were reported planning a demonstration against the management when the new season opens officially on Dec. 7. Though loyal to her, the Callas supporters were hardly surprised at La Scala's action. She had hurled angry charges against the management earlier this year. Still they were plotting some way of returning her to the La Scala stage if possible.

Can They Rebound?

GRAY FOX CARL SNAVELY, the car-wash king, can go back now to his golf teaching out at Washington U. without wondering for a moment where his next football player will come from. The Bears, short on manpower and apt to have even less with no athletic scholarships, and tuition costs rising, managed to break even on their season without breaking too many bones.

Broeg

For veteran RAY ELIOT and young DAN DEVINE, however, there'll be one more week of ulcer-gnawing aggravation before they can take a deep breath—and then plunge into the rubber-chicken recruiting whirl of winter banquets.

Northwestern might not be Wisconsin and no one would accuse Kansas of masquerading as Oklahoma, but the Wildcats represent for Illinois and the Jayhawks for Missouri the traditional tests of any season. For the coach, they are the bread-and-butter ball games, the kind that can make the winter glow with the warmth of victory or dull with the chill of defeat.

Eliot, for two reasons, should have less trouble selling Illinois on Northwestern than Devine might have in bringing up Ol' Mizzou for K.U.

Northwestern's Cinderella team, led by ARA PARSEGHIAN on the bench and DICK THORNTON on the field, has had a better season than the Illini. Moreover, Northwestern, though only infrequently a winner in recent years, has topped the Orange and Blue seven times and tied once in the last 11 games of a rivalry that began in 1892.

Although Kansas spoiled things for FRANK BROYLES last fall, 9-7, and even though the Jayhawks since mid-season have played most ably for JACK MITCHELL, Missouri does have the better record this year. But—and this is one only the Tigers can answer for Devine—will Mizzou's young men shake off the mental as well as physical bruises left by their 39-0 rout at Oklahoma?

Curiously, both Missouri and Illinois can pull even with Kansas and Northwestern if they can prevail in the latest renewal of rivalries that began in 1891 and '92.

Sooners Were Up

BUD WILKINSON hasn't attempted to compare Oklahoma's present varsity with the brilliant teams the Big Red has known in his incredibly successful coaching career. The cautious coach won't give a complete evaluation, either, until the current Sooners are gone from the campus.

As a regional television audience and pained Missouri followers in a 57,000 crowd at Norman must have seen, however, this Oklahoma team, beaten only by Texas in an early-season 15-14 upset, has all the trademarks of the great ones.

As DON FAUROT suggested, this one might not have the strangling defense of some Sooner champions, but again, as the former Missouri coach observed, it has two fast-striking lines and backfields and tremendous team speed.

"This is," Faurot said with the authority of one who has felt the Red Wrecker's wrath for too many years, "one of the finest teams in over-all quality that Bud has ever coached. There just isn't any comparison between Oklahoma and any other team in the nation when they're right—and they were very right for us."

Oklahoma's backfield coach, EDDIE CROWDER, probably the slickest ball-handler and best long passer of all Wilkinson's outstanding Split-T quarterbacks the last 12 seasons, confirmed Faurot's view in a conversation after the game with JOHN KADLEC, Mizzou assistant coach.

"Our kids really wanted this one," Crowder said, almost sympathetically, "and that made it awfully tough on you fellows. I guess the Orange Bowl and the championship angle fired 'em up. You just could feel they were ready to play a great game."

Devine, losing his first Big Eight game, praised Oklahoma's coaching staff and players, especially BOB HARRISON, the All-America center candidate, and the halfbacks, BREWSTER HOBBY and JIM CARPENTER, whose running passes were most damaging to the Tigers.

"No, I'm not satisfied with the score," Dan said in the visitors' dressing room. "We didn't come down here to hold down the score. We came to win, but Oklahoma beat us . . . the better team won."

That Running Pass

At a press get-together the night before the game at Oklahoma City, Wilkinson said he believed his 1956 team, most recent of his five unbeaten squads and three na-

Clemson Likely Foe Of L.S.U.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (UPI)—The New Year's day bowl lineup was virtually complete today with Louisiana State, Oklahoma and Clemson "in" and California and Texas Christian only one victory away from automatic bids.

With only one more big Saturday left in the college football season, here's the likely lineup for the five major bowls:

GATOR: Mississippi (7-2-0) vs. Pittsburgh (5-3-1) or West Virginia (4-4-1).

L.S.U., the country's No. 1 team and the only major college unbeaten and untied power, made the Sugar Bowl bid a mere formality when it beat Mississippi State, 7-6, Saturday night. Oklahoma clinched the Big Eight title and Orange Bowl bid with a 39-0 rout of Missouri and Clemson won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship by beating North Carolina State, 13-6.

One to Go With Stanford.

California retained its Pacific Coast Conference lead with a 12-7 decision over Washington and can clinch a Rose Bowl bid by beating Stanford (2-7) next Saturday. T.C.U. took over the Southwest Conference lead with its 22-8 conquest of Texas and will clinch a Cotton Bowl invitation if it defeats Rice (4-4-0) next Saturday.

The Air Force Academy moved solidly into the bowl picture with its 21-6 victory over Wyoming, Syracuse kept rolling with a 47-0 rout of Colgate and West Virginia walloped William and Mary, 56-6, to win the Southern Conference championship. Mississippi and Pittsburgh stayed in the running despite losses because of fine records against consistently good opponents.

Next Saturday's schedule includes those traditional rivalries in which form seems to play so little a role. Top games include Yale vs. Harvard, Dartmouth vs. Princeton, Notre Dame vs. Iowa, Nebraska vs. Oklahoma; L.S.U. vs. Tulane and Kentucky vs. Tennessee. Army and Navy are idle, practicing for their Nov. 29 service battle.

The next-to-the-last Saturday of big activity was marked by more than its share of upsets including the Quantico Marines' 13-12 upset of previously unbeaten and untied Rutgers. Ohio State blasted second-ranked Iowa, 38-28, unranked Tennessee edged out eighth-ranked Mississippi, 18-16, and Nebraska surprised tenth-ranked Pittsburgh, 14-0, in the other top upsets.

Scare for L.S.U.

L.S.U. came perilously close to suffering the biggest upset of 'em all when Mississippi State marched to the Tiger 10-yard line in the fourth period only to miss a possible game-winning field goal. L.S.U. overcame a 6-0 state lead on a five-yard pass from Warren Rabb to Billy Hendrix and Tommy Davis's game-winning conversion in the third period. Mississippi State also missed a 15-yard field goal attempt in a game that was played on a soggy field.

Ex-Illinois star Harry Jefferson's third-period touchdown stood up as the Quantico Marines' margin of victory over Rutgers when the latter scored in the fourth period, but missed a running attempt for a two-point conversion. Fullback Bob White gained 209 yards in 33 carries for Ohio State. 155-pound Gene Etter raced 75 yards to win for Tennessee and Larry Naviaux paced Nebraska to its upset of Pittsburgh.

Third-ranked Army beat Villanova, 26-0, as Pete Dawkins scored three touchdowns; fourth-ranked Auburn topped Georgia, 21-6, to stretch its unbeaten streak to 22 games, fifth-ranked Wisconsin defeated Illinois, 31-12, seventh-ranked Purdue topped ninth-ranked Northwestern, 23-6, and Charley Milstead completed 15 of 28 passes as Texas A.&M. upset Rice, 28-21, in other top games.

Another Ten Strike for Champion

One Game, One Goal For Illini

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 17—One game and one goal remain for Illinois's football team. The game is with traditional rival Northwestern and will settle the annual "state championship." The goal: to post a first winning Big Ten season since 1953 and the first top division finish since 1955.

The old rivals will go into the final here with 3-3 conference records. The winner is fairly certain to claim fifth place in the final standings, unless Indiana supsets Purdue.

Both clubs will be trying to rebound from setbacks Saturday. Illinois took its worst statistical beating of the season while bowing to Wisconsin, 31-12. The Badgers, exploiting corner and pass defense weaknesses, rolled up 300 yards, 90 more than any other team had this year. The Wildcats avoided their first shutout of the year by scoring with six seconds to go in a 23-6 defeat by Purdue.

Coaches Ray Eliot of Illinois and Ara Parseghian of Northwestern have the tasks of trying to rally their troops, and sell them the idea the season-ender is a battle of significance. This is a job Eliot has had in the past which proved nearly unsurmountable. The Illini have won but three of the last 11 games against the Wildcats. They should not prove indifferent this time, at least, in view of Wildcat success and publicity this year.

Scout Steve Sucic's report should stir the Illini further. "Northwestern is a team that can score from anywhere on the field, and likes to go for the 'home run' play," he warned. "In Dick Thornton they have a quarterback faster and quicker than Wisconsin's Dale Hackbart."

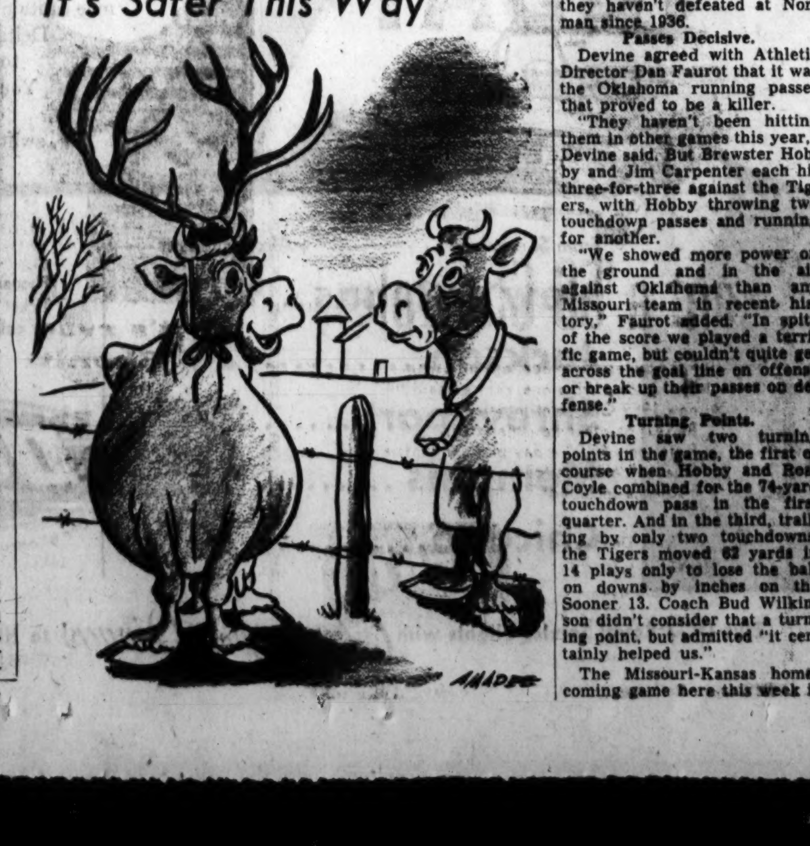

Sucic labeled the Wildcats second only to Iowa in overall speed, and especially threw fear into Illinois with his description of their excellent passing attack.

Louisville Fencers Win From St. Louis

Albert Wolf of Louisville and Sandra Trembly of the St. Louis team were outstanding individuals in the intercity fencing match at the St. Louis Fencers Club, yesterday. Wolf, U.S. Olympic team member, in winning all his bouts in both saber and epee, threw the balance in favor of the Louisville men's team. Miss Trembley, also undefeated, helped the local women win in their division.

'It's Safer This Way'

Bowler Don Carter Ribbed In Testimonial Dinner Skits

A solemn moment in bowler Don Carter's life was recalled last night when a man clad in a white surgical gown appeared on the stage to present him with the chip that had been removed from Don's left knee in a delicate operation several years ago. With mock gravity, the medical man produced the section of bone—a two-foot long object that strongly resembled the leg of a cow.

That is about as serious as things got in the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel's Gold Room, where some 750 admirers braved unpleasant weather to attend a dinner honoring Carter for his remarkable achievements on the bowling lanes. Speeches were admirably brief, the entertainment was good and the atmosphere was warm.

A skit worked up by sportscaster Jack Buck and professional comedian Bob Holt titled "This Is Your Life, Don Carter" was the feature of the evening. It was during this review that the "bone chip" incident was portrayed.

Another pseudo-physician appeared in the person of "Dr. Clinker," the specialist who was said to have set Carter's arm after a childhood fracture, following a procedure he had used on his own arm earlier. Dr. Clinker then delivered a handshake to Don in the same crooked-arm, scoop shovel manner that Carter uses when throwing a bowling ball.

In order to cure Carter's much publicized aversion to flying, a "jet pilot" presented Don with a parachute. A man described as the banker with whom financially successful Carter deals added what he considered an appropriate gift, a folded "money belt" which turned out to be an inner tube.

Kind Words From Mayor.

Following a series of complimentary remarks by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and a number of bowling officials from St. Louis and other Midwestern cities, emcee France Laux introduced Mort Luby Jr., publisher of the Bowler's Journal magazine.

Luby presented the "Bowler of the Year" award to Carter as the result of his selection by the Bowling Writers Association of America. Carter's achievements during the 1957-58 season included winning the National Individual Match Game Championship for an unprecedented fourth time, the World's Invitational Tournament, the Southern Match Game Tournament and the National Doubles Championship in partnership with Tom Hennessey.

Prior to the speeches the crowd had been entertained by comedian Davey Bold.

A highlight of any testimonial, of course, is the gift giving. Carter, a 32-year-old native St. Louisan, did very well.

The No. 1 present, a collection of rathskeller furniture for the Carter's new home in Grandview Meadow, was presented by the groups that co-sponsored the affair — the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association, the St. Louis Women's Bowling Association and the Bowling Proprietors Association of St. Louis. In this gift were a bar, matching stools and table and chairs.

Blonde 'From Out West.'

Other presents included a pair of matching overstuffed chairs, a portrait bearing guests' signatures, an engraved watch, mink cuff links and tie clasp, and—from his Budweiser teammates—a much-wanted stereophonic hi-fi set.

A final episode in Carter's "life" brought the program to a close. From offstage a female described herself as an old acquaintance of Don from one of his exhibition trips in the West. For the umpteenth time Announcer Jack Buck asked Carter if he recognized the voice and again Don said he did not.

At that point the admirer, a lightly clad redhead named "Susie," appeared on stage and sat in Carter's lap. Buck, glancing first toward Don's wife, bowler LaVerne Carter, on the other side of the stage, and then toward Don and his companion, announced that time had run out. Don, he said, would have to solve that problem himself. —J.J.A.

Ott 'Holding Own'

GULFPORT, Miss., Nov. 17 (AP) — The condition of Mel Ott, of baseball's Hall of Fame, and his wife was unchanged today. Both were injured seriously last Friday night in an automobile crash at Bay St. Louis, west of here. The hospital said Ott was "holding his own." He underwent surgery Saturday. Physicians plan surgery for his wife later.

Battered Missouri Turns to Jayhawks

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 17 — The Missouri Tigers swallowed their disappointment and made plans today to defeat Kansas here Saturday to assure themselves of a second place finish in the Big Eight championship race.

"We came back after the Southern Methodist game and can do it again," Coach Dan Devine said. "If we win we can pick off second place ahead of Kansas and Colorado, both of whom were picked to finish ahead of us in pre-season predictions."

The Tigers are battered from the 39-0 loss to Oklahoma, with fullback Jim Miles, halfback Norris Stevenson and end George Boucher doubtful competitors from deep bruises. Center Tom Swaney, guard Charley Rash and end Danny LaRose have lesser bruises, which are not expected to keep them out of the Kansas game.

Devine pointed out that only one Oklahoma touchdown was scored while Tiger first-stringers were in the game and he thought the undermanned Missouri team played well, particularly through the first three quarters. With a couple of breaks, in the first and third quarters, the Tigers might have been able to put some pressure on the Sooners whom they haven't defeated at Norman since 1936.

Passes Decisive.

Devine agreed with Athletic Director Dan Faurot that it was the Oklahoma running passes that proved to be a killer.

"They haven't been hitting them in other games this year," Devine said. But Brewster Hobby and Jim Carpenter each hit three-for-three against the Tigers, with Hobby throwing two touchdown passes and running for another.

"We showed more power on the ground and in the air against Oklahoma than any Missouri team in recent history," Faurot added. "In spite of the score we played a terrific game, but couldn't quite get across the goal line on offense or break up their passes on defense."

Turning Points.

Devine saw two turning points in the game, the first of course when Hobby and Ross Coyle combined for the 74-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter. And in the third, trailing by only two touchdowns, the Tigers moved 62 yards in 14 plays only to lose the ball on downs by inches on the Sooner 13. Coach Bud Wilkinson didn't consider that a turning point, but admitted "it certainly helped us."

The Missouri-Kansas homecoming game here this week is one of the Midwest's oldest rivalries, dating back to 1891. Kansas won at Lawrence last year, 9-7, to go ahead of Missouri in the series standings, 30-29, with seven games tied.

St. Louisan Gets His Deer In Half Hour

Frank Moore, 2611A Sullivan avenue, bagged a deer within 30 minutes after opening of Missouri's six-day gun season today. His deer, a two-point buck estimated to weigh 150 to 175 pounds, was shot in Gasconade county at 7 a.m.

Despite wet, windy weather, there was a good turnout of hunters, reports from field agents outstate indicated. Unseasonable temperatures were in the 60s.

Ernest Walker, Bloomsdale, shot an eight-point buck in Ste. Genevieve county 10 minutes after the season opened. He got the 145-pound animal three miles southwest of Bloomsdale.

Another hunter, James Davis of Route 2, Columbia, killed his deer within 15 minutes. He shot a 150-pound doe on his father's farm on U.S. 40 west of Columbia.

Shooting hours for the gun season are 6:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Hours of the archery deer season, which have been from 5:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. since its opening Oct. 1, coincide with those of the gun season this week only. Archers may hunt deer through Dec. 15.

Cards Flying Home, Are Due Tomorrow; 14-2 on Japan Tour

TOKYO, Nov. 17 (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals were flying home today after sweeping their two "sayonara" (goodby) games for a record of 14 victories against two losses in their 16-game good-will series against the Japanese All-Stars.

(The Cardinals are scheduled to arrive in San Francisco tonight and in St. Louis tomorrow about 7:30 a.m.)

Catcher Gene Green hit two homers and sparked the Redbirds to an 8-2 victory before 40,000 fans at Korakuen Stadium in a morning game yesterday. This was the game postponed from Sunday, Oct. 26, because of rain.

The stands were cleared and another crowd of 40,000 jammed the stadium in the afternoon to see the visitors take the final game, 4-2.

Birds Fooled Japanese.

The Cards, who finished in a tie for fifth place in this year's National League pennant race, had been expected by Japanese baseball observers to drop at least five games. But they made a better showing than the 1956 Dodgers National League pennant winners that year who won 14 games, lost four and tied in one.

The All-Stars threatened to win the afternoon game when they led 2-0 at the end of the fifth behind righthander Kazuhisa (Superman) Inao's four-hit pitching.

Ken Boyer, Redbird third baseman, hit a solo homer off Inao in the sixth to cut the Japanese lead to 2-1.

Catcher Hal Smith started the seventh with a single to left field. Outfielder Bobby Gene Smith flied out to deep center. Manager Nobuyaso Mizuhara then walked to the mound and sent Inao to the showers. Tadashi Sugiura, a submarine-ball righthander who beat the Cardinals 9-2, in Osaka on Nov. 4, replaced Inao.

Tate Double Scores Two.

Alex Grammas, batting for Pitcher Ernie Broglio, who had relieved Jackson in the fifth, flied out to right. Second Baseman Don Blasingame was intentionally walked. Shortstop Lee Tate, however, crossed up the Japanese strategy by hitting over the left fielder's head for a double that scored Smith and Blasingame.

Stan (The Man) Musial was intentionally walked. Boyer then singled to left to score Tate for a 4-2 lead.

Sad Sam Jones was credited with the victory in the first game after yielding only one run on five hits in the first five innings. Righthander Phil Paine finished the game, allowing one hit but it was a homer by Catcher Nomura.

The Cardinals outhit the All-Stars in homers, 16 to 10, in the series.

Jim Brown Sets Rushing Record as Browns Take Undisputed Lead

Colts Two Ahead as Bears Fall

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (UPI)—The Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns appear headed for a National Football League title showdown that would pit Jimmy Brown against Alan Ameche in a classic battle of fullbacks.

Brown erased one of professional football's proudest records yesterday with a 152-yard surge that helped Cleveland regain a one-game Eastern Division lead with a 20-10 victory over the Washington Redskins. He boosted his 1958 rushing total to 1163 yards, smashed Steve Van Buren's old season mark of 1146 and still has four games to produce the most fantastic rushing total in N.F.L. history.

Ameche, a 220-pound battering ram, gained 142 yards as Baltimore invaded Wrigley Field and boosted its Western Division lead back to two games by blanking the Chicago Bears, 17-0. The Bears, almost unbeatable at home, could have tied the Colts for first by winning but suffered their first shutout since 1946 before a sellout crowd of 48,664.

Assist by Steelers.

The Pittsburgh Steelers would almost prefer a victory over Cleveland to a capacity crowd but gave the Brownies a big assist by walloping the New York Giants, 31-10. It was a familiar chore for the Steelers. They've ruined New York's Eastern title hopes four times in the past eight years.

The Los Angeles Rams moved into a second-place tie with the Bears by defeating the Packers at Green Bay, 20-7. Clarence Peaks scored four times to spark the Philadelphia Eagles to a 49-21 victory over the Chicago Cardinals while Gene Gedman scored twice and threw a touchdown pass to help the Detroit Lions whip the San Francisco Forty-Niners, 35-21.

Each team has four more games remaining, but Baltimore, paced by Ameche, George Shaw and a brilliant defense, may have vaulted its biggest hurdle at Chicago.

John Unitas, Baltimore's No. 1 quarterback, is sidelined with cracked ribs but Shaw proved an excellent replacement. He completed six of six passes during Baltimore's first scoring drive in the second quarter, climaxing the 93-yard march with a seven-yard scoring toss to Ray Berry. Ameche lunged four for Baltimore's other second period touchdown and Steve Myhra added a 12-yard field goal in the final period.

Giants Blow 10-0 Lead.

The Giants appeared headed for their fourth straight victory when they took a 10-0 lead but quarterback Bobby Layne plunged a yard for Pittsburgh's first touchdown just before the first half ended. The Steelers took charge in the second half. Layne threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Tom Tracy and sneaked a yard for another touchdown after Gary Glick recovered Frank Gifford's fumble and raced 36 yards to score.

Cleveland can't win at Detroit but usually has the necessary answers in all other cities. It had to work hard at Washington. The Browns snapped a 10-10 tie in the last five minutes when Brown and Lew Carpenter rushed 10 straight times to set up Lou Groza's 25-yard field goal. Don Paul then stole a Redskin pass and Brown scored his second touchdown of the game in the final seconds. He now has 17, one under Van Buren's season mark.

Bill Wade's second-period pass to Jim Phillips went for a 93-yard pass-run touchdown, the longest in Los Angeles history, and put the Rams in front to stay at Green Bay. The Rams have two games coming up with Baltimore.

Peaks scored three times in five minutes during the second period at Philadelphia and got his fourth touchdown against the Cardinals in the third period. Gedman threw to Hopalong Cassady to start an 81-yard Detroit scoring play, plunged for a touchdown and caught one of Tobin Rote's three touchdown passes.

Unitas to Play Next Game.

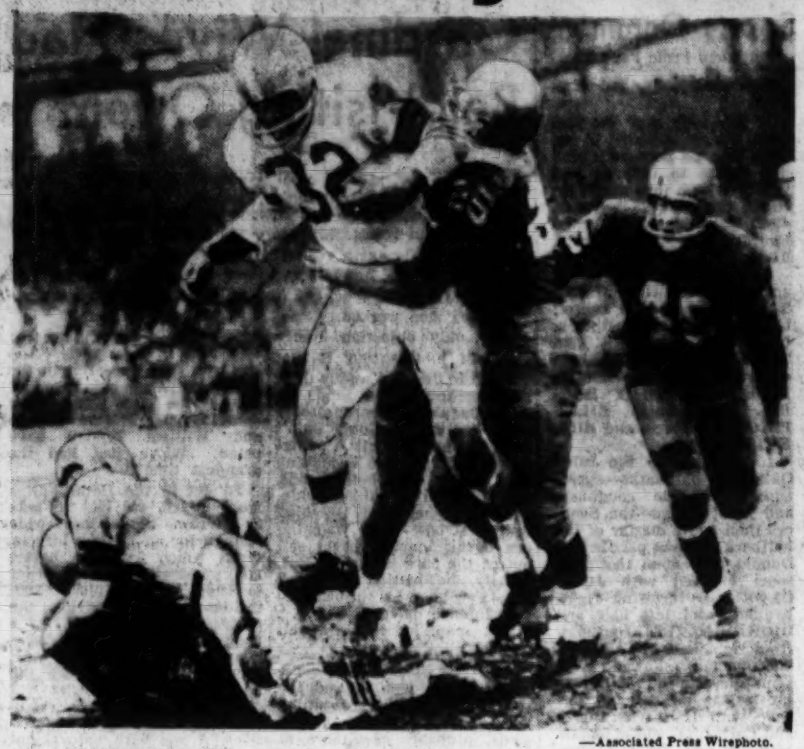

Weeb Ewbank, Colt coach, praised his defense and Shaw and promised the Rams they'll face Unitas next Sunday at Baltimore.

"Anytime you shut out the Bears, you've got to give your defense a lot of credit," he said. "I thought our tackling against the Bears was better than it ever was before."

"Shaw did a great job. If he hadn't clicked, we would have put in Gary Kerkorian, who also is a good quarterback. Unitas could have played with a special brace — the damnest brace you ever saw—but we would not have used him. He'll be ready to play against the Rams next Sunday."

Coach George Halas of the Bears was unusually docile after watching his team blanked.

"We probably should apologize to the fans for our bad showing. The combination of Baltimore's defensive line and our general ineptness is the story of the game," Halas said.

JIM BROWN (32) of the Cleveland Browns, is shown being stopped on one of his ground-gaining drives against the Washington Redskins. Brown gained 152 yards to raise his total to 1163 yards, a new single season record for National Football League players. Cleveland won the game, 20-10. Brown has four more contests to play.

'Failure' as a Puppy, St. Louis-Trained Dog Wins National Title

By John J. Archibald

Nilo Possibility, a handsome Black Labrador, is a gay dog today and a certain Eastern kennel owner is probably feeling a little sick—like a baseball scout who had passed up Mickey Mantle.

Judges at the National Retriever Trial decided yesterday that Nilo Possibility had earned the 1958 championship, which brought the St. Louis-trained dog a long way from the time six years ago when a purchaser returned the frisky puppy to East Alton's Nilo Kennels labeled "unsuitable for retrieving."

Kenneth K. Williams, of Milwaukee, bought Possibility sight unseen on the advice of a friend. When the dog was two and one-half years old he was turned over to St. Louisan Bill Wunderlich for training at Mahlon B. Wallace's kennels and after a near-miss in last year's National the once-rejected dog, now six, yesterday splashed to a popular victory.

Nilo Possibility's triumph climaxed a three-day comeback effort, for Williams' entry — whose kennel name is "Jinks" —turned in a mediocre performance in Thursday's opening series at the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife Area near Weldon Spring.

"The hot, dry weather Thursday bothered Jinks more than some dogs," said a jubilant Williams. "After that it was just a question of how much ground he could pick up. I don't think many people considered him much of a contender until Saturday night, but we knew he'd been remarkably steady since Thursday."

Spectacular Retrieve.

If the arid conditions of Thursday hampered Nilo Possibility, muck caused by Sunday's heavy rains must have aided him. Williams' dog climaxed an excellent last day display by a spectacular retrieve on his final bird of the trial. On a "blind," a pheasant hidden in a spot about 175 yards away known only to handler Wunderlich, Possibility needed guidance only once before he picked up the scent and went straight to the bird.

For Williams, who is the owner of an electro-plating concern in Milwaukee, the victory made up for a disappointment in last year's National meet.

"That was the first time in the National for both Jinks and I," Williams said, "but he did so well that many people considered it a toss-up between him and Spirit Lake Duke. I was sure we'd have a good chance this year."

Spirit Lake Duke made a strong bid for a second straight title, remaining in competition along with 11 other dogs until the end of the trial. Two series were needed Sunday to determine the champion, making a total of 10 for the four-day period.

Easy Dog to Train.

Technically, Nilo Possibility is a Milwaukee dog because of the residence of Williams, but for all practical purposes he is a St. Louisan. Bred at the nearby Nilo Kennels, Possibility spends more than half of each year at the Wallace's Casa Audlon Kennels, where Wunderlich is manager and head trainer.

"Jinks has a great memory," said Wunderlich. "He is one of the easiest dogs to train that I have ever encountered."

Wunderlich won the National once before, with the Wallace's Ready Always of Marian Hill in 1951.

At a party after the announcement of Possibility's success, the husky Black Lab moved nimbly among the milling guests at Casa Audlon. Nobody minded. It seemed only right that a fellow who had been declared washed up at the age of eight months should be allowed to celebrate his national championship.

Australians Declare War On Kramer's Tennis Pros

MELBOURNE, Nov. 17 (UPI) — A special meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia tonight banned American tennis promoter Jack Kramer from using any official courts in Australia for professional matches.

The decision was made on the vote of the president, Donald Ferguson, after the meeting resulted in deadlock with a vote of six-six.

Ferguson bitterly attacked professional tennis and said any club anywhere in Australia allowing Kramer to use its courts will be violating "international regulations."

The president said that "last year Kramer's gross Australian receipts were 175,000 pounds ($392,000). A substantial amount of money has thus been taken from the associations. The attendance at the South Australian championships last week was deplorable. I feel that the impact of professional tennis has been really serious."

Ferguson said: "Kramer has taken from us Sedgman, McGregor, Hartwig, Rosewall and Hoad in the past six years. Now he is making overtures to Cooper, Anderson and Rose. I refuse to allow a competitor be given advantages."

McKinley Shooting For No. 8

McKinley is not likely to ease up in its drive to the Public High League football title, Goldbug coach Julius Blanke let it be known yesterday.

"If we could beat O'Fallon Saturday we would wind up with an 8-1 record, the best ever compiled by a McKinley team," Blanke said. He added, "We've had a pretty good span the past three years, tying for the 1956 title and playing in the Accident Benefit game and our 7-1 record this fall gives us a total of 16 victories, nine defeats and two ties in three seasons. We think that's pretty good."

McKinley all but clinched the title when it defeated Soldan, 19-0, last Saturday. That was the Goldbugs' seventh league triumph, also a school record because the present 11-school league has been in existence only a short time so McKinley has not had too many years to set records.

The only school still with a mathematical chance is Southwest, the 1957 champion. The Longhorns have five victories and a tie and must beat Hadley Tech in their final appearance for a shot at the title. But if McKinley triumphs over winless O'Fallon nothing Southwest does can prevent the 'Bugs from grabbing the crown.

Other final rounds games Saturday are Soldan vs. Vashon Central vs. Cleveland and Roosevelt vs. Sumner.

Only a handful of games remain, including Webster Groves at Maplewood tonight, postponed from last Friday. St. Louis U. High, 19-0 victim of undefeated East St. Louis, visits Parson Field again this Friday for a contest with Assumption.

In addition to the Accident Benefit game Thanksgiving there will be two league engagements—Kirkwood at Webster Groves in a Suburban Big Six meeting that will not affect University City's championship status and East St. Louis at Belleville in the final Southwestern Conference contest of 1958. East St. Louis still could lose and be champion.

Bayer's Putt Wins Playoff

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 17 (UPI)—Big George Bayer, the "human howitzer" who hits a golf ball a mile, picked up the juiciest plum of his career by tapping in a three-inch putt yesterday.

That putt sank Slammin' Sammy Snead on the first extra hole of a "sudden death" playoff and earned Bayer the top prize of $6500 in the $45,000 Havana Open golf tournament.

It marked only the second triumph for the six-foot-five, 240-pound Baker since he turned pro in 1954. Prior to Sunday's victory, the huge San Gabriel (Calif.) slugger had won only the Canadian Open in 1957.

Slammin' Sam had a chance to win on the eighteenth but he blew a five-foot putt, while Bayer, playing in the threesome ahead, sank a five-footer for a par 5 on the 638-yard hole.

The missed opportunity cost the 46-year-old Snead $2900 but he still won $3600 for finishing second. He now heads for Mexico City where he will team up with Ben Hogan in the International golf championship and Canada Cup matches which begin Thursday.

Knicks Win 6th Straight; Now 8 to 1

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (UPI) —The New York Knickerbockers, off to one of their finest starts in years, have used a six-game winning streak to help them register the best overall record in the National Basketball Association thus far.

The Knicks made it six in a row by belting the Minneapolis Lakers, 98-90, yesterday in the N.B.A.'s weekly nationally televised game. New York also beat Syracuse, 96-92, Saturday to start a perfect weekend.

By winning both games, the Knicks ran their season record to 8-1 and moved two games ahead of second-place Syracuse in the Eastern Division race.

Trailing 56-52 in the third quarter of the TV game with the Lakers, the Knicks scored 14 straight points for a 66-56 lead. Ron Sobie, who scored 12 points in the game, closed out the streak with four baskets.

Charlie Tyra of the Knicks was top scorer with 22 points while teammate Willie Naulls contributed 19. Elgin Baylor led Minneapolis, which dropped its sixth straight, with 18 points.

All 5 NBA All-Stars In Kiel Double Bill; Hawks vs. Syracuse

By Harold Flachsbart

All five members of the exclusive National Basketball Association all-star team will be shooting hoops in the season's first pro doubleheader tomorrow night at Kiel Auditorium. And the talent-studded cast will include three more stars from the second team picked last spring by scribes and broadcasters in the eight cities in the circuit.

The twin bill will be featured by the Hawks' first meeting with the high-scoring Syracuse Nationals, who are second in the Eastern Division with a record of six victories and three defeats. That's the identical record of the Hawks, easily leading the Western race.

In the 7 o'clock opener the swift-striking Boston Celtics will match baskets with the Detroit Pistons, who dropped a 102-91 decision to the Hawks here Saturday.

Shower of Stars.

The all-star lineup, marking the first appearance of the select five on one court since that team was named last April, includes Bob Pettit, the Hawks' 30-point average point-maker; Syracuse's Dolph Schayes, Detroit's George Yardley and Bob Cousy and Bill Sharman of the Celtics.

Second-team choices in the official league all-star listing were Cliff Hagan and Dugie Martin of the Hawks and Boston's Bill Russell, who in this one will match his defensive skill and newly-apparent scoring power with Detroit's Walter Dukes. Russell is 6-10, Dukes an even seven feet tall.

Pettit, scoring 36 points in the week-end game with the Pistons in which he also was a principal in a fight with Dukes, boosted his season's average to a lofty 30 points. The former L.S.U. All-America has made 90 field goals in 209 tries and 90 free throws in 123 attempts for 270 points.

First 2000-Point Man.

Yardley last year became the first player in pro league history to reach the 2000-point level in one campaign and that won him the all-star berth as a frontliner along with Pettit and Schayes. Pettit, despite a broken wrist, last season tallied 1719 points, Schayes had 1791 and the first five all-stars combined had an amazing aggregate of 8020 points.

Schayes had a career total of 12,465 to start the 1958-59 campaign, best of any active player and Dolph's all-round ability to hit from outside, close range or on driving layups plus tremendous rebounding skill have made Syracuse a team to fear through the years. Last year the Nats had the same regular-season record compiled by the Hawks—41 won and 31 lost.

The Hawks won five of the nine 1957-58 meetings with the Nats, and in one of them St. Louis set an all-time N.B.A. single-game record by scoring 146 points. Three other games were decided by one or two points.

League Meeting Here

A meeting of the N.B.A.'s executive committee, termed "important" by Fred Zollner, president of the Detroit Pistons and chairman of the executive group, was scheduled today at Hotel Chase.

"The executive committee is scheduled to meet every 30 days and while this is a routine confab, we'll probably have a news announceemnt tonight," Zollner said. "As chairman I feel I am not at liberty to discuss the agenda."

Gregory Is Second in Long Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) —Crawford Kennedy of Michigan State, the defending champion, today won the IC4A cross country championship by a comfortable margin in a drizzling rain at Van Cortlandt Park.

Kennedy was clocked in 24 minutes 21.6 seconds for the five mile race over hill and dale, finishing about 300 yards ahead of Notre Dame's Ron Gregory, a St. Louisan.

Gregory was a yard ahead of St. John's Peter Close who was followed by two more Michigan State men — Bobe Lake and Bill Reynolds in that order.

A field of about 200 competed in the event that Kennedy won last year in 24:14.

On thes trength of a 1-4-5 finish by its first three men, Michigan State appeared to have retained its team championship. Official totals were not immediately available.

No Kicks Coming After Soccer Field Becomes Lake, Game Halted

Carondelet Wins, 3-0, In Water

By Dent McSkimming

With important field markings washed away by a driving rain storm, three of the four scheduled United States Amateur Cup soccer games of yesterday were postponed. There is no guarantee that the next chosen date will find the weather more propitious, but few in attendance question the good judgment of officials who ordered the program set back.

When Carondelet and the Clayton club took the field at Grounds Two, Fairgrounds, at 1 p.m., rain was falling but the players could at least see the ball. By halftime, with Carondelet leading, 3-0, the density of the falling water was nearer to solid, but no one talked of stopping. Referees Bill Bertani and Bill Keenoy got the boys going again, after the 10-minute interval, and Clayton was showing signs of holding the score down. But, at about five minutes after two the storm doubled and redoubled in force. The field became a lake and the wind took the ball off to have a game of its own.

No Replacements.

A couple of Clayton players appealed to the bench for replacements, but by that time there were neither substitutes nor spectators. Manager Tom Kelly stopped the game, told the referees he was unable to keep a full team on the field, and the victory was conceded. Carondelet Sunday Morning Club thus advances to the local semifinal round of the national Amateur competition. Final score, 3-0.

The second game booked on the same field was not even started. There were no visible markings to guide the referees.

At Cherokee Park and at Carondelet, where two other cup games were scheduled, there were similar postponements.

To Set New Dates.

Amateur Cup Commissioner Bob Guelker said new dates will be set for St. Edward vs. South Side; St. Ambrose vs. Plaza and Jack Diamond vs. Kutis I.

Carondelet, although in a dominant position from the start, needed 15 minutes of play to score its first goal against dogged Clayton players. Then, a well-placed forward pass from Tony Arias was converted into a score by Jim Murphy. Twenty minutes later, Tom Murphy, attempting a dribble in the penalty area, was shoved aside by Right Fullback Jack Tierney. Ray Berdeaxu scored from the penalty spot. Five minutes before the half-time whistle, Arias, himself, went through alone for the third Carondelet goal.

Playing conditions were atrocious. But even on a dry field it is unlikely that the Clayton eleven would have been a match for Carondelet.

Bears Look Ahead to '59; Ebeling, Kovac to Return

By Harold Tuthill

Ever wonder what a college football coach's wife thinks about? Mostly about the team, it would appear after talking at length to Mrs. Carl Snavely, the distaff side of the Washington University leader.

The veteran coach was out of town, attending a meeting in South Carolina which would be attended by Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice and other of Carl's boys at North Carolina and what would we like to know?

"If I had known it was going to rain all day Sunday, I would have gone with Carl," Mrs. Snavely said. "He wanted me to go but somebody had to stay and look after the car wash business in Baden. Besides, he wants to get in some golf while he's there."

Bright Spots.

Mrs. Snavely pretty well agreed with others that the Bears played good football although losing to Butler's strong team, 20-12, last Saturday in the Bears' final gridiron appearance of the season. The defeat dropped the Bears to 4-4, their poorest showing since Snavely took over in 1953.

There were bright spots, however, in the performances of players who will return next season. They include backs Morty Ebeling and Bob Kovac gether with senior Jack Rapp's whose passing and punting, topass catching for two touchdowns, kept the Bruin aggregation in the contest.

"We missed Gary Groh at end," assistant coach Irv Utz said. "Several of Butler's gains were made around Groh's position."

Groh, a senior, was found to have a fractured cervical vertebra two days before he was scheduled to close out his college gridiron career. He was missing as was Dave Mars, fleet junior halfback who was out about half the season with an injury.

Groh will graduate as will other stalwarts on the line, Rapp at end, Bruce (Buck) Yoder and Joe Mach at tackle, Bob Kreilick at guard, Ed Lind, center and fullback and Roger Clark, center. Starters in the backfield who will be missing a year hence are Scott Scholle and Dick Hunt. Wingback Frank Williams also graduates.

Not Hopeless.

Finding line replacements may be difficult but not hopeless. End material includes Jon Schneeberger, Charlie Brown, Fred Benassi and Francis Wessling. Freshman Mike Metzger, a 6-2, 275 pound tackle, is developing into a fine lineman.

Six points were scored by Lind, Stein, Kovac, Steward and Sherertz.

Other tackles are Roland Bockhorst, Homer Frago and David Taylor.

Lettermen Loren McKerrow Tom Regot and John Simeone, are guards who will return with prospects to be recruited from Harold Horsley, Steve Litwicki and Gary Mockler. Leroy Kimmel may be the starting center, provided he wins the job from Jere Finnegan or Jim Foley.

There should be plenty of good backs headed by Ebeling, Kovac and Mars, together with Frank Weyforth, Mike Everett, Fred Steward, Ed Stein and Charles Sherertz.

Now, as Snavely frequently has said, if there are any boys who would like to play football and have parents financially able to send them to Washington University they will be most welcome to try out for the 1959 team.

Turley Wins Hickok Award for October; Jim Brown Second

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (UPI) —Bob Turley, whose pitching helped the New York Yankees rally to win the World Series, defeated Jim Brown, Cleveland Browns fullback, in the October balloting for the Hickok "Professional athlete of the year" award.

Turley received 59 first-place votes and a total of 203 points in the October voting by the nation's sports writers and sports casters. Brown received 19 first-place votes and 147 points. Warren Spahn, Milwaukee Braves pitcher, was third with nine first-place votes and 73 points.

St. Louis Football Raiders Win, 12-0

Scoring one touchdown in the first quarter and finishing up with another in the fourth period, the McCrary Raiders defeated the Kansas City Buffalos, 12-0, in a semi-pro nonleague football game at Public Schools Stadium, yesterday. A return match will be played at Kansas City, Thanksgiving day, the promoters announced.

If you look over the records, it's not difficult to see why. The '56 Sooners scored 466 points to only 51 and crushed such opponents as North Carolina, 36-0; Texas, 45-0; Notre Dame, 40-0, and Faurot's last Missouri team, 67-14.

The Red Shirts were sparked then by JERRY TUBBS, all-America center; two tremendous halfbacks, CLENDON THOMAS and TOMMY McDONALD, both of whom won All-America honors, and JIMMY HARRIS, quarterback; BILLY PRICER, fullback, and BILL KRISHER, guard.

In addition to the usual Oklahoma hallmarks—speed, agility, rawhide roughness and great desire—the Sooners then had a master of the halfback running pass in McDonald, a weapon that Missouri enjoyed with JOHN GLORIOSO throwing right-handed from left half and DICK BRAZNELL southpaw from right half in 1948-49.

Oklahoma showed the same devastating ability to hit targets on the run this time with Halfbacks Hobby and Carpenter, whose marksmanship was given a competitor's acknowledgement by Missouri's HANK KUHLMANN.

Said Kuhlmann:

"We were well-coached and we were looking for those Oklahoma running passes, but the passes were what beat us. That first touchdown pass (74 yards) was the turning point. I don't know why we were caught flat-footed. I guess it was the speed that did it. And those backs' ability to throw and complete the pass at a dead run was good football."

Cardinal Wives Had Ball Visiting Orient

By Jim Brosnan
Cardinals' Pitcher.

TOKYO, Nov. 16 — In Hakone National Park, one of the most beautiful resorts in Japan, the touring party of the St. Louis Cardinals again reached full strength. Our jolly promoter, Yets Higa, had left us to our own devious pleasures in Hiroshima and Fukuoka, and had taken the wives on excursions while the men worked.

The only objection I can think of to this tour is that we had to don our smelly duds and perform in the mud. As Joe Cunningham repeatedly remarked, "If we only didn't have to play baseball . . . what a ball!" Jersey Joe is nursing sore fingers on both hands, and a slightly sprained ankle, suffered when he stumbled over first base while watching one of his longest drives sail out of the park in Osaka. But, gamely, he battled on every day, ascribing his injuries to that intense drive of his . . . "Look man, hustle marks all over me."

Wives Sees Sights.

The wives, who battled the economic recession of Japan by purchasing a boatload of bargains, probably saw more of the country than their husbands. (See one ball park, you've seen them all.) While we rode busses, trains, taxis and planes to all parts of Japan, the wives were seeing the sights.

In Kyoto they watched the pearl divers, and, as Kathy Boyer said, "We were each given an oyster, and it was opened right before us, and each oyster contained a pearl! My oyster had two matching pearls which I'm going to have made up into a ring. Then, we went to this tempura house. Did you see 'Sayonara?' Well, we ate in the same place that is shown in the movie. And the chef who appeared in the movie prepared our tempura! That is the same place where John Wayne, Marlon Brando and William Holden have eaten. We've just had the grandest time?"

To get to the Hotel Fujiya from Toyko, we had to take a narrow road, just wide enough for an English bicycle, down which Japanese busses go careening madly in order to keep on schedule. (And, incidentally, to provide the passengers with a thrill of a life-time.) Arriving in a downpour, after a three-hour ride, everyone was struck by the beauty of the bar.

Actually, the entire establishment is worthy of superlatives. A spa with natural hot springs that contain all sorts of marvelous minerals, the Fujiya is considered a showplace in Japan. The rooms are not numbered, as from 100 to 1000, but given individual names, such as Chrysanthemum, Cape Jasmine and Nandina Japonica. Try to remember that at three in the morning after a bottle of sake!

There were, relaxing, with fishing at 5:30, golf at noon, photography at 3, sukiyaki at 6:30 and bargains galore to be purchased during free moments.

Yets Higa had a birthday, and to celebrate he invited Blasingame, Cunningham, Art Routzong, Dr. Middleman and me to have a drink in his quarters. He had taken over the Kikka-Su, a royal house that once belonged to Prince Takamatsu. Probably the most beautiful example of aristocratic Japanese domiciles, Kikka-Su was sold by the royal family after the war because it was too expensive to maintain for a private individual with nothing but a title, culture and fabulous ancestry.

So the hotel now uses the Prince's former trysting place for a Japanese restaurant. The gardens which surround the house were typically, if magnificently, Japanese, and the cameramen were positively gloating. For once, the sunshine was brilliant. Mount Fuji fulfilled all the awesome grandeur that the Japanese proclaim for it, and the autumn scenery provided a Hollywood spectacle that belongs in the movie, "Seven Wonders of the World."

LINKS RAIL SERVICE CUT TO COMPETITION

Dropping of passenger train service is the result of economic necessity and not because the railroads want to drop the trains, Wayne A. Johnston, president of Illinois Central Railroad, said here today.

Speaking before the St. Louis Society of Financial Analysts at Missouri Athletic Club, Johnston declared that "the combination of competition of automobiles and busses on fine highways and of airplanes using government-furnished airports and navigation aids has made passenger train operation a losing proposition."

$800,000 Loss in 1957.

"In 1957, we had a direct operating loss of more than $800,000 in the operation of these trains, despite our best efforts to provide modern equipment and good schedules.

"The simple fact is that three railroads were providing more passenger service between St. Louis and Chicago than the public was willing to use. I suppose most of you know that the latest study on intercity traffic reveals that 87 per cent of all such movements are by private automobile."

Johnston praised the activities of the Smathers subcommittee of the United States Senate, whose study of rail industry problems was followed by passage of the Transportation Act of 1958.

"The public, which had been little moved by the plight of the railroads in recent years, suddenly became aware of the fact that some of the largest railroads in the country were on the verge of bankruptcy, and even strong railroads were finding it difficult to stay in the black," he went on.

Why Act Is Significant.

Importance of the new act, the speaker asserted, "is less in what it actually does than in what it recognizes. It promises to let us operate in a more favorable climate of regulation. It assures us that we will be able to do more than just meet competition, that now we will be able to make competition."

Discussing Illinois Central finances, Johnston said the road expected to end this year with net income of about $15,500,000, about the same as last year but $8,000,000 less than in 1956. Gross revenues this year will be about $28,000,000 less than in 1957.

A basic cause of low railroad profits, Johnston said, is the fact that railroads to a large degree are "victims of the age of Government giveaway."

There has been a "golden flood of tax money spent on highways, waterways and airports," while the railroads "have been hobbled in their efforts toward progress by a national blindness that handicaps the efficient in favor of the inefficient," he said.

6 KILLED IN FLEEING AUTO

ST. JOHNS, Mich., Nov. 17 (AP)—Six members of one family, including two small children, were killed yesterday when their speeding car blew a tire and struck a tree while being chased by a policeman near here.

The dead were Robert Ray Anderson, his brothers, Jack Leroy Anderson and Richard Anderson, all of Cincinnati; their aunt, Mrs. Grace Vincent, of Lansing, Mich.; and her two young daughters.

over Quemoy could have been forgiven if there had not been so much talk about unleashing Chiang Kai-shek and so much criticism of the Democrats for the war in Korea. People remember Mr. Eisenhower's "I will go to Korea" statement in the 1952 campaign and wondered why he did not do something drastic in 1958 to diminish the danger of war three miles off the Chinese mainland.

Goldfine and Adams — The Goldfine case would have caused much less attention if Mr. Eisenhower had not harped so on Democratic mink coats and deep freezes. The public remembered his 1952 campaign slogan, "Korea, Corruption and Communism." And the public did not see much difference between a mink and a vicuna coat, a deep freeze and a $2000 rug.

Sputnik—When Oct. 4, 1958, passed with the United States still not having launched a satellite anywhere comparable to Russia's, people began to doubt the military infallibility of the President. Prior to Oct. 4, 1957, they had considered all military matters safe in his hands. But Sputnik shook that faith, and "Operation Soothing Syrup" actually did not soothe nearly as much as the White House thought.

Golf — The American public likes to picture its President working hard, concentrating on affairs of state. People get tired of seeing him play golf or go on three-day bridge-playing bouts when vital problems are pressing. Golf and bridge hurt him in this campaign far more than he realized.

No Apology to Stevenson

Fallout — When Mr. Eisenhower belittled Adlai Stevenson in the 1956 campaign for wanting to bar H-bomb tests because of radioactive fallout, it hurt Stevenson. But when the President reversed himself and adopted the Stevenson proposal of barring H-bomb tests, then it hurt him. The public likes to see persons in high places occasionally admit that they make mistakes and give credit to those they previously discredited. No apology was made to Stevenson for belittling him on a point where he was right.

It takes time for people to catch up with these things. But when they do catch up they can be outraged.

It was President Eisenhower who personally ordered the Commerce Department to announce the October unemployment figures before the election.

In order to rush out the figures, the Census Bureau had to pull employes off other jobs.

The figures showed a drop of 300,000 in unemployment. What the President did not mention in his final pre-election speech was that the number of jobless normally decreases about 200,000 to 300,000 in October.

The President also failed to point out that unemployment is still 1,000,000 or more higher than unemployment one year ago.

champagne finale. It was another day of "the people's wrath." But if there was anything wrong with our jolly Mongol and Russian hosts it wasn't wrath!

And the most moving experience of all was in Rubtsovsk, way out on the lonely prairies of Siberia, where they had just held huge indignation meetings about the wicked American "imperialists." Large crowds seemed to always be in front of the hotel. They were reserved and shy, but clapped vigorously at my first sign of greeting whenever we appeared.

Peace, Peace, Peace.

They haven't seen many Americans in Rubtsovsk and I'm sure curiosity had much to do with it. As I walked through the crowds, joking with the people, which isn't easy in Russian, I found the handclasps and smiles eager and warm. The father of a fat baby said: "We've meat and bread and milk up to our necks — what we want is peace." There, as everywhere, the refrain is peace, peace, peace.

And I won't forget a night in Novosibirsk, the largest city of Siberia with the largest theater in the country. After the performance, when the audience had applauded the performers, they suddenly all wheeled around, faced the center box and applauded us. It was another day of "wrathful indignation" over America's "aggression."

What accounts for the contrast between the friendly people and the savage propaganda? No one is too confident of the answer. Some Russians say their criticism is just of "your ruling clique." But there must be some immunity to propaganda after 40 years, together with an abiding admiration for the United States as the most "advanced" country, and also gratitude for our help in the war.

No Outside Information.

The contrast is still more surprising when you consider that these people are cut off from outside information which might help them evaluate what they read in their newspapers and hear on their radio—and that is all they can read and hear.

We kept a careful log on foreign broadcasts with a short-wave radio. Never once were we able to hear more than the first few seconds of a Russian-language broadcast from the Voice of America, the British Broadcasting Corporation or even the United Nations before the jamming drowned them out.

I brought this up with Anastas Mikoyan, Deputy Premier, and pointed out that on our long journey in the interior every American broadcast in Russian was jammed and the newspapers gave no account of our side of the story about Lebanon; that all press reports from Russia by foreign journalists had been censored for years; that large areas of the country were closed to travel by foreigners (although not to me); and that the hope for peace lay in knowledge and communication, not in ignorance and suppression of both.

A Cold War.

His temper rose: If my report was correct and the Voice of America had always been jammed, he said he would send a letter to the Minister of Communications — a letter of congratulations! For America, he said, was waging "a cold war against the Soviet Union," the State Department officially said so, "it was their main line of behavior," and the Soviet Union had to take steps to counteract it.

When the cold war ended the jamming would end, and also the travel restrictions, he said, but as to censorship, the United States press frequently "distorts" the facts, "which we don't find too pleasant."

I replied that for two weeks I had been reading Russian distortions about America's motives in the Middle East which I didn't find pleasant either.

Evidently one of the important functions of the Ministry of Communications is to prevent communication. In recent years they have expelled four or five American correspondents, and very recently they shut down the Columbia Broadcasting System bureau in Moscow because of "anti-Soviet" programs.

Indispensable to Peace.

Russia is a lot of people and it is all too plain that the channels of communication must be opened if we are to bring about better understanding and mutual trust. An open world is the indispensable ingredient of peace.

And on our return to Moscow from Central Asia and Siberia I ended a statement for the press with the suggestion that if we must compete, the best place to begin would be in the spread of truth and not falsehood about each other. The Soviet press reported my statement in full — minus this suggestion.

But there are hopeful signs too—the growth of person-to-person contact through travel, the exchange visits of students and scholars and specialists, and the expansion of cultural relations under the recent treaty.

Another is the enthusiasm of people in Russia for more contact and communication with us. Expressions of this feeling, like the friendliness, met us everywhere. I think of the ragged little boy in the squalid, narrow alleys of an old Central Asian town, who solemnly asked me to take "friendly greetings to the children of America."

5-Year-Old Chess Player.

And I also think of the chess instructor in the House of the Young Pioneers in Alma-Ata (sign over the door said: "Thanks to the Party and the Government for our happy childhood") who wanted me to play a game with his best player. When I asked where he was he said: "Taking his nap; you see he's not quite 5 years old." I got out of there asked if the prodigy was a Kazakh in a hurry! But not before I yakh. No. A Russian? "No, he's a Korean."

After seeing the anti-American headlines and hearing the radio attacks in a distant place one night, I put down notes that concluded: "If this has been going on for 20 years, it is a wonder that we are still at peace." And it is.

So I take hope, above all, in the abhorrence of war and the friendly feelings we found everywhere during those "days of the peoples' wrath."

action ended the possibilities of more trouble in Sudan.

The situation in Sudan was far from clear, however. The new leader, Gen. Ibrahim Abboud, was quoted as saying he would work for good relations with President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

There are, clearly, many openings for the Russians to prod and pry. Announcements of the new Russian seven-year plan for economic development have been read here as having significance outside the Soviet Union as well as inside.

It is not forgotten that, when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev visited Chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Chinese People's republic last August, the communique spoke of "the just struggle of the peoples of the United Arab Republic, of Iraq and of the Arab countries and also—of the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America."

Khrushchev subsequently referred to that statement in an interview with a Brazilian journalist.

"The Soviet Union," he said, "has acquired great experience in its own industrialization and willingly shares it with countries wishing to take advantage of it in their own economic development."

Economic Penetration.

Experienced Western diplomats do not doubt that Russia will proceed with a program of economic as well as political penetration. What some of them see lacking is an imaginative, realistic American program to match the Soviet program in Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America.

At least one senior European diplomat remarked that support by Democrats like Lyndon Johnson for the United States foreign policy unfortunately did nothing to improve that policy.

U.N. General Assembly President Charles Malik of Lebanon, in an address delivered in Washington Saturday, expressed the view of many friends of the United States here.

"Peace," he said, "presupposes a certain order, a certain underlying unity, a certain balance. But how can there be order, unity, balance so long as one side always attacks at every level of human existence, and the other always retreats; so long as one side is dynamic and self-confident and the other static and bashful and apologetic, as though ridden by a guilty conscience or a paralyzed will?

"So long as the understanding is superficial, the will weak and the purpose fuzzy, there can be no peace.

'Bold New Vision Needed.'

"A bold, new, fundamental vision is therefore required . . . to convey a stirring message of hope for the masses, especially for the masses of Asia and Africa; and not only a message in words, but one that follows upon its words with certain fulfillment. . . ."

Malik is one of the staunchest friends of the United States in the United Nations; he was elected president only because of determined support by the United States. Yet his words "the understanding is superficial, the will weak and the purpose fuzzy" were understood here to be meant as an exact description of United States foreign policy as seen from the United Nations.

G.O.P. Losses

late Democrats, Harley M. Kilgore and Matthew M. Neely defeated — Chapman Revercomb by Representative Robert C. Byrd and John D. Hoblitzell by former Representative Jennings Randolph.

INDIANA: Republican McCarthyite William E. Jenner, retiring voluntarily, his choice for the nomination, Gov. Harold W. Handley defeated by Democratic Mayor R. Vance Hartke of Evansville.

CALIFORNIA: Republican Senate Leader William F. Knowland defeated for governorship by Edmund G. Brown. Gov. Goodwin J. Knight defeated for Senate seat by Democratic Representative Clair Engle.

Thus the Republican losses since 1932 are:

1932	4
1934	5
1936	5
1937	1
1938	13
Total	28

This review does not take into account any Republicans who have been re-elected, as Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, was re-elected in 1956, nor any Republicans who defeated Democrats, for example, as Senator Thomas E. Martin of Iowa, who defeated Democrat Guy M. Gillette in 1954.

If Republican victors over Democrats during this period were reckoned with the result would show a net loss of about 14 seats in the Senate for the Republicans. The point, however, is that in these four elections a total of almost 30 seats held by the Republicans have been lost at the polls to Democrats.

And all this while Dwight D. Eisenhower was either nominee for President or the potentially politically powerful occupant of the White House!

By DAVID M. NICHOL
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio, Copyright, 1958.

BONN, Nov. 17—Since mid-October a court in Warsaw has been hearing the case against an unkempt little man who alternately clowns and appears to fall asleep.

His suit is untidy for he has refused to wear a better one that was provided for him. His mustache is ragged, over nearly toothless gums. One German reporter has described his face as that of a "dried mummy." He is 63 years old and looks older.

In sharp contrast to the prisoner's own behavior, the Polish court has been dignified and fair, according to all German accounts. There has been almost nothing to remind one of the atmosphere of a "show trial" within the Soviet sphere. And this is remarkable.

Distinguished by Evil.

For the prisoner is Erich Koch, one of the tiny group of Hitler's followers who are distinguished from most of the rest by the very monumental quality of their evil and power. They gave shape and reality and often direction to the Fuehrer's vague and vicious dreams.

To much of the world these men are shadowy or unknown, but in their own peculiar provinces they were omnipotent. They include men such as Reinhard Heydrich, who made the "security service," or "SD" of the SS into model of fearsome efficiency. He died in a Czech ambush in 1942.

Another is Roland Freisler, crushed under the ruins of his own awful "people's court" in the course of an Allied bombing attack.

Gen. Heinz Kammber was high in this group. Toward the end of the war he controlled all rocket research and production. He took his life in Prague when Hitler's vaunted Alpine redoubt turned out to be nothing but paper.

With the possible exception of Martin Bormann, head of the party chancellery, who still is listed as missing, Koch is the last survivor of this high-level group.

Shaped German Policy.

Koch's principal contribution was the shaping of German policy in the occupation of the Ukraine. Koch's policies did as much as anything else to persuade Russians that Communism wasn't the worst thing in the world. By comparison even Communism looked good.

German newspapers generally have published the charge that Koch was responsible for the death of 4,000,000 Ukrainians. The mind balks at such figures.

But Koch is not on trial for his crimes against the Russians. Instead he is charged in the Warsaw court with the murder of some 72,000 Poles in areas of Poland which were attached to East Prussia during the war. Koch's long-time role was that of party leader or gauleiter in East Prussia.

Like some of the other leading representatives of the "master race," Koch couldn't take it when the going got tough. As the Russians closed in on East Prussia, Koch escaped on board an icebreaker, complete with his Mercedes car, the costly furnishings he had collected, and his dog. As far as he was concerned, civilian refugees had to stay and face the Russians.

Koch Disappears.

Back in West Germany, Koch disappeared with a false identity among the surging millions of the postwar period. He escaped detection until May 1949, when he was arrested by the British. Early in 1950 he was turned over to Poland as a "war criminal."

The fact that Koch's trial should have been delayed for eight years is simply one more of the fantastic facets that surround his career.

Some experts in Soviet affairs believe Koch was being prepared, during Stalin's lifetime, to be a witness in a trial which would attempt to prove that the United States and Hitler were in secret league against Moscow.

The indictment under which Koch actually is being tried was drawn in 1955, by a prosecuting attorney who took to the icy Vistula rather than face an investigation of his own conduct when the Stalinists were swept out of office in 1956.

The official explanation is that Koch has been "ill." Doctors and nurses have been in attendance throughout the hearings.

Cold War Formulas.

The indictment still includes, almost inexplicably under the circumstances, some of the cold war formulas about "United States monopoly capitalists" and the gains they hoped to achieve from Hitler.

Koch has caused some open amusement by his attempts to depict himself as a convinced "Socialist" and an enemy of big business.

"Before he is finished," one reporter has written, "he will be calling himself a victim of Fascism."

When he was upbraided for the fact that some Ukrainians had been flogged too publicly, he said he would have had them shot for sabotage if he had known there was to be such a fuss.

6½-MILE TUNNEL PART OF CANADIAN POWER PROJECT

CHUTE-DES-PASSES, Que., Nov. 17 (AP)—A power drama written by engineers and performed by hard-rock miners is unfolding in this untamed country 300 miles north of Quebec city.

It is the Aluminum Co. of Canada's project to supply 1,000,000 additional horsepower to its smelters and the Lake St. John region.

The project involves the damming of the wild Peribonka river, digging a 34-foot tunnel six and one-half miles through solid rock, and feeding the water through the five largest generators yet built. It also means plugging the east end of Lake Manouan, 80 miles northeast of here so its waters will flow west instead of east.

This $150,000,000 job was started in September 1956. Target date for the first generator to be in service is next August.

A second dam is going up at Passes-Dangereuses, at the head of the Chute-des-Passes water-supply tunnel to create a reservoir which twists nearly 10 miles back from the project.

From Passes-Dangereuses to the five generators here the water fall is 540 feet. Had the water been allowed to follow the natural course much of its energy could have been dissipated, so a tunnel wide enough to allow three cars to drive side-by-side was cut through solid granite.

Four big reasons why
FORD IS OUTSELLING ALL OTHER '59 CARS

AT THE BRUSSELS WORLD'S FAIR, the 59 Fords were awarded the Gold Medal for styling elegance by the Comité Français de l'Elégance.

The world's best-selling car is the car with Thunderbird elegance

In the great styling decision of the year, the American public has already shown a clear preference for the new Fords. Ford sales are way ahead of all competition.

What makes the 59 Ford such an immediate success? One prime reason, heard in showrooms from coast to coast, is "good taste." There is the classic simplicity of the Thunderbird-inspired design—the clear-cut clean lines that are pure automobile.

There is a kind of beautiful good sense, too, in the design of the new Ford that goes far beyond just good looks. Ford cars are built for people—to sit in, to drive in, to ride in—with comfort. And a Ford is to enjoy, with smooth quiet power always on demand. Result? A fresh, elegant new kind of car.

ANYONE CAN FIT IN A FORD: Our cars are built for people—full-size people who want space to stretch out. And all passengers ride in deep-cushion comfort.

The car in hottest demand across the land has greater roominess and comfort

Thousands on thousands of customers have already bought the new Ford over all competition for another compelling reason—it's a true six-passenger car. (The only four-passenger car we recommend is the Thunderbird.) All six passengers in a 59 Ford get plenty of every kind of room—from leg and head to elbow and hip. You can wear picture hats or sombreros, fur coats or mackinaws, and be comfortable. Rear seat passengers in a Ford don't feel they're riding with their feet in a bucket. And the man in the middle has the same deep, soft cushioning beneath him as the other passengers.

Cars are supposed to be made to get in and out of. Well, Ford makes it real easy for you. Compare for yourself in any showroom. Just get in and out of a Ford with its bigger, wider-opening doors.

YOU'LL BE THANKFUL EVERY TANKFUL if you buy the new Ford, for you'll save up to a dollar a tankful with new engines that run superbly on regular gas.

The No. 1 car in sales saves money on gas, on oil, on maintenance bills

A new Ford will save you up to five cents a gallon on gas . . . a dollar on every tankful! No wonder everyone welcomes the big news that all standard Ford engines, Six and Thunderbird V-8, are engineered to give you powerhouse performance on good old low-cost regular gas.

But that's not all—Ford saves you hard cash on oil, too. Every 59 Ford—not just some of them—has a Full-Flow Oil Filter as standard equipment. Result: You can drive a full 4000 miles without an oil change. And Ford has ended once and for all the old problem of waxing your car. The new miracle is called Diamond Lustre Finish, an amazing paint that will stay gleaming bright without waxing—ever! This is another Ford First, of the kind your bank account likes.

THE FAMOUS FORD LOW PRICES have already made a hit, because only in Fords will you find value and beauty coming together at down-to-earth prices!

The most popular American car is priced as much as $102.75 lower

Ford costs you less right down the line than the competition. This is a simple fact, if you'll take the time and trouble to shop and compare. This year, by law, the manufacturers suggested retail price must be posted on every car. All you have to do is look for yourself, and you'll see that the total suggested retail price of a Ford, equipped with radio, heater and automatic transmission, is as much as $102.75 less than the major competition! And, if you want an air-conditioned car, you can save up to $219.85.

All this means that if you want a car with Thunderbird-inspired styling, really roomy comfort, the firmest, safest ride in its field; great trunk space, and that famous Thunderbird V-8 performance (or the most modern Six in the industry)—all this with hard-cash economy—then the car to buy is the 59 Ford.

Now Is the Time to Bake Your Fruitcakes for the Holiday Season

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

SOME LIKE IT LIGHT, some like it dark—but almost everyone likes fruit cake. There are, of course, many excellent ready-to-serve fruit cakes on the market, but many homemakers feel that Christmas just isn't Christmas unless they bake their own. With the pre-holiday rush just a few weeks away, now is the time to get your fruit cake baking out of the way. It will be a cozy feeling to know that your cake is stowed away, ripening to mellow goodness.

There is a type of fruit cake to suit almost every taste . In selecting a recipe, remember that one which lists dark seedless raisins, prunes, figs, dates, molasses and assorted spice will turn out a dark, moist, traditional fruit cake. On the other hand, those recipes which call for light seedless raisins, dried apricots, honey, candied cherries and peels, but no spices or dark dried fruits, will produce a light cake.

Very dark, very rich and heavily fruited is this

Dark Holiday Fruit Cake.

Three-fourths cup prunes.
Three-fourths cup dried figs.
One-half cup seeded raisins.
One and one-half cups light raisins.
One-half cup halved candied cherries.
One-half cup cut preserved orange peel.
One cup cut citron.
One-half cup thick orange marmalade.
Two tablespoons molasses.
One cup chopped or ready-diced blanched almonds.
Three-fourths teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One-half teaspoon mace.
One teaspoon allspice.
One-fourth teaspoon ginger.
One teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon brandy flavoring.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-fourth cup apricot whole fruit nectar.
One cup shortening.
One and one-fourth cups sugar.
Four eggs.
Two cups sifted all-purpose flour.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon baking powder.

Cover prunes and figs with water and simmer 10 minutes; drain thoroughly. Cut prunes from pits into small pieces. Clip stems from figs and cut figs into thin strips. Rinse and drain raisins; chop seeded ones.

Combine all fruits, peels, citron, marmalade, molasses, almonds, spices, salt, flavorings and nectar. Blend thoroughly and let stand while preparing batter and pans.

Sift together flour, soda and baking powder and add half to creamed mixture. Beat well. Stir in fruit mixture. Add remainder of flour mixture and mix until very well blended.

Pour into nine-inch tube pan lined with two thicknesses greased brown paper. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) about three hours. Place shallow pan of water in bottom of oven during baking. Test with pick before removing from oven.

Yield: about four pounds cake.

This cake is not as rich as Dark Holiday fruit cake. It relies more on the natural sweetness and rich flavor of dried fruits than on the candied fruits for its qualities.

Harvest Fruit Cake.

One cup dried figs.
Two cups light or dark raisins.
One cup cooked prunes.
One and one-half cups diced mixed candied fruits.
Grated rind of one orange.
One and one-half cups chopped nuts.
One-fourth cup fruit juice.
Three and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour.
One cup shortening.
One cup brown sugar (packed).
One cup granulated sugar.
Four eggs.
One teaspoon nutmeg.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon mace.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
One teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon baking powder.

Rinse figs, cover with water and boil five minutes. Drain and slice fine. Rinse raisins and drain. Pit prunes and chop fine. Combine all fruits, orange rind, nuts and fruit juice.

To thix mixture add one-half the flour and mix well. Cream shortening and sugars together thoroughly. Beat in eggs one at a time.

Sift remaining flour with spices, salt, soda and baking powder. Stir into creamed mixture. Add fruit mixture and blend thoroughly.

Turn into 10-inch tube pan which has been lined with two thicknesses of greased brown paper and one of greased waxed paper.

Bake in slow oven (275 degrees) two and one-half hours. Place shallow pan of water on bottom shelf of oven while baking.

Yield: four to five pounds cake.

Prefer a light fruit cake? Then this recipe is for you.

Vanilla Light Fruit Cake.

One pound (two and three-fourths cups) whole white raisins.
One pound (two and one-half cups) sliced candied pineapple.
One pound (two and one-fourth cups) chopped glazed cherries.
One-half pound (one and one-fourth cups) sliced citron.
One-fourth pound (one and one-fourth cups) chopped candied orange or lemon peel.
One pound (three and three-fourths cups) chopped pecans.
One cup shortening.
One cup sugar.
One and one-half teaspoons pure vanilla extract.
Five eggs.
Three cups sifted all-purpose flour.
Three teaspoons double-acting baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth cup pineapple juice.

Chop fruit and pecans and set aside for later use. Cream shortening, sugar and pure vanilla extract until fluffy.

Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with pineapple juice. Stir in chopped fruit and pecans.

Line a 10 by four-inch round cake pan with brown paper and grease. Add cake batter. Bake in a preheated slow oven (300 degrees) three and three-fourths hours or until done. Keep a large flat pan of hot water on rack underneath cake throughout baking period.

Yield: six and one-fourth pounds fruit cake.

Light and Dark Fruit Cake is the answer if your household is divided on which kind of fruit cake is preferred.

This uses one basic batter, with light colored fruits and blanched almonds in the blonde half and dark fruits, walnuts and spices added to the other portion. By spooning one batter over the other in the same pan, the unusual layered effect is obtained. Like all fruit cakes, this should be baked early and ripened at least a month so the flavors blend and the cake softens for easy slicing.

Light and Dark Fruit Cake

Light Mixture:
One cup golden raisins.
One cup dried apricots.
Two cups blanched almonds.
Two cups mixed diced candied fruits.
One-half teaspoon ginger.

Dark Mixture:
One cup dark raisins.
One cup cooked prunes.
Two cups walnuts.
Two cups mixed diced candied fruits.
One teaspoon cloves.
One teaspoon allspice.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.

Batter:
One and one-half cups shortening.
Two cups sugar.
Six eggs.
Four cups sifted all-purpose flour.
Two teaspoons salt.

As Much a Part of Christmas as the Candles

The gaily decorated tree, the twinkling candles, the bright sprigs of holly—and fruitcake; all are a part of the Christmas tradition. Bake your cake now so that it will be well-aged and mellow; decorate it after it has been properly aged. You can give a nice glaze to a baked fruitcake by spreading it with hot corn sirup which has been brought to a full rolling boil. Quick trick pictured here: tiny marzipan fruits are used as the decoration.

These Hints Will Make The Task Easier

HERE ARE a few ideas that may help you when baking your holiday fruit cakes. Like Christmas shopping, fruit cake baking should be done early for best results.

Modern homemakers take fruit cake baking in their stride by dividing the preparation into three parts, which need not necessarily follow on three consecutive days. The first part is selecting the recipe and doing the shopping. The second is preparing the dried fruits, candied fruits, fresh dates, walnuts and almonds and preparing the pans for baking. The last part is putting the cake together, baking it and preparing it for aging.

This list will make shopping for fruit cake ingredients easier:

One pound dates measures about two cups.

One pound raisins, prunes, dried apricots, dried peaches, dried pears or dried figs measures about three and one-fourth to three and one-half cups.

One pound cut-up candied fruits, peels, shelled almonds or brazil nuts measures about three cups.

One pound shelled walnuts or pecans measures about four cups.

One pound dried apples measures about five cups.

(Blanched slivered almonds are available in some stores in vacuum-packed tins).

To blanch almonds means to remove their little brown skins. Do it this way: Cover almonds with water; bring to a boil. Drain off water and as soon as cool enough to handle, slip off skins individually by holding nut between thumb and forefinger and pressing gently.

Blanched almonds sliver easiest when they are warm. Use the tip of a paring knife to split them. Lay flat side down on a cutting board and cut each half into three or four lengthwise slivers with a sharp knife.

In baking more than one fruit cake at a time, place them on the oven rack so the air can circulate between them. A shallow pan of water in the bottom of the oven during baking will give the cakes a soft crust.

No special pans are required for fruit cakes. The most majestic, handsome cakes are usually baked in tube pans. Loaves are popular, as are small round cakes.

One pound coffee cans, custard cups and fruit and vegetable cans bake nice-sized cakes for holiday gifts.

Since most fruit cakes require long slow baking, extra precautions must be taken so

Light-n-Dark Fruitcake

Hints

the cake will not develop an undesirable heavy crust. These are:

1. Line greased pans carefully with two thicknesses greased brown paper and one thickness greased waxed paper.

2. Fill prepared pans to not more than one inch from top.

3. Space cakes evenly on rack with enough room between pans for heat to circulate freely.

4. Put a shallow pan of water on floor of oven while cakes bake.

Lining your pans for fruit cakes is easy if you do it this way. First cut a sheet of waxed paper to fit pan, allowing it to extend an inch above top edge.

Make slashes not folds, in paper so it will fit pan smoothly.

Cut two sheets of brown paper from this pattern. Then grease all three sheets of paper separately and stack them, brown paper first then waxed, before fitting into greased pan.

If you are baking some large and some small fruit cakes this guide will be helpful.

Bake all cakes in slow oven (275 to 300 degrees). Miniature cakes baked in custard cups take about one hour. One pound cakes take about two hours. Larger cakes take anywhere from two and one-half to three and one-half hours depending on their size. Test all cakes for doneness before removing from oven.

As soon as fruit cakes are baked remove them to wire rack to cool. Leave pan-lining papers on cake. When cold, wrap in additional waxed paper or aluminum foil and store in air-tight container for aging period.

If desired, cakes may be wrapped in brandy-soaked cloths. In this case, remove pan-lining paper and sprinkle cake with brandy. Wrap in brandy-soaked cheese cloth and then in aluminum foil.

It is the carefully wrapped, well-aged cakes which have the best flavor, since it takes time to develop and mellow the flavor. Fruit cakes may be stored in a freezer, but not until they have been well-aged first.

* * *

Well-aged fruit cakes, even those with large pieces of fruit and whole walnuts, almond or Brazil nuts, will slice easily. It always helps to have the cake chilled first and to use a very sharp knife.

Fruitcake That Is A Confection

Fruit Cake Confection.

Fruit:

One cup (one-inch pieces) candied pineapple.

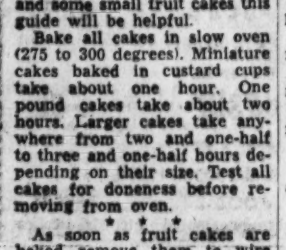

One cup candied cherries.

Three tablespoons finely cut citron.

Three and one-half cups whole pecan halves.

Wash the sugar from all the fruit and dry on paper towels.

Batter:

One-third cup shortening.

Three tablespoons brown sugar, packed.

Three tablespoons honey.

Two eggs, well beaten.

One-half cup sifted flour.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-half teaspoon baking powder.

One-eighth teaspoon allspice.

One-eighth teaspoon nutmeg.

Two tablespoons orange juice.

Corn sirup.

Cream shortening. Add sugar and mix. Add honey. Beat. Add eggs and beat. Sift together remaining dry ingredients and add with orange juice. Stir to blend.

Line an eight-inch layer pan with two thicknesses of waxed paper and oil the top layer of paper. Spread one-third of batter over bottom of pan. Mix into the rest of the batter all of the fruit and nuts except a few cherries and nuts for decorating the top of the cake.

Pile the fruit-nut mixture on top of the plain batter in pan, packing down and leveling off the top. Decorate with cherries and nuts. Cover with brown paper and tie securely. Set in a pan of water for the first hour of baking. Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for two hours. Brush with hot corn sirup.

To store, wrap in waxed paper or foil. Keep in refrigerator. Use within two months.

Cranberry Conserve

Cook one pound fresh cranberries with one cup water until skins burst, about eight minutes. Add two cups diced peeled apples, one cup diced fresh oranges, one-half cup seedless raisins and three and one-half cups sugar.

Cook until mixture thickens, about 25 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in one-half cup chopped nuts and one-fourth teaspoon ground cinnamon. Turn into hot sterilized jars. Seal at once.

Yield: Approximately four half-pint jars.

Honey Fruitcake

Honey does for fruitcake what fruitcake does for Christmas—makes it something special. Honey adds a subtle flavor, never overpowering. It also holds moisture within the cake.

Honey fruit cakes are rich, yet delicate of flavor — and honey has the ability to hold moisture within the cake.

Yield: Two cakes two and three-fourts pounds each.

Unusual Feature To This Fruitcake

An unusual feature of this cake is the crushed canned cling peaches used for the liquid, giving it a golden hue. For the ripening period, wrap the cake in a cloth moistened with brandy or dessert wine, then wrap again in foil.

Avocado Test

Be careful when selecting avocados for ripeness not to pinch the delicate fruit. Cup an avocado between the palms of your hands and press very gently.

If the fruit "gives," it is eating-ripe.

Brazil Nut Cakes

Take your choice—here are two types of fruitcakes. The loaf is made with whole Brazil nuts, dates and maraschino cherries. The tube cake style has chopped citron and Brazil nuts.

Fruitcakes, rich with dried fruits and nuts, are ideal for thoughtful giving as well as for holiday entertaining.

The loaf cake is quick to make, since the whole fruits are merely blended with the flour and eggs. The cake baked in the tube pan follows the usual recipe for combining finely cut citron, raisins and chopped Brazil nuts.

To make the fruitcake job an easy assembly one, have the Brazil nuts shelled ahead of baking time. To crack Brazil nuts, cover with cold water; bring to a boil and boil about five minutes. Drain and cover nuts with cold water for a minute; drain and the nutmeats are easily removed.

Brazil Nut Tropical Cake.

One pound pitted dates.

One cup (one 8-ounce jar) drained maraschino cherries.

Three-fourths cup sifted all-purpose flour.

Three-fourths cup sugar.

One-half teaspoon baking powder.

One-half teaspoon salt.

Three eggs.

One teaspoon vanilla.

Put Brazil nuts, dates and cherries into large bowl. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt over nuts and fruit; mix with hands until nuts and fruits are coated.

Beat eggs until foamy; add vanilla. Stir into nut-fruit mixture until well mixed. Turn into greased and waxed paper lined pan nine and one-half by five and one-fourth by two and three-fourths inches. Spread evenly in pan.

Bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) one hour and 45 minutes. Cake must be cooled before slicing.

Brazil Nut Fruitcake.

One and one-fourth cups shelled Brazil nuts.

Three ounces finely cut candied orange peel.

Six ounces thinly sliced citron.

Two cups raisins.

One cup currants.

One-half cup well-drained maraschino cherries.

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour.

One-half teaspoon baking soda.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One teaspoon cinnamon.

One-half teaspoon allspice.

One-half teaspoon ground cloves.

One-half cup shortening.

One tablespoon grated orange rind.

One cup firmly packed brown sugar.

Four eggs.

Three tablespoons unsulphured molasses.

One-half cup orange juice.

Cover Brazil nuts with cold water and bring slowly to a boil and boil three minutes, or until the nuts can be sliced easily. Drain and cut in thin, lengthwise slices. If desired, reserve perfect slices for decorating top of cakes.

Combine remaining Brazil nuts in bowl with orange peel, citron, dates, raisins, currants and cherries.

Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and spices; mix one-half cup with the fruit and nut mixture.

Cream shortening with orange rind in large mixing bowl; add brown sugar and cream well. Beat in eggs one at a time. Combine molasses with orange juice and add alternately with dry ingredients to shortening mixture. Mix in prepared Brazil nuts and fruit.

Turn into four loaf pans six-by-three-by-two inches, or four six-inch round pans, or into a 10-inch tube pan, which have been greased and lined on the bottom with waxed paper.

To decorate cakes, arrange Brazil nut slices to form flowers; press additional cherries in center. Bake in a very slow oven (275 degrees) one hour and 30 minutes for loaf pans and round pans, and two hours for tube pan. Remove from oven and brush with *Glaze.

Fruitcake Glaze.

One tablespoon light corn sirup.

Two tablespoons brown sugar.

Two tablespoons water.

Two tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine corn sirup, brown sugar and water. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. bring to full boil; add lemon juice.

Tips on Glazing, Decorating

Honey-glazed dried apricots, prunes and fresh dates make attractive decorations for fruit cakes. Combine equal parts of honey, sugar and water and cook a few minutes to form a nice sirup. In the meantime cook the dried fruits 15 minutes and drain thoroughly. Add the fruits to the honey sirup and simmer until nicely-glazed. Drain thoroughly on wire rack.

You can give a nice glaze to a baked fruit cake by spreading it with hot corn sirup which has been brought to a full rolling boil.

Decorating a fruit cake with pieces of dried fruit, candied fruits, walnuts and almonds is easy if you dip one side of each piece in thick confectioners' sugar icing, and then place on the cake.

New Idea

Ambrosia Teams Rice, Apples Oranges

Ambrosia, "dessert for the gods," is a delightful dessert. In this version of the classic recipe, juicy orange sections, red-skinned apples and flakes of coconut are combined with rice.

Topped with a puff of whipped cream or dessert topping and served in your prettiest dessert dish, it is truly food for the gods.

Rice-Apple Ambrosia.

One teaspoon salt.

One-half cup milk.

One-half teaspoon vanilla.

One can (3½-oz.) flaked coconut (about one and one-third cups).

Two tablespoons lemon juice.

Four medium oranges, sectioned (about one cup).

Put the rice, water and salt in a two-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil. Turn heat down low. Cover. Simmer 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on about 15 minutes.

No-Bake Pie Shells Easier Than Ever

Try this simple crust with a smooth Lime Chiffon filling (or if you want a really quick dessert, use your favorite instant

Lime Chiffon Pie

One-fourth cup soft butter or margarine.

Three eggs, separated.

Three-fourths cup sugar.

One three-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin.

One tablespoon grated lime rind.

One-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar.

Blend butter and sugar; mix well with corn flake crumbs. Press evenly and firmly around sides and bottom of nine-inch pie pan. Chill.

Mix egg yolks, half of the sugar, salt and lime juice in small saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Remove from heat.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Beat into egg yolk mixture with rotary beater. Chill until partially set. Stir in grated lime rind and green coloring; beat until smooth.

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until frothy. Add remaining sugar gradually, beating until egg whites stand in stiff peaks. Fold into gelatin mixture. Spread lightly in pie shell. Chill until set, about one hour.

C. OF C. TO INCREASE ITS DUES 10 PER CENT

A 10 per cent increase in membership dues of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, to finance expanded activities, has been approved by directors of the chamber, it was announced today.

The increase, which will become effective next Jan* 1, is expected to produce about $40,000 annually in additional revenue. The chamber has about 3000 dues-paying members, both individuals and firms.

Approval of the increase was given simultaneously with approval of a ne wfive-point program of expanded activity for the chamber "in coming months and years."

The new program calls for accelerated activity in soliciting new industry for the St. Louis area, including the hiring of a man on a full-time basis to remain in the field and present the advantages of St. Louis as an area for industrial location.

The other points are: Publication of a cross-indexed directory of the 3500 manufacturers in the St. Louis area; an intensive program to bring United Airlines to St. Louis; a pro-business promotional program, with emphasis on paid television programming, and increase representation at the State Legislature.

In a letter to members, Clark Hungerford, board chairman of the chamber, said the five-point program would cost an additional $45,000 annually. The current annual spending of the chamber is about $400,000.

The additional $5000 required for the program is expected to be realized from an intensive new campaign for members, Hungerford said.

The dues increase is the first across-the-board hike to chamber members in 30 years, Hungerford said. In 1952, the minimum dues for individuals was raised from $50 to $60.

STEEL PRODUCTION AT YEAR'S PEAK

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17 (AP)—Steel mill operations last week advanced one point to 75.5 per cent of rated capacity, the highest rate of the year, Steel Magazine reported.

The week's production totaled 2,039,000 net tons and was the largest of any week since that which ended Nov. 3, 1957.

Steel said its industrial production index has exceeded last year's comparative index for the first time in 1958. The index is based on steel and electric power output, freight carloadings and automobile assemblies.

The automotive industry was responsible for the boost in production. Production in the industry last week exceeded that of the comparable week of 1957 for the first time this year.

The metalworking weekly estimated 145,000 automobiles were assembled last week compared with 141,902 in the corresponding week of 1957.

"New cars are selling so well that automakers are scheduling maximum output for the rest of the year," Steel said. It added that auto manufacturers have boosted their November production goal from 531,000 to 590,000 and that in December the industry hopes to turn out 600,000 cars—90,000 more than planned originally.

Fourth Quarter Production.

Fourth quarter production will total about 1,450,000 cars if the revised quotas are met. This would be equal to the total scheduled before strikes over local issues cut the auto output in October.

Steel said the farm machinery industry is leading the recovery among all mass production industries and that tool and die manufacturers are showing signs of climbing out of their slump.

"Average activity is reported in appliances, automotive accessories, electronics, aircraft, missile development and business machines," the magazine added.

Backlog Accumulating.

Backlogs of steel orders are accumulating, due mainly to support by customers in the automotive, construction, appliance, container and agricultural equipment industries, the publication said.

Steel's price composite on steelmaking scrap was unchahged last week at $42.33 a gross ton. The composite on finished steel held at $149.96 a net ton.

Future columns in this twice-monthly feature will deal with Alton Lake and other inland waterways, past and present.

BUSINESS NEWS AND DIVIDENDS PUSH STOCKS UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP)—The stock market rose to another record peak today despite late profit taking which cut many gains and brought some losses.

Gains ran from fractions to a point or more among leading stocks. Losers were in around the same range. Exceptions were Goodyear, up 6¾, Johnson & Johnson, up 3½ and United Fruit, off 2½, after paring a loss of around 6 on a dividend reduction.

The market was higher from the start, survived some profit taking and was around the day's best in the final hour when many prices began to weaken. The ticker tape was late for the fourth time at the close.

Steels, rails, electronics, oils and utilities were gainers. Aircrafts, rubbers, chemicals, coppers and drugs were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.00 to a new record of $207.60 with the industrials up 90 to a record high, the rails up $1.40 to a 1958 high and the utilities up 60 cents, to a new high for the year.

Of 1279 issues traded in an exceptionally broad market 597 rose and 451 fell. There were 192 new highs for the year and 4 new lows.

Based on the rise in the AP average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange rose an estimated $1,284,000,000.

Volume was 4,540,000 shares compared with 4,390,000 on Friday.

Standard & Poor's index of 500 stock was 53.20 up .15 of a point at the close; the 425 industrials 56.90 pj .14; the 25 rails 33.71 up 1.49, and the 50 utilities 41.25 up .17.

The United Press International said a long list of favorable dividend actions, a rise to a new high for many months in the industrial production index and several favorable corporation reports helped boost prices by fractions to more than a point in the main list of stocks.

Latest News From World Of Business

AMERICAN, ZINC, LEAD and Smelting Co., nine months' net was $719,354 equal to 61 cents a common share compared with net of $909,901 or 77 cents a share in the comparable 1957 period. Third quarter net was $248,026 equivalent to 21 cents a share against net of $9,858 or one cent a share in the third quarter last year. Shipments of manufactured zinc and all other products in the nine months just ended were 17 per cent below those of the corresponding period last year, the company said.

DEMAND FOR PRINT cloths was strong in the cotton textile market Monday with mills boosting prices to a lesser degree. Broadcloths and sheetings experienced more action. Converters showed more inclination to cover cloth needs for the second half of next year. The popular 80 square print cloth was up ⅛ cent a yard at 17¾ cents a yard for spot goods of average makes but most mills quoted 18 cents for that number.

STEEL PRODUCTION failed to come up to expectations last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute said. Production totaled 2,011,000 tons, equal to 74.5 per cent of capacity, instead of the 2,029,000 tons which had been expected. This week a further decline is in prospect with production scheduled at 74.3 per cent of capacity, which would result in 2,005,000 tons.

JOHNSON & JOHNSON, Inc., directors proposed a 2½ for 1 common stock split. The present stock carries a par value of $12.50 a share. The new shares would have a par value of $5. The proposal will be put before stockholders at a special meeting Dec. 19.

CASH DIVIDENDS PAID on common stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange inched up to a new record high during the first nine months of the year, the Exchange Magazine said. The total was $6,381,103,210, a slim $11,200,000 more than in the like period of 1957. The rise was made possible by a sharp spurt in dividends in five industrial groups — utilities, petroleum and natural gas, financial, chemicals and retail trade. Cutting back were railroads and railroad equipments, mining companies, steel and iron, automotive and textiles.

EL PASO NATURAL GAS Co. reported nine-month net income of $24,674,552 compared with $25,043,585 in the like period last year. Sales of $262,200,675 compared with $214,013,976 in the first nine months of 1957. Net was equal to $1.11 per common share, after provision for preferred dividends, vs. $1.21 a share in the year ago period. Third quarter earnings were $7,192,761, equal to 31 cents a common share, compared with $8,549,381 or 40 cents a share in the like quarter last year. President Paul Kayser said sales were up in the first nine months because of the completion of major expansion programs. He attributed the dip in earnings to economic and weather conditions in the area served by the company and subsidiaries.

CONSTRUCTION CONtracts in 1959 will hit a record $35,600,000,000, up 3 per cent over this year's $34,700,000,000, F. W. Dodge Corp. predicted. Dodge said the principal upward push will come from private projects next year, in contrast to the 1958 pattern when government owned construction sparked the recovery from recession. The biggest percentage increase, 14 per cent, is expected in contracts for new factories, measured in terms of floor area. Total public and private housing starts this year are estimated at 1,160,000 and no change is indicated in this category for 1959. Because of rising costs, dollar volume of residential contracts is estimated at one per cent above the 1958 level. Because of a trend toward smaller units, including apartments, physical volume measured in floor area is expected to decline by 2 per cent.

WHEAT, CORN PRICES SHOW GAIN AT CLOSE

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—A fairly broad active demand sent most corn futures prices substantially higher at times today on the Board of Trade while other grains and soybeans shifted in narrow ranges both above and below previous closes.

Cash receipts of corn over the weekend were considerably less than had been expected and commission houses took the initiative in bidding prices up. The rise brought out an additional volume of buying, by shorts to cover their positions.

Needed rain and snow in much of the Great Plains weakened wheat prices in early trading but that grain firmed up, too, on later demand with nearly all contracts going to the plus side at times.

Wheat finished ½@¾c a bushel higher, December $1.97¼@97; corn ½@1¼c higher, December old type contract $1.14@14⅛; oats ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, December 65⅜; rye unchanged to ½c higher, December $1.32¼@32; soybeans unchanged to ⅝c higher, November $2.13⅞@¾.

LONDON MARKET UNCERTAIN

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The military coup in the Sudan brought uncertain conditions to the stock market today.

Government bonds generally were lower on renewed selling pressure. Dollar stocks mainly were higher in response to Friday's advance on Wall Street. Canadian stocks, however, were occasionally lower. Industrials opened firm and later reacted. Many leaders lost initial gains and were lower.

Oil shares opened firm and closed dull. South African gold shares were quiet and mainly easier with one or two firm exceptions. Coppers and other base metal shares were quiet.

Two U.S. Schoolgirls to Inherit Austrian Castle and $250,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17 (AP) — Two San Francisco schoolgirls Ildika Lorraine, 16 years old, and her sister, Sarolta, 18, will inherit an Austrian castle and one-fourth of a $1,000,000 estate, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

The girls live in an apartment over a grocery.

The Chronicle said today they are the daughters of the late Archduke Albrecht von Hapsburg-Lothringen, who once hoped for the crown of Hungary. He died in 1955.

The newspaper said it learned of the girls' good fortune by telephone from Christian Broda, an attorney in Vienna. Broda said an Austrian court had ruled that the archduke's true wife was their mother, Catherine Lorraine, a clerk in a financial district office in San Francisco.

She had not told the girls that they might become title holders until 1952 when she filed a suit here and became their legal guardian.

"They grew up as Americans, thanks to God," the mother declared.

The mother is to receive a comfortable living from the estate, Broda said, but the daughters will get a much larger share.

The Austrian court refused to recognize a Mexican divorce the archduke had obtained, the attorney continued, and then ruled that it would not recognize his subsequent marriage to Lidia Straus, a Hungarian singer with whom he lived in Buenos Aires until his death.

The mother's 1938 marriage to the archduke broke up shortly after they fled to America in 1944, the newspaper said, and the mother and her daughters settled in San Francisco while the archduke took the name Alberto Conde Sirana and moved to Latin America.

Ildika is a student at the convent of the Sacred Heart in San Francisco and Sarolta is a freshman at San Diego (Calif.) College for Women.

They are to get Vilburg castle near Vienna and one-quarter of the family estate, 12,000 acres of farmland.

The Chronicle did not explain what is to happen to the other three-quarters of the estate.

Mrs. Lorraine, who became a United States citizen in 1955, said she was going to her job today as usual.

"I have a job and I have to keep it. I have no money yet except what I earn."

Mrs. Lorraine said her late husband was a descendant of Austrian Empress Maria Theresa who married a duke of the French province of Lorraine. Lothringen, she said, is the German word for Lorraine, which she has adopted as her name.

JORDAN DROPS U.N. COMPLAINT AGAINST SYRIA

AMMAN, Nov. 17 (AP)—Premier Samir Rifai announced in Parliament today that Jordan's complaint to the United Nations concerning the interception by Syria last week of King Hussein's plane is being withdrawn.

Foreign sources in Amman have heard that King Hussein reconsidered and declines now to have an incident involving his person obstruct chances for improvement of inter-Arab relations.

The cabinet met last night to indorse the statement, which was made to an emergency joint meeting of both houses of Parliament. It was the second such meeting of Parliament in a week.

Rifai last Tuesday announced his government's intention to present the air incident to the U.N. Security Council.

BISHOP BYRNE SAYS K. OF C. IS 'GREAT SOURCE OF HELP'

The Knights of Columbus, Catholic laymen's fraternal order, was praised as a "great source of help" to the Catholic Church last night by the Most Rev. Leo C. Byrne, auxiliary bishop of St. Louis. He spoke at the exemplification banquet of the organization's Missouri Eastern District at Hotel Chase.

Bishop Byrne said the order is particularly worthy of great praise for its notable contributions towards establishment of the Pius XII Library here and its national religious advertising campaign, which has resulted in receipt of more than 1500 mail inquiries a day concerning the Catholic faith.

About 1000 persons attended the banquet which followed ceremonies in which 135 candidates were elected to the fourth degree of the order. The candidates were from the Missouri Eastern District.

EISENHOWER CONFERS WITH SPACE AGENCY HEAD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI) — President Eisenhower and the head of the new National space agency conferred for more than half an hour today on means of financing scientific progress to the moon and beyond.

The Chief Executive and Dr. T. Keith Glennon, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, discussed the agency's budget for the first full year of operation.

Presumably, they also discussed a growing row between the new civilian space agency and military departments over taking scientists from the armed services and transferring them to NASA. Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said, however, that the conference was called to discuss purely budgetary matters.

THEOLOGICAL LEADER MAKES PLEA FOR CHRISTIAN UNITY

Christian unity is needed in order for the church to have its full impact in bringing about a better world, the Rev. Dr. Henry Pitney Van Dusen of New York, president of Union Theological Seminary, said yesterday. He spoke at services dedicating the new Second Baptist Church, Clayton and McKnight roads, Richmond Heights.

"There is not one major problem in this vast, complex metropolis of St. Louis upon which the Protestant churches can make a significant impact by congregations or even by denomination," the Rev. Dr. Van Dusen said in his plea for concerted effort. "This is also true of the church's impact on the world of nations."

Other speakers included the Rev. Leon R. Robison Jr., pastor; the Rev. Dr. O. Walter Wagner of the Metropolitan Church Federation, Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel, and Mrs. Maurice B. Hodge, president of the American Baptist Convention. Ground for the new church was broken in March 1956. The former location was at Kingshighway and Washington avenue, in the city.

FILLING STATION WORKERS ISSUE WARNING OF STRIKE

Negotiations for a new contract between employes and management of service stations in the St. Louis area were to continue tomorrow, after union negotiators issued a warning that a deadlock was near.

The warning was made by officers of Local 618, Teamsters' Union, representing about 3000 employes of more than 1200 stations. A recent extension of negotiations was "the last step before taking a strike vote," Melroy Horn, president of the local union, said.

Service station employes have been working without a contract for about four months, since the old one expired. Horn termed "inadequate" a management proposal for a 20-cent hourly wage increase. The current hourly wage is $1.78.

—Associated Press Wirephoto
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

More rain is expected in the St. Louis area tomorrow, the Weather Bureau said. Colder weather will prevail tomorrow, and should continue through Thursday, the bureau predicted.

Heavy rains recorded in Missouri and Illinois continued over much of the two-state area today. Precipitation measuring more than one inch in the 24 hours ended this morning was general in the two states. One of the heaviest falls was 3.9 inches at West Plains, Mo.

Wintry weather extended today into the Southwest after the season's first general blizzard in the Rocky mountain region and northern Plains over the week-end. Heavy snow covered wide areas with falls ranging from several feet in the mountains to four inches near the Mexican border.

Cold air prevailed over an area from the Pacific ocean eastward across the Rockies through the Dakotas and into northern Minnesota. The leading edge of the cold air extended southwestward through eastern Nebraska, central Kansas, the Panhandle and into southeast New Mexico.

Showers and thundershowers fell from Kansas and Oklahoma northeastward through the Great Lakes region and Ohio valley eastward through Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Democratic Leaders Split Over Question of Civil Rights Plank

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP) — Democratic state chairmen are nearly equally divided on whether the party should adopt a strong civil rights plank in 1960 or compromise with the South.

This division of sentiment was apparent in replies received from Democratic leaders in 43 states to an Associated Press inquiry on the issue.

The survey disclosed some strong support outside the South for dealing with civil rights on a basis which would not drive Dixie members out of the party in a presidential year.

On the other hand, chairmen of 18 states representing 596 of the 1372 votes in the 1956 national convention took a no-compromise stand. They declared for a strong plank even if it means a Southern walkout.

These 18 states included: New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island in the East; Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska and Missouri in the Midwest; Colorado, Washington, Oregon and California in the West.

Southern Stand.

Eleven Southern chairmen were solidly against the party taking any stronger position than it did two years ago, particularly on school integration.

Chairmen of 11 other states, mostly in the Midwest, said the views of Southern delegates should be taken into consideration in defining the party's position.

Arizona Chairman Joseph Walton, Maryland's T. Barton Harrington and Nevada's Fred Strosnider declined comment. Strosnider said national Chairman Paul M. Butler had instructed party officials not to answer such questions.

Butler expects to find himself involved with the issue at a party national committee meeting here Dec. 6. He has said his remaining as chairman may depend on reaction to his demand for a stronger civil rights plank than that of 1956.

Two years ago, the Democrats committed themselves to "continued efforts to eliminate illegal discrimination of any kind," including that in public education.

Two state chairmen outside the South said a similarly worded plank would be acceptable to them. They were Oklahoma's Loyd Benefield and Vermont's E. Frank Branon.

For 1956 Plank.

Virginia's Thomas H. Blanton and Arkansas's Tom Harper said they think the party went far enough in 1956. They indicated they would accept a statement similar to that of two years ago.

New Hampshire J. Murray Devine came out for a compromise with the South.

"I believe in a moderate approach to the problem," he said. "You can't legislate this sort of thing. If we push it too fast we might destroy not only the Democratic party, but the whole country."

Delaware's Garret E. Lyons said he favors a practical approach "which will unite, not divide, Democrats and which takes into consideration sectional problems."

William L. Coleman, Ohio chairman, said, "I never saw any problem of this sort which couldn't be solved if everyone concerned was determined to sit down and solve it."

In a similar vein, Maine's Alton A. Lessard said he is for a "firm" rather than a "strong" plank. Indiana Chairman Charles E. Skillern said he favors a moderate civil rights plank.

Would Get Along With South.

Kansas's Frank Theis said that while the party must have a strong plank "I also favor getting along with the South."

Seaborn P. Collins of New Mexico called for a compromise that would satisfy a majority of the delegates. Montana's Hugh Lemire said he, too, is inclined to compromise.

Wyoming's Teno Roncalio said he favors a compromise, but called for "some leadership with guts to enforce the law of the land."

Oregon's David Epps said the Democrats must have a stronger civil rights plank than the Republicans.

"We have to go farther to retain the North," he said. "No one likes to have a split or lose anyone, but if we have to lose somebody, I'd rather lose the South."

Wisconsin's Patrick J. Lucey said he does not think the South will bolt, but "the wiser heads in the South must recognize that the election results this month are a mandate for a stronger stand on civil rights."

Sees No Choice.

Michigan's Neil Staebler said the party has no choice but to adopt a strong plank.

John M. Bailey, Connecticut chairman, put it this way in arguing for a stronger plank: "We've got to make our stand. What the South does is their business."

Missouri's Wilbur F. Daniels said that so far as he is concerned "there can't be any compromise with the law."

Southerners made it clear they hold strong sentiments on the other side.

Georgia's John Sammons Bell said the Northerners will cave in when the time comes.

South Carolina's Thomas H. Pope and North Carolina's Woodrow W. Jones both suggested that the Democrats adopt a platform without mentioning civil rights.

EISENHOWER HEARS SERMON PRAISING SOUTHERN SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (UPI) — President and Mrs. Eisenhower went to church yesterday and heard a sermon praising a southern school for refusing to be "bought" into teaching the doctrine of white supremacy.

The Rev. Edward L. R. Elson, the President's pastor at the National Presbyterian Church here, noted that Jefferson Military College in Mississippi had rejected an offer of $50,000 several years ago rather than teach such a doctrine.

THREE-LEGGED, BLIND DOG SAVES MAN FROM COOLER

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—Taffy, 8-year-old dog, has only three legs and is partly blind.

He was out on the sidewalk Saturday when milkman James A. Kirkpatrick stopped to make a delivery. Kirkpatrick entered the refrigerated back end of the truck and the door slammed shut, locking him in.

The milkman began beating on the door and yelling, and Taffy began barking. Mrs. Lamar Parish, the dog's owner, went out to see what was bothering the dog. She heard Kirkpatrick's calls and released him.

Jazz Show Leaves The Joint Jumping

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.

WE ARE WATCHING what looks very much like a revival of the glorious days of jazz and may even go beyond them. Just about a year ago was the first network jazz show of any importance, "The Sound of Jazz" on Seven Lively Arts which opened the gates to several regular jam shows, notably Bobby Troup's "Stars of Jazz" and Art Ford's jazz party, and, intermittent shows like the Timex programs.

BOB CROSBY

Last Monday's hour-long Timex show—with Louis Armstrong, Bob Crosby and his Bobcats, Les Brown's band, Gene Krupa, Lionel Hampton, the Chico Hamilton quintet, Anita O'Day and Hoagy Carmichael — was one of the best jazz shows I ever saw or heard. But it carried within it the seeds of destruction for future jazz shows simply because it prodigally ran through most of jazz's best practitioners to say nothing of all jazz standbys from "One O'Clock Jump" to "South Rampart Street Parade." It was a great tuneful show that left the joint jumping but what are you going to do next time?

> "The difficulty of writing a jazz show," said George Simon who wrote this one and many others, "is writing as little as possible. I, being a jazz critic for 22 years, have a terrific desire to preach the gospel. I have to remember that the music speaks more eloquently than the words that I put in anybody's mouth. What can you say about Louis Armstrong except, 'Here's Louis Armstrong.'"

Fortunately, not only the introductions to Armstrong were held down but Armstrong himself was reined in tightly, something that has not always been possible. Armstrong has a tendency to act as if he's playing end man in an old-fashioned minstrel show unless closely watched.

The Timex show opened explosively with Armstrong and Les Brown's band belting "One O'Clock Jump," shifted smoothly into Armstrong singing "I Love Jazz" which was much better than talk about jazz. And, after the briefest possible introduction by Carmichael and Crosby, they swung into a perfectly marvelous "Moonglow" with Lionel Hampton on the vibraphone and Gene Krupa on the drums.

From there on the show hardly touched ground, each number succeeding the one ahead with the barest of interruptions. The evening was long on Dixieland and perhaps a little too strong on percussion but it was a real wild evening. As a concession to the modernists there was Chico Hamilton and his quintet whose jazz is pretty far out, but mostly it was the more popular and recognizable Dixieland and swung with a heavily emphasized beat.

"Today's jazz musicians are much better schooled than they used to be," Simon pointed out. "After bop, they got interested in harmony and counterpoint work and I've always had a pet theory I evolved when I was in the Glenn Miller band (he was first drummer in that band) during the war. It is that when the jazz musicians were thrown together with classical musicians in the barracks and in the bands they learned, or started learning, a lot from these guys and started thinking a lot about advanced musical theories. And the G.I. bill made it possible for them to go to schools where some of their instructors knew jazz. A lot of these guys then went out to the Coast, Shorty Rogers, Jerry Mulligan, Chico Hamilton. . . ."

> Simon says he wishes there were more jazz backgrounds on TV. "Many of the studio musicians are the best jazz men around and they could compose jazz backgrounds at very little cost to the production and they could play them themselves. It seems to me it would be more dramatically worth-while than the recorded cliches they use now." I pointed out that more and more movies like "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" were using good jazz backgrounds.

"I wish the newspapers would do as much for jazz as TV. I wish they'd cover jazz, do more articles on it. I can't stand the snide remarks people make about the kind of people jazz musicians are. Jazz is a masculine art—it is because it has robustness and it has guts. The beat and the robustness are coming back to modern jazz. You can't tiptoe around and play jazz."

Simon is trying to get youngsters interested in jazz. He has written the lyrics and narration for a record called "A Child's Introduction to Jazz" which takes jazz from the New Orleans streets clear up to today, tunefully, amusingly, and clearly, and is, think, the best short education in jazz that I know.

Youth Parade—'Right Turn' for High Style

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

1. KNOW YOUR fashion signals. If you've learned your figure type, you'll always make the right turn. That's the assurance of award-winning designer Richard Blackwell, who maintains that smartness depends on styling, not size. For a girl with a petite frame, he selects a wool dress with unbroken line of buttons and pin tucks that add to height illusion. Dress, worn by actress Gloria Talbott, is in stop-signal red which adds a flash of importance to small figure. Necklace is of wool-covered buttons and crystals.

3. The Empire, or high waist, gets the "go ahead" signal on fashion highways. Flattering to most figures, it nips under the chest to emphasize the trim section of the torso. Blackwell's green wool is accented with matching satin scarf, belt and cuffs. And, as Gloria, who is seen on CBS-TV's "The Millionaire," discovered, neckline adjusts from high neck to back drape to side bow.

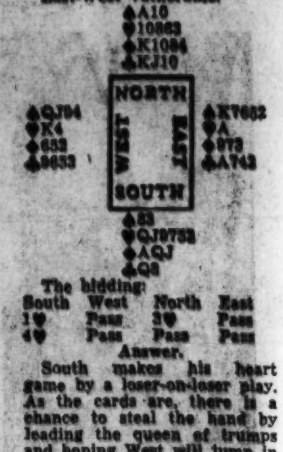

P.S. Learn the style secrets of the stars. Now you can restyle your wardrobe as Hollywood-TV experts do. Write for our photo-illustrated pamphlet, "Time to Restyle." Send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Youth Parade," care of the Post-Dispatch.

Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

YOU ARE declarer of today's four-heart contract and West opens the queen of spades. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play.

East-West vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	3♥	Pass
4♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Answer.

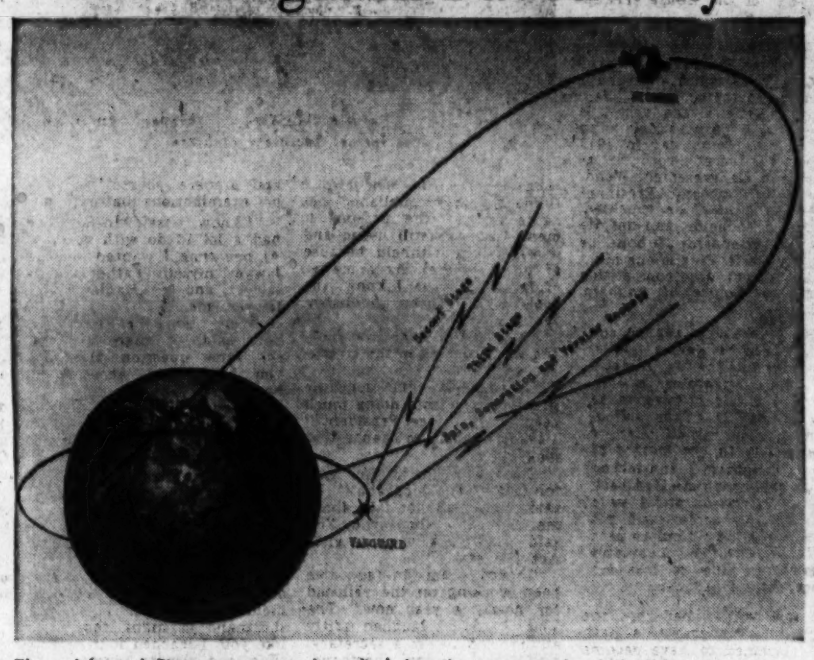

South makes his heart game by a loser-on-loser play. As the cards are, there is a chance to steal the hand by leading the queen of trumps and hoping West will jump in with the king, dropping his partner's ace, but the loser-on-loser play is sure to win.

Declarer takes the spade queen with the ace and leads four rounds of diamonds, discarding his losing spade as a defender ruffs in with a trump trick. If East ruffs with the ace, declarer's only trump loss is to the king. If West ruffs small, declarer later draws trumps with one lead, again losing but one trump. He also loses a club to the ace, making his contract.

Fur Combinations

An example of the vogue of using two furs intead of one in the design of a coat is seen in the combination of silver fox and black dyed broadtail lamb. A collar of the fox appears on a finger-tip length broadtail coat. The coat is shaped so that it has a backward dip from the narrow shoulders.

How Vanguard Paved Way

The celebrated Pioneer moon probe relied heavily on groundwork laid by the Navy's Vanguard scientists. Pioneer's second and third stage, as well as its spin, separation and vernier rockets, were patterned after those developed for Vanguard.

By Dr. I. M. Levitt

Director, Franklin Institute Planetarium, Philadelphia

WHEN PIONEER took off on its abortive but fruitful trip to the moon, it took along the results of several years and tens of millions of dollars of research initiated in the Navy Vanguard program.

Many people begrudge the money — more than $110,000,000 — spent on Vanguard. Certain congressmen have sought to eliminate Vanguard from our space program. Yet these critics are enthusiastic in their praise of Pioneer.

The Air Force undertook to launch a lunar probe within six months and come close to succeeding in five months. How could something so formidable be accomplished so quickly?

The answer is that the Air Force built on what the Naval Research Laboratory and the Martin Co. prefected in the Vanguard project. And while Vanguard scientists have yet to launch their full-scale satellite, the research, ingenuity and resourcefulness lavished on Vanguard is destined to affect the course space travel takes in the immediate future. Even its critics recognize Vanguard as the most sophisticated rocket system in operation today.

More specifically, how did Vanguard lay the groundwork for Pioneer?

Except for the first stage of Pioneer — an Air Force Intermediate Ballistic Missile, the Thor — the vital components of the system were largely patterned after Vanguard.

The second stage of Pioneer was a modified Vanguard second stage using hydrazine and nitric acid as propellants and yielding a thrust of 8000 pounds. These two propellants were chosen because they were hypergolic — that is, they ignited spontaneously on being brought together.

The new high performance solid propellant third stage of the Vanguard (as yet unused in Vanguard itself) was the logical choice for Pioneer's third stage. Pioneer engineers also used the third stage ignition system developed for Vanguard.

In the case of a solid propellant rocket, the nozzle cannot be swiveled with an internal mechanism even if the system could stand the extra weight. Thus, spin rockets must be used to even out irregularities in the rocket exhaust so the desired path can be achieved. The spin rockets used in the third stage and payload of Pioneer were those developed for the Vanguard.

More rockets were needed to separate the stages. Again, rockets developed for Vanguard were used in Pioneer. Vernier rockets—small rockets to control speeds within narrow limits—were also needed, and ones developed after much trial and error for Vanguard were adopted for this moon probe.

These are all contributions to the state of the art made by the Vanguard scientific personnel. They were financed with Naval Research Laboratory funds, but knowledge once acquired knows neither nationality nor master. It is in the public domain for all to use.

Much criticism has been leveled at the Vanguard program because of the lack of successfully launched satellites. Talk of the abandonment of the program has cropped up time and again in Washington circles.

But such an abandonment would be a tragic mistake at this time. Vanguard still has a place in our satellite program. Funds invested so far in the program have been well spent.

There has been little public acknowlegment of the vital role played by the astute Vanguard scientists, but people on the inside realize the debt owed them.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Sylvanus and Evelyn Duvall

"Foremen ought to pitch in and do more work themselves!"

True——— False———

FALSE, according to any number of studies. For example, foremen of railroad section gangs who produced most spent 83 per cent of their time in planning and 15 per cent in working themselves. Foremen of low-producing sections spent almost twice as much time, 29 per cent, in working themselves. Studies of an insurance company and a tractor factory showed that there, also, the high producers spent most of their time in supervision.

All children need restrictions!

True——— False———

True. Children should not be allowed to "run wild." They need boundaries. If you don't set limits for your children, they are confused and insecure. Sometimes they push you to see how far they can go. Among themselves, school-age children devise elaborate rules in their play and strictly see that they are carried out. In this way they learn to control their hostilities and regulate their aggressions—an important part of growing up.

Do teachers resent extra duties?

Yes——— No———

No. Almost all teachers have some non-teaching responsibilities that go with their jobs. One study of 153 elementary school teachers in Oakland, Calif., for instance, showed that they liked some of these, especially work on the social committee, principal's advisory committee and library work. They usually didn't like work in the yard, halls, and least of all, cafeteria duty.

Run---Don't Walk

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I have read recently that when a person sees a varicolored halo around street lights it is a sure sign of glaucoma. I have been seeing such halos for some time. I also find that my vision isn't as acute as it used to be. Nevertheless I can still see without glasses. Would you go to an eye specialist? Mr. D. J.

Answer: I'd run—not walk—to the nearest good eye man. Among other things he will take a tonometer reading to determine the pressure within the eye. If it IS glaucoma, every day counts. Blindness may be due to procrastination.

Bill Vaughan Says

DEFINITIONS OF INDIAN SUMMER may vary, but we look upon it as any period of bright, warm days following the Post Office Department's first mail-early-for-Christmas reminder.

The man at the next desk particularly enjoys watching the old movies on TV because George Raft, Jimmy Cagney and William Powell are all wearing suits just like his.

Great man though he is, Winston Churchill has one sin to answer for, as we are reminded whenever we see a photograph of a winning candidate for highway engineer or circuit clerk making a V-for-victory sign.

Overtime is basic to the American economy. Would there be any chance of getting time and a half for undertime, in case somebody finished a job in a hurry?

A fishing expert suggests freezing the minnows in the refrigerator ice tray. If your wife's luncheon club gets them before you do, they'll be begging her for the recipe.

The bartender at the Bit o' Erin bar and grill calls a creek a crick and a pumpkin a punkin and is under a peace bond for assaulting a customer who said that kind of talk merely proved he was a reverse snob.

Duke Gives Fans What They Want

PARIS, Nov. 17.

THE DUKE OF ELLINGTON was in town this week for a series of concerts. The French audience didn't like his version of "Autumn Leaves."

"If that's the way the cats want it," the Duke said, slicing into a large steak in his hotel room, "I won't play 'Autumn Leaves.' There are some people that wanted me to play nothing but jazz. I don't know what jazz is. It's just a commercial word to me. I played 'Autumn Leaves' at the Apollo Theater in Harlem and that's the greatest barometer of music anywhere. They loved it."

DUKE ELLINGTON

The Duke is over in Europe for three weeks for a tour.

"I got the highest paid, steadiest working orchestra in show business," he said. "We work 52 weeks a year. They get the money and I get the kicks."

Althought the Duke travels constantly, he refuses to fly and has a rider in his contract saying he doesn't have to fly.

"It happened 10 years ago," he said. "I was looking out the window of a plane and couldn't see the wings. I said to myself, 'Man, what am I doing up here?' I figure I work very hard all the time and the least I can be is nice to myself. There is no reason under heaven and earth why I should distress myself unnecessarily. So I gave up flying. I hear on these new planes you can see the wings, but I'm too old to start going back to flying again."

The Duke's been playing for more than 30 years. For this reason his audience is made up of three generations of fans, all of whom seem to prefer the music of their era.

"Some want Dixieland, others want the music to be cool, still others want me to sit around playing 'Mood Indigo.' We give them everything. I don't care what I play. All I'm interested in is communication. We want everyone to come to the party. When they grunt, you know they're communicating."

A few hours later we talked to Leonard Bernstein, who was eating cassoulet. Bernstein, the permanent conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, flew to Paris to conduct three concerts.

One of the numbers the maestro decided to conduct was Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" at the Salle Pleyel. "I'm losing money on it," Bernstein said. "'Sacre' requires 17 more musicians than the Orchestra Lamoureax has. They wanted to cancel the number, so in a fit of frenzy I said I'd pay for the musicians out of my own fee. They couldn't be more delighted. So now the one piece is costing me 300,000 francs, and I didn't even write it."

Bernstein said he was surprised to find French musical tastes so traditional. "They don't go to hear the Second Symphony of Schumann, they go to hear the Fourth. Brahms was only discovered after the second war, and they'll come to hear Beethoven's Fifth and Ninth. There is a small group that understands the craze for modern music, but the big public goes with Mozart."

In order to keep in shape Bernstein will do four concertos as well as conduct the orchestra.

He will also conduct Mahler's Second Symphony for a UNESCO concert. From Paris he will go to Milan. Then he will return to New York, where he has 12,789 things on his calendar.

Strangely enough, Ellington and Bernstein are trying to do the same thing. That is, communicate. Only in this case when Bernstein grunts, the audience knows he's with them.

ALL THE WORLD loves a dog story.

A French couple went up high in the Alps with their little dog, Pierre, and became lost. After a few days they ran out of food and the husband kept looking at Pierre hungrily. The wife, though, begged her husband to hold on a little longer.

Finally the husband said: "We can't wait any longer. We must eat Pierre."

The wife wept as the husband killed the dog. That evening, as the couple ate the cooked dog, she said tearfully: "Wouldn't Pierre have loved these bones."

I Married the VEEP

Barkley's Kentucky 'Line'

By Jane Barkley

As told to Frances Spatz Leighton

Second of a Series.

THE VEEP didn't exactly sweep me off my feet, but the moment he relinquished my hand, he took my elbow and led me among the guests, calling out hellos but not pausing for handshakes. He led me to an isolated corner in the stern of the Margy. I was bewildered. I wasn't sure what this sudden guide service meant. I couldn't remember whether I had excused myself to Marny Clifford or what. The whole thing happened so quickly.

"Ah!" my companion declared, "this will do very nicely!" He indicated a place on a leather-cushioned seat. I was not so sure. The other guests seemed miles away.

"This will be a beautiful night," the Vice President said. "Cool. A full moon. This kind of night brings out the sailor in me. Without a bit of trouble I could imagine myself a pirate and the sleepy Potomac out there a raging sea."

I was tongue-tied. A dozen questions went through my mind. What would the other guests say? Was he just being nice to me because I was the Cliffords' house guest or what? Was this little "escape" to the stern in violation of protocol? I didn't ask any of these questions out loud. Instead I tried to catch up with the Vice President's rapid-fire conversation.

"Have you ever ridden on the President's yacht? It's much larger than this," he said, "but I think this is just the right size for a romantic cruise down the river."

The Vice President sat close to me and in such a way that his back was to the other guests. I had the distinct impression that by giving them his back he was warding them off, so to speak. My impression was confirmed a few moments later when a few guests idled over our way and the Vice President, who was so loquacious with me, spoke to them in mumbled monosyllables. It was not very hard for them to understand that the man they called the Veep was wearing icicles for epaulets.

They melted away, and again we were alone. He was cheerful and talkative once more. "I'm sorry, but I didn't quite catch whether Marny introduced you as Miss or Mrs. Hadley."

"I'm a widow. It's Mrs. Carleton Hadley." My, how very formal my voice is, I added to myself.

"A widow," he repeated. "Mmm. How long have you been a widow?"

I was about to answer his question when I was startled to discover that my hand was in his. I could feel a blush coming on. "I've been a widow for five years."

"I've been alone now for over two years," he said slowly, and then, speaking quickly to cover what was obviously a painful thought, he said. "Five years! You must have wonderful powers of resistance!"

The Vice President was fresh! I thought it but I didn't say it. Instead, I said: "Why . . . why do you suppose we haven't left yet? We're still tied up. We . . . we were supposed to leave by 7. Why, it must be half-past 7 by now."

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Acheson had come up just as I was finishing this desperate question in an effort to make conversation. Even though we were no longer alone, the Vice President continued to hold my hand as unconcernedly as though we'd known each other for 15 years and not 15 minutes!

Something of my almost schoolgirl's panic must have communicated itself to the Secretary of State. Gallantly he came to my rescue and picked up my small talk without letting it die in the silence it deserved. His answer made me wish I were safely back in St. Louis.

"Oh, we're just awaiting another guest, that's all, Mrs. Hadley. Just Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives."

"Oh, I see," I said in a small crushed voice.

The Vice President squeezed my hand in what must have been sympathy and said, "Sam Rayburn and I are very old friends. I have known him since that March day in 1913 when we were sworn in as freshman Congressmen. Woodrow Wilson became President that day, but—" he chuckled, Sam is a bachelor, and despite our old friendship I hope he can't make it. This is one night I don't want any competition from the Squire of Bonham, Tex!"

The Achesons laughed and I managed a feeble smile. There could be no mistake. I wasn't imagining it—Mr. Barkley's grip seemed to be tightening! This was ridiculous, I told myself. Here I am, nearly 40, the mother of two daughters, considered reasonably sophisticated back home — Carleton and I were even mildly social—and yet and this is the ridiculous part —for the life of me I couldn't figure out how to free my poor, imprisoned hand.

I saw with relief that the Margy was under way at last. But I seemed to have become a stationary part of the stern The Achesons had moved on. Others had come up, been frozen off, and still I sat with the Vice President. He talked engagingly, but I heard him with only half an ear because I was worried. I hadn't said boo to the other guests, but it was evident that this fact did not concern the Vice President one whit.

"Do you get to Washington often?" he asked.

"This is my first trip in 11 years," I said evenly. "I came up once in 1938 to read a book."

"To read a book?" he repeated.

"Yes," I said, "to read a book. The Library of Congress had the only copy of T.E. Lawrence's last work, "The Mint." It hadn't been published because one of the persons it mentioned was still living and it was being withheld because of possible libel. As a matter of fact, as far as I know, the book hasn't been published yet."

The Vice President was looking into my eyes in the strangest way.

"I suppose your schedule prevents you from doing much reading, Mr. Vice President?" I asked in order to change that look.

"No, I manage to find time for history and biography," he said. "But let's not talk about me. Let's talk about you. You said you were a 'working girl.' Are you really?"

"Indeed I am. In fact, I've been working on the railroad for nearly a year now." The Vice President laughed softly at the cliche. "I'm a secretary. You know—typing, shorthand. An ordinary garden variety secretary."

"What shorthand system?" He asked brightly.

"Gregg," I replied, surprised at his question.

"I'm a Pitman myself," he said proudly. "So was President Wilson. Looks as though we have things in common, Mrs. Hadley."

I was intrigued. "How did you happen to learn shorthand?"

He smiled. "Well, shortly after I arrived in Paducah, Ky., and began reading for the law, I just had to pick up some extra money. It was, of course, 'way, 'way before your time. But in those days you could study law in a lawyer's office and prepare yourself for the bar examinations that way. . . ."

"I know," I said. In fact, I've had a lot to do with the law. At one time I wanted to be a lawyer myself. Father was a lawyer, and Mr. Hadley was a lawyer, too.

"Well, then," the Vice President said, "I might ask you the same question. How did you happen to learn shorthand?"

"After my husband died, I found that one can't make much money as an ordinary clerk. So, after my day's work —plain filing and so on—I'd go to night school and study shorthand. Managed to finish the nine months' course in three. But it meant going every night."

"Amazing," the Vice President said. "Amazing. The coincidence, I mean. I learned shorthand at night, too. And, like you, I learned it in record time, and also to increase my earning power. In fact, to earn anything at all. As I was saying, I was reading the law and I was paid exactly nothing for the work I did. It was the original on-the-job training. Only it was training without pay. The shorthand solved many a problem for me."

We were both silent for a moment.

The moon—which the Vice President had predicted earlier —had come up, full and bright. The sky was beautiful. Beautiful in a kind of overdressed way. Every star was out. They all glittered and glowed so that I thought the sky was like some women I knew too who didn't know when to stop when it came to wearing jewelry and wound up putting on all they owned. The night sky had the look. It was wearing all the jewelry heaven owned.

The night air was soft and warm. It was, I decided, the kind of night mothers warn their daughters about. The kind of night I would warn Annie and Janie about when they were a little older. I had gone along with the mood a night like this created, but quite suddenly I realized that a full hour had slipped by and I was still with the Vice President. And still alone with him. Abruptly, I took my hand out of his. Gratefully, I saw Marny Clifford approaching.

"Oh, there's Marny," I said. "Would you excuse me for a minute? I'd love to see what's below."

The Vice President rose. "Of course. But only for a minute. I believe dinner's about to be served."

I hailed Marny. "Honey, will you show me the downstairs or midships or whatever they call it?" She caught the urgent tone.

"Come with me," she said.

Belowdeck, I caught my breath.

"Now listen, Marny," I said, "I've had a lot of men be attentive to me and normally I know how to handle it. But what in the world do you do when the man happens to be the Vice President of the United States?"

Marny was amused and not in the least helpful. "Don't you worry, Jane," she said. "You're doing just fine." She patted my arm reassuringly.

Too well, I thought. I told myself there was no mistaking it. I didn't want to get caught in that handshake again. Beside, shorthand or not, a secretary and a Vice President have precious little in common. And what of the other guests? Wouldn't they think I was monopolizing the guest of honor. They were lovely people and I didn't want them to think that.

"Let's go above," Marny said. "This river air makes me hungry as a bear!"

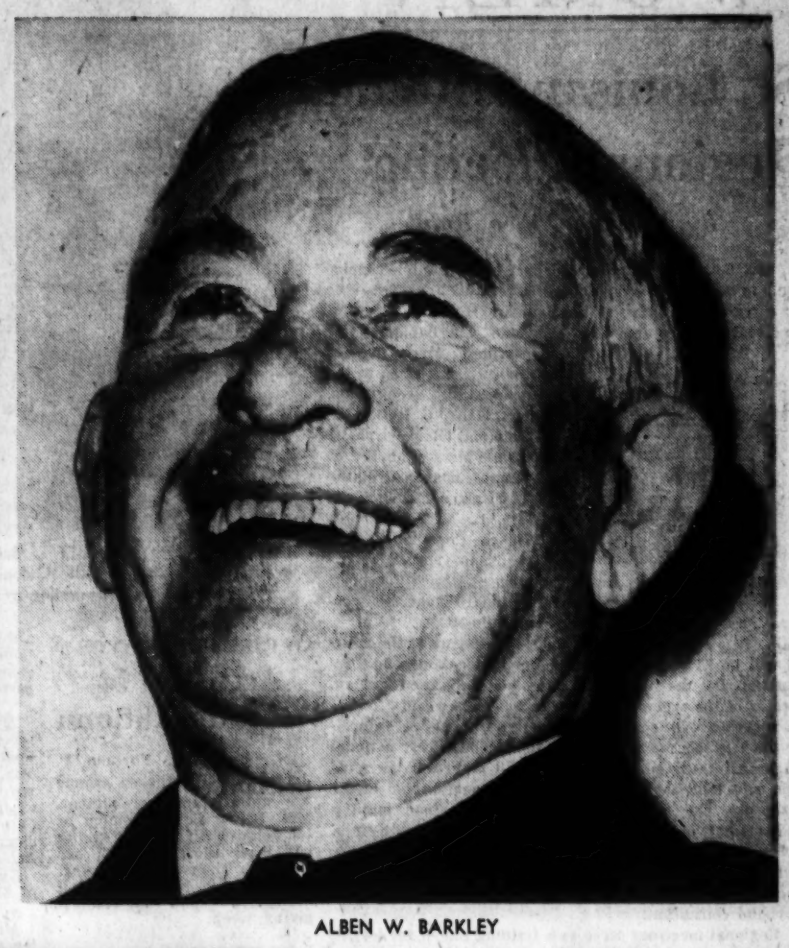

"Me too," I said. As we climbed the stairs—the "ladder," to those who have their sea legs—I resolved that I would just happen to get caught up with the other guests. I would avoid the stern like the plague. There was a charming man there. Too charming. With a real, authentic, Kentucky "line."

WINTER SCREEN: Something new in low-cost winter protection is a clear plastic envelope that fits snugly over the screen of a standard casement window, converting it into a storm window. One advantage over tack-on types of plastic storm shielding is the ease of installation; you simply slip the envelope right over the screen. It's also said to provide an improved insulating effect with double protection because of the two layers of plastic and the air space between them as well as the space between screen and window. It comes in 24 ins., 36 ins., and 48 ins. sizes.

SHADE DOOR: A new woven wood shade for sliding glass doors is, in effect, a combination folding door and drapery. You can open it from either side with fingertip action. It provides privacy, blocks sun glare, yet even when fully drawn, the open weave permits air to circulate while diffusing outdoor light. Since the shade glides smoothly on its track like a folding door, it makes it a simple matter to carry trays, furniture and other objects indoors or out.

PACKAGED STORAGE SPACE: New all-steel sheds you can get in a variety of sizes and assemble with only a screwdriver are designed for many uses around the house —for storing garden tools and other equipment, as playhouse, workshop, and even as boat house or sports car garage. They're weatherproof, louvred for ventilation, come prime-coated and ready for the second coat of paint. The doors are preassembled and factory-fitted. Windows also are available: They're as easy to take down and relocate or store as to put up.

MINOR BOONS: New way to store your phonograph records is in a three-panel black wrought iron screen which can be used as a room divider. Each panel—6 ft. high, 12½ ins. wide, 2½ ins. thick—interlocks with the adjoining panel and can be detached when desired. All told, there are 15 compartments, each holding up to seven 12 in. LP albums in preferred upright position. . . . A new indoor-outdoor bowling and shuffleboard set, fun for the kids, may be especially useful on bad weather days. Unroll the heavy oilcloth mat and it serves as a bowling or shuffleboard court. In the set are four shuffleboard sticks and eight discs, and unbreakable plastic bowling balls and pins.

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, identifying item, giving date of appearance and inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope. Inquiries must be sent no later than two weeks after the appearance of the item.

WOMEN

St. Louisans Attend Regional Meeting

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

SIX ST. LOUISANS will depart tomorrow for Topeka, Kan., to join other representatives of the Junior League for a regional meeting at the Jayhawk Hotel. Members of the local league are Miss Adelaide Cherbonnier, vice president; Mrs. Vilray P. Blair Jr., chairman of the nominating committee; Mrs. Henry C. Barksdale, radio and television chairman; Mrs. Robert A. Cramer, chairman of the education committee; Mrs. L. A. Watkins Jr., Topics (local magazine) chairman, and Mrs. Alphonse Howe Voorhees, National Magazine correspondent.

The theme of the meeting will be "The Importance of Communications and Participation for the Volunteer." Mrs. C. Dickinson Barton, director of the region, which is Region X, has said "Region X's meeting will combine techniques for better informing the league's members about their community, national and even international affairs. It will point out the ways radio and television can be used in education for better citizenship, and how an informed citizenry can build a good mental health program." Participating with Mrs. Barton will be Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation in Topeka; Dr. Margaret S. Wingert, A.J.L.A. education consultant; and Miss Luella Hopkins, radio and television consultant.

Regional meetings serve as a training school for league representatives on national policy and programs, and provide a means for the exchange of information.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hopkins King, former St. Louisans living in Naples, Fla., are here for their annual fall visit and are staying at the Park Plaza Hotel. They arrived 10 days ago from Biddeford Pool, Me., where they have a summer home, and will be here until Christmas.

DR. AND MRS. GENE B. STARKLOFF, 5266 Westminster place, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz III, 5052 Westminster place, will depart Wednesday by plane for Stuttgart, Ark., for duck shooting. Mrs. Bott descends from many Americans who settled in Jamestown, Va., and New England long before the Revolution. She is a life member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and has been regent of her chapter, and is a member also of the Daughters of Colonial Wars and the Daughters of the Union Army because of her grandfather, Dr. Newell Patterson, the last commander of the Harry Harding Post, Grand Army of the Republic, St. Louis. In addition she belongs to numerous civic, church and women's organizations. In 1953 she was the American Mother of the Year, the only stepmother to have held the honor.

Martha Carr's OPINION

One-Sided Santa

Dear Martha:

I'M A YOUNG MARRIED WOMAN with a year-old son. I had a good job before I was married and still have. I worked until the doctor wouldn't let me, then returned to the job when my son was 3 months old. My husband and I are trying to save for a down payment on our own home. His family is small whereas I have quite a few brothers and sisters. Every time a birthday or wedding anniversary comes up in his family we are expected to buy a gift and always do. I have given articles I can't buy for myself. When my own family's birthdays or anniversaries come up, they get a card. I just can't see giving to one side and not the other. My pay goes into the bank and my husband takes care of the money so I couldn't even begin to buy gifts. My husband takes care of that. I was wondering how we could politely but firmly get out of buying presents. I don't begrudge them the gifts but we could use the money in so many ways. Maybe some of your readers could help me. HOPING.

If you can talk your husband out of this one-sided Santa Claus bit, you will have won half your battle. Certainly, he can explain that as much as you'd like to give wonderful presents you just can't afford to continue. If this won't work, however, think of the inexpensive presents you can give those closest to you—cookies or candy, crocheted or knitted items, a plant from your own garden—and be satisfied with notes to the rest. A warm message of affection mailed with a 4-cent stamp will mean more than elaborate gift grudgingly given.

Dear Martha:

WE HAVE BEEN DEBATING about the letters in your column describing the bragging women. Apparently, there is one in every neighborhood because we have one of the finest garden variety on our street. This gal doesn't stop bragging about material things. She treads even where angels fear to tread. She compares her children with the neighbors', unfavorably for the others. Maybe disastrously is a better word. She claims one boy of 10 years is the "same mental age" as her own 8-year-old. Other people are stupid and insignificant in her eyes, the company her husband works for would crumble into nothing without his services, she is riding high on a wave of self-glory and, we are told, through a feeling of insecurity. Who doesn't feel insecure these days? Are we supposed to congratulate her on her ingenuity or, since we don't like it a bit, does that make us mean and jealous? We would like to hear the way other people handle this situation. THOUGHTFUL.

Only a professional analyst can tell you why people act as they do, but my curbstone opinion is that many do brag in an effort to build themselves up in the eyes of others. But this doesn't make a braggadoccio any candidate for a popularity prize. They can be insufferable. No, I don't suggest that all who cringe at such conceit are "mean and jealous." People of good taste would naturally be repelled. But she may be trying to offset the dislike she senses by telling you how wonderful she is. A happy, self-assured and self-sufficient person doesn't have to depend on the hard sell to gain recognition.

IN ANSWER TO Jane S.: If the invitation is before 4 p.m., that is, a luncheon or dessert bridge or tea, you would wear a street-length dress or suit, with hat and gloves. For an invitation between 4 and 8 p.m., you might choose a less tailored dress, of street or ballerina length, again with hat and gloves.

Are you trying to decide what to name the newcomer to the household? Martha Carr's free list of baby names will help you make a choice. It contains dozens for both boys and girls. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Visit to Mexico

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.

WHEN I ARRIVED at Mexico City on Wednesday to make two speeches for Youth Aliyah, I had no idea what would await me at the airport. Our Ambassador and Mrs. Hill had been kind enough to ask me to stay the two nights I would be in Mexico with them, and I thought possibly a representative from the Embassy and someone from the Youth Aliyah organization would meet me.

Apparently, however, the memory of my husband's visit to Monterrey way back in the early 1940s—when President Comacho met him and then returned his visit in Corpus Christi the next day—was still green in the hearts of the Mexican people, and I was met with a warmth and kindness which were somewhat overwhelming. We may think we can produce batteries of camera men when we wish to do so here, but they do quite as well in Mexico City! I was grateful indeed to be met by Ambassador and Mrs. Hill, as well as a representative from the Mexican Foreign Office and innumerable other kindly people, some of whom were to guide my every step during the rest of that day and the one following.

For some reason I had taken for granted that Canada and Mexico, being our close neighbors, required no passports. When our Ambassador asked me for mine, my heart sank; I had come without it. At once the Mexican representatives said they would issue a special visitor's courtesy card—but I did feel guilty, for one should not take the dismissal of these formalities for granted.

The schedule of activities drawn up for me allowed time to unpack. Then the committee of Youth Aliyah called and took me to a press conference which was, from my point of view, of monumental proportions. For an hour I answered questions which I am afraid were not all on Youth Aliyah. These gentlemen and ladies of the press wanted to know many things about the United States and Mexico—past, present and future. Of course they are near enough to be interested in United States politics; and Mr. Rockefeller has awakened all Latin Americans to an interest in our future elections!

I know nothing about the future and nothing about the Republicans' future plans, but I hope I managed to to slide out gracefully without saying anything damaging to anyone.

After the press conference we went back for luncheon at the Embassy, where I enjoyed meeting some very old friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Messershmit, who now live in Mexico. Mexico City seems to be a favorite vacation spot, too, for Americans, and I think Ambassador and Mrs. Hill have as busy a social schedule as anyone carries in any of our embassies. This one has become a very important Embassy, with more than 500 people on the staff. I understand, though, that the Soviet Union has a few more on their military staff than we do.

At 3 there was a tea at the residence of the minister from Israel, and later a visit to the wife of the outgoing Mexican President. Back at the Embassy I was able to sleep for two hours. Finally, at the late hour of a quarter to nine, we all went to the banquet at the Jewish sport center given by the Youth Aliyah committee, after which I gave my first scheduled talk on Youth Aliyah.

Natural History Activities

By Leonard Hall

RECENT WEEKS have brought interesting events in the fields of nature and natural history. One of these is the appointment of Murl Deusing as director of the St. Louis Natural History Museum. For many years director of the Milwaukee Museum, Murl is also one of America's top wildlife photographers and a fellow-lecturer of ours on the Audubon Screen Tours which cover 200 cities in the United States, Canada and the West Indies.

The season's first two Screen Tour lectures of the St. Louis Audubon Society have, incidentally, provided us with opportunities for two outstanding evenings. The first came when Arthur Allen and his wife showed their film of bird-life across Canada from Hudson bay to Alaska. Both of the Allens are fine ornithologists and he, as professor of ornithology at Cornell University, has trained most of the scientists working in this field in America today.

He is also author, wildlife photographer extraordinary, co-director of the Laboratory of Ornithology at Cornell and one of the two men responsible for the remarkable work done at Ithaca, N.Y., in recording bird song and other sounds from nature. Among its activities, the laboratory maintains an informal nation-wide fellowship of naturalists appointed by the president of the university and to this we have the honor of belonging.

Our second Audubon evening came when Olin Sewall Pettingill and his wife brought their fine film on the Falkland Islands to St. Louis. Pettingill is another distinguished zoologist, ornithologist, author and wildlife photographer whose career has taken him from the Arctic to the Antarctic with way stops in Mexico, Iceland, Europe and points between. Among these journeys was one to the wind-swept Falkland Islands at the tip of South America, where he and his wife Eleanor spent six rugged months photographing penguins and other species of water and land birds for Walt Disney.

LEONARD HALL

Those of us who can't resist birding as we travel across America probably know Pettingill best for his "Guides to Bird Finding—East and West of the Mississippi." These volumes have been of great value to us in adding innumerable species to our "life list" of birds.

Following this particular meeting of the Audubon Society we took a busman's holiday by spending a morning at Rockwoods Reservation with its director, our friend Dick Grossenheider. Rockwoods is a 3000-acre wildlife sanctuary in the rough hill country west of Eureka and no more than an hour from St. Louis. Owned by our Missouri Conservation Commission, the area is operated for the recreation, instruction and enjoyment of the people of the St. Louis area. This was our first visit to Rockwoods since it has been a sanctuary, although I had roamed these hills years ago when they were wilder than today.

It seemed to us that Rockwoods and Dick Grossenheider are an excellent example of a place and an individual suited to each other; although it is remarkable how often this combination comes about in the fascinating but vastly underpaid field of wildlife conservation and resource management.

Like the others we've mentioned in this column, Dick is a biologist although his greatest interest has been in mammals rather than birds. He got his early training at our own St. Louis Zoo and went on to Michigan and later to Cornell where the war cut short his advanced work.

He is an excellent artist whose drawings of mammals for the Burt and Grossenheider "Field Guide to the Mammals" have been compared in their perfection to those of the great medieval master, Albrecht Durer.

Among his duties at Rockwoods, Dick maintains a small zoo containing many of our common wildlife species from flying squirrels to whitetail deer and not excepting some birds of prey and reptiles. With all of these he has an undoubted affinity which results in health and a maximum amount of contentment for the creatures in his care. Our chief hope is that Dick doesn't get so busy that he stops painting. Somehow he must steal time for this.

One more natural history event completes the current list. A month ago or so there arrived from Drs. Hendricks and Stokes of the botany department of the University of Southern Illinois, a bulky and heavily insured package. When opened, we found that it contained the manuscript and illustrations for a short but well conceived book on the wildflowers of that state. The text is both technically correct and interesting, a goal often sought but seldom achieved. While only 80 species are covered, each is illustrated with a beautiful color photograph; while the text includes a key and an excellent description with drawings of flower parts.

This book will be popular in the state parks, with schools and youth organizations, with garden clubs and the public. It will make a valuable addition to the botanical literature of Illinois.

'Rome Never Fell'

By Ramon Coffman

DURING my college days I listened to lectures by a widely known professor of history. One of his favorite statements was this:

"Rome never fell."

We all know that the Roman Empire was conquered by Goths and other barbaric tribes, and we may wonder what the professor meant by such a statement. It seems clear that he was thinking of two things: the growth of the power of the Roman Catholic Church, with headquarters in Rome, and the spread of Roman civilization among the barbarian tribes.

The Romans borrowed much of their civilization from other countries, chiefly from Greece, but they made important progress in some fields. They became famed as builders of roads and bridges.

From the Greeks, the Romans obtained the alphabet, but they made various changes. In particular they altered the formation of the letters.

A few Roman girls received a good education, but in general education was reserved for the boys. Often the lessons were worked out on wax-covered tablets.

Teutonic, or Germanic, tribes conquered the empire from Austria and Italy westward to Gaul (or France) and Britain. Slowly the tribesmen learned the art of writing Latin, the language of the Romans. They also adopted many Roman laws.

The Franks conquered Gaul and gave that country a new name—France; or Land of the Franks. Chief among the early kings of the Franks was Charles the Great, usually written in the Latin form: Charlemagne (SHAR-le-MAIN). We shall have more to say about him next time.

Chemise Modifications

Modified versions of the chemise continue to be featured. Although other names are being used to designate these loose-fitting dresses, the form is much the same except for eliminating of exaggerated fullness below the waist at the back. Many of the dresses are partly belted. Usually the belt is slipped under the dress fabric at the back of the waistline and tied to accentuate the figure at the front.

Party Olives

Having a party? Marinate a can of ripe olives in olive oil to which a cut clove or garlic has been added; allow to stand overnight. Delicious!

Today's Pattern
